SANITARY.

The 4th July 1884.

No 194.—The following translation of the Regulations of the Ottoman Board of Health for the Pilgrim Traffic of 1884, received by the Political Resident at Aden from Her Britannic Majesty's Consul at Jeddah are published for general information —

TURKISH PILGRIM TRAFFIC REGULATIONS FOR 1884.

Article 1.

From the beginning of the month of Redjeb until the end of the month of Zilhidje (April 27th to October 20th) the Lazaretto of Camaran is ready to receive arrivals by sea subject to quarantine.

Camaran opens only on the 6th June, up to which date pilgrim ships can land at Mow Said. (L.S.)(Sd.) J. S. Jago, H. M.'s Consul.

Article 2.

During the period of the six months above mentioned (Redjeb, Shaban, Ramzan, Shawal, Zilcadé, Zilhidjé) pilgrim-ships bound from outside the Straits of Bab-el-Mandeb, no matter what be the tenor of their bill of health, must go directly to the Island of Camaran without touching at any other port of the Red Sea coasts.

Article 3.

Pilgrim-ships are those expressly chartered for the conveyance of pilgrims going to Mecca.

Article 4.

Vessels bound to the Red Sea having on board only 1 pilgrim for every 100 tons register are not, included in the class of pilgrim-ships, nor are mail boats or vessels passing through the Red Sea bound to the Mediterranean and carrying such a number of pilgrims as does not exceed 5 pilgrims for every 100 tons register.

Article 5.

Vessels of the two categories mentioned in the preceding article are not obliged to go to Cameran. They must go to Abow-Saad, where they will disembarge their pilgrims as well as merchandise, subject to quarantine destined for the Hedjaz or for the Yemen.

Article 6.

For this purpose a Lazaretto is established at Abow-Saad as a branch of the Cameran Lazaretto, and which for arrivals specified in Articles 4 and 5 of the present regulation will work throughout the year.

Article 7.

Arrivals from Egyptian ports, sambouks and other coasters, navigating from one port to another of the Red Sea coast, will also perform quarantine at Abow-Saad in case of necessity arising.

Article 8.

On the arrival of a pilgrim-ship in Cameran Harbour, as also at Abow-Saad, according to circumstances all pilgrims shall be disembarked and undergo the usual medical examination. If the health of the ship is good and without anything suspicious having occurred on the voyage, the ship and the pilgrims shall undergo five full days' quarantine, baggage and effects will be disinfected, the ship shall be washed and purified, but the cargo shall not be landed nor purified nor taxed.

Article 9.

Ships arriving from infected ports, but which have had no cholera case during the voyage or after arrival, shall undergo, ship and pilgrims, a quarantine of ten days. Merchandise coming from places contaminated by cholera shall remain on board the ship, if there has been no cholera cases during the voyage or after arrival, and is exempt from disinfection and from sanitary fees. Exception, however, is made for old personal effects and stuffs already used—unwashed wool, old cottons, hair and feathers, raw skins and hides, and other raw animal remains, as also rags.

Article 10.

Ships having had cholera cases during the voyage, or after arrival, or suspected of such, shall be subjected, ships and pilgrims, to a quarantine of at least 15 days. This quarantine shall be renewed each time a cholera case again occurs among crew or passengers after their arrival in Lazaretto, and shall date from the day of the last case of sickness. In this case the clauses in the Regulation of 1867 for cholera shall be strictly applied.

Article 11.

No pilgrim-ship shall leave Cameran for good without having re-shipped, at the expiration of the quarantine, all the pilgrims brought by her. Still vessels which have completed their quarantine without cholera cases or suspected cases among the crew, shall have a right to free pratique.

Article 12.

Sambouks coming from outside Cape Bab-el-Mandeb with pilgrims are in every way assimilated to vessels specially chartered for pilgrims. They must go directly to Cameran, and shall be repulsed from all other Arabian ports of the Red Sea.

By exception, vessels coming from Bassora with pilgrims on board bound for the Hedjaz must also go to Cameran, where they will be treated according to the tenor of their bill of health and the general regulations.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 19th June, 1884, and is hereby promulgated for general information :—

ACT No. XI OF 1884.

An Act to amend the Sindh Incumbered Estates Act, 1881.

XX of 1881.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Sindh Incumbered Estates Act, 1881, in manner hereinafter appearing; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title. Commencement.

1. This Act may be called the Sindh Incumbered Estates Act, 1884; and shall come into force at once.

Definition of zamíndár in Act XX of 1881 amended.

XX of 1881.

2. To the definition of zamíndár in the Sindh Incumbered Estates Act, 1881, the following shall be added, namely:—"and a person holding lands in Sindh which, having been comprised in the jághír lands of a jághírdár, and having ceased to be jághír lands, are assessed by the Government on account of land-revenue at a sum not less than three hundred rupees per year, and, where a joint family or any other body of co-owners holds lands of either of those descriptions, each member of that family or body who would be entitled to demand a partition of the lands."

New section to follow section 5 of same Act.

3. After section 5 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, that is to say :—

Interim order of protection.

"5 A. When the Commissioner has directed an inquiry under section five, he may, if he thinks fit, further direct that, until he dismisses the application or appoints an officer under section seven,—

"(a) all proceedings then pending in any Civil Court or Revenue Court or Office in British India in respect of any of the debts and liabilities to which the debtor is subject, or which are charged on the whole or any part of his immoveable property, shall be stayed, and the operation of all processes, executions and attachments then in force for or in respect of such debts and liabilities shall be suspended; and

"(b) no fresh proceedings, processes, executions or attachments shall be instituted in or issued by any Civil Court or Revenue Court or Office in British India in respect of such debts and liabilities."

Amendment of section 8 of same Act.

4. In section 8, after the words "all immoveable property" the words "including any interest in joint immoveable property" shall be inserted.

Amendment of section 9 of same Act.

5. In section 9 of the same Act, after the words "Civil Court," in both places where they occur, the words "or Revenue Court or Office" shall be inserted.

New section to follow section 24 of same Act.

6. After section 24 of the said Act the following shall be inserted :—

Separation of part of jághír lands subject to lapse.

"24 A. When jághír land under management is held on this condition, that on the happening of a certain event a share of the land shall lapse, but that it shall be in the discretion of the person then entitled as jághírdár to divide off and relinquish in respect of the lapse such part of the land, being a fair equivalent of that share, as he thinks fit, the manager may, if he deems it convenient for the better exercise of the powers conferred by sections twenty-three and twenty-four, at any time, after such consultation with persons interested as he thinks necessary, allot by written order, for relinquishment on the happening of the event, such part of the land as he thinks fit; and thereupon that part and no other shall, on the happening of the event, be relinquished."

Amendment of section 27 of same Act.

7. In section 27 of the said Act, after the words "Civil Court" the words "or Revenue Court or Office" shall be inserted.

Time for making applications under same Act.

8. (1) When any person would not have been a zamíndár within the meaning of the said Act before the passing of this Act, but is a zamíndár within the meaning of the said Act as amended by this Act, an application in respect of his estate under section 4 of the said Act may be made at any time within six months from the passing of this Act.

(2) A member of a joint family or other body of co-owners holding zamíndárí land shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to be a person who would not have been a zamíndár within the meaning of the said Act before the passing of this Act.

Order of management under same Act to be deemed in accordance with law.

9. Every order of management made under the said Act whether before or after the passing of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with law.

Power to revise scheme of management under same Act.

10. Notwithstanding anything contained in the said Act, the Commissioner may, at any time after he has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, sanctioned a liquidation-scheme under the said Act, revise and modify the same, but not so as to affect the right of any person to receive in full before the termination of the management the amount finally awarded to him under Chapter IV of the said Act.

A Bill to confer powers and impose duties on the Municipal Committee for the Town of Rangoon in respect to the construction and maintenance of Water-works and the supply of water in that Town.

WHEREAS a scheme has been settled and to some extent carried out for the construction and maintenance of water-works and the supply of water to the Town of Rangoon by the Municipal Committee for that town;

And whereas it is necessary for the purposes of the scheme that the Royal Lake at Rangoon, and all existing tanks, cisterns, springs, wells, pumps, reservoirs, conduits, aqueducts and works, and all land, bridges, buildings, engines, works, materials and things connected therewith or appertaining thereto, should vest in, and be under the control of, the Municipal Committee for that town;

And whereas it is expedient that powers should be conferred and duties imposed upon the said Municipal Committee with respect to the construction and maintenance of the proposed water-works and the supply of water to the Town of Rangoon, and otherwise in relation thereto, and that all acts already done by the said Municipal Committee which could have been lawfully done if this Act had been in force should be validated;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title and commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Rangoon Water-works Act, 1884; and

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of January, 1885.

(3) But all acts done before that date which could have been lawfully done if this Act had been in force shall be deemed to have been lawfully done.

Amendment of section 13 of the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874.

2. On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the following amendments shall be made in the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874, section 13, namely:— VII of 1874.

(a) the second paragraph shall be repealed; and

(b) in the 3rd paragraph, for the words "either of the rates" the words "the rate," and in the fourth paragraph, for the words "every rate" the words "the rate," shall be substituted.

Definitions.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,—

(1) "town" means the local area for the time being comprised within the municipal limits of the Town of Rangoon, and includes the cantonment of Rangoon and the Central Jail:

(2) "public street" means any street, road, thoroughfare, passage or place over which the public have a right of way; and includes the surface-soil and sub-soil of any such street, and the footway and drains of any such street, and any bridge, culvert or causeway forming part of any such street: [Cf. Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 3, & Act XXII of 1883, s. 2.]

(3) "owner" includes— [Cf. Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 3.]

(a) the person who is for the time being entitled to the rent of the house or land in respect of which the word is used and who is not liable to pay rent for that house or land to any other person;

(b) an agent of that person; and

(c) a trustee for that person:

(4) "house" includes schools; also factories and other buildings in which persons are employed: [38 & 39 Vic., c. 55, s. 4.]

(5) "water-works" includes all lakes, streams, tanks, cisterns, springs, wells, pumps, reservoirs, conduits, aqueducts and works, and all land, bridges, buildings, engines, works, materials and things for supplying, or used for supplying, water under this Act to the Town of Rangoon: [Cf. 38 & 39 Vic., c. 55, s. 4.]

(6) "the Committee" means the Municipal Committee for the Town of Rangoon for the time being constituted under the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874: VII of 1874.

(7) "water-rent" includes any rent, reward or payment to be made to the Committee in connection with the supply of water under this Act, but does not include the rate leviable under Chapter V: and

Rangoon Water-works Bill.
(Chapter II.—Vesting of Property. Sec. 4.)
(Chapter III.—Construction and Maintenance of Water-works. Secs. 5—8.)
(Chapter IV.—Supply of Water. Secs. 9—11.)

[26 & 27 Vic., c. 93, s. 12; Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 120.]

(8) a "supply of water for domestic purposes" does not include a supply of water for cattle, or for horses, or for washing carriages, where the cattle, horses or carriages are kept for sale or hire or by a common carrier, or a supply for any trade, manufacture or business, or for watering gardens, or for fountains or for any ornamental purpose.

CHAPTER II.

VESTING OF PROPERTY.

Vesting of Royal Lake and cisterns, &c., in Committee.

4. There shall vest in, and be under the control of, the Committee, freed and discharged of and from all manner of rights, titles, privileges or claims whatsoever of any other person,—

[Cf. Bom. Act III of 1872, s. 14.]

(a) the Royal Lake at Rangoon and all the land adjacent thereto and included within the limits delineated in a plan deposited in the office of the Secretary to the Chief Commissioner and authenticated by the signature of the Chief Commissioner and marked A; and

[Cf. Ben. Act V of 1876, s. 58.] See also 38 & 39 Vic., c. 55, s. 64.]

(b) all existing tanks, cisterns, springs, wells, pumps, reservoirs, conduits, aqueducts and works, used or intended to be used for supplying water to the public in the town, and all land, bridges, buildings, engines, works, materials and things connected therewith, or appertaining thereto:

Provided as follows:—

(1) Any person may at any time, subject to such rules as the Committee make in this behalf, row, sail or fish on or in the waters of the Royal Lake:

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the land adjacent to the Royal Lake and known as the Dalhousie Park, but that land shall be preserved as a public park for the use of the public.

CHAPTER III.

CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE OF WATER-WORKS.

[Cf. 10 Vic., c. 17, s. 35.] Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 29.]

Duty of Committee to construct works for supply of water.

5. Subject to rules to be made under this Act by the Chief Commissioner, the Committee shall cause such mains and pipes to be laid, and such water-works to be constructed, as may be necessary for the supply of pure and wholesome water sufficient for the use of the inhabitants for domestic purposes in all parts of the town:

Provided that the Chief Commissioner may, by order in writing, from time to time exempt any part of the town from the provisions of this section, and cancel any such exemption.

[Cf. Ben. Act V of 1876, s. 59.]

Duty of Committee to erect stand-pipes.

6. The Committee shall cause such stand-pipes or pumps to be erected at such intervals, as the Chief Commissioner, by rules made under this Act, prescribes, in all the chief public streets in those parts of the town in which mains or pipes have been laid under the last foregoing section.

Power for Committee to execute works.

7. The Committee may, for the purpose of constructing or maintaining any water-works for the supply of water to the town, enter upon any land and take levels of the same, and set out such parts thereof as they think necessary, and dig and break up the soil of the land:

Provided that, in the exercise of these powers, the Committee shall do as little damage as may be, and shall make full compensation to all persons interested for all damage sustained by them through the exercise of these powers, and the amount of such compensation shall be determined as nearly as may be in accordance with the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1870. X of 1870.

Power for Committee to break up streets.

8. The Committee may open and break up the soil and pavement of the public streets, and lay down and place pipes, conduits, and other works and engines, and, from time to time, repair, alter or remove the same, and do all other acts which the Committee, from time to time, deem necessary for supplying water to the town.

CHAPTER IV.

SUPPLY OF WATER.

A.—Supply of water for domestic purposes to Occupiers of Houses or Lands.

Right of occupier to certain supply of water for domestic purposes.

9. (1) Every occupier of a house or land situate in a part of the town not exempted under the proviso to section 5 shall be entitled to have free of further charge, through the communication-pipes constructed as hereinafter provided, a supply to the house or land of fifteen hundred gallons of pure and wholesome water for domestic purposes for every rupee paid to the Committee as hereinafter provided for water-rate on account of the house or land. [Ben. Act V of 1876, s. 133.]

(2) If the Committee have reason to believe that the occupier of any house or land consumes more water than he is entitled to have free of further charge under this section, they may provide a water-metre at their own expense, and attach it to such part of the communication-pipes as they think fit.

(3) If the occupier consumes any water over and above the quantity to which he is entitled free of further charge under this section, he shall pay for it at the rate of one rupee for every fifteen hundred gallons, or part of fifteen hundred gallons.

Right of occupier paying water-rate to bring water into his house or land.

10. Every occupier of a house or land who is entitled to a supply of water free of further charge under the last foregoing section shall, subject to the following provisions, be entitled to have communication-pipes laid down from the service-pipes of the Committee, for bringing into his house or land a reasonable supply of water: [Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 136.]

Provided that the Committee may cut off the supply of water to any house or land while the house or land is unoccupied.

Construction of communication-pipes.

11. The communication-pipes leading the water from the service-pipes of the Committee into the house or land of any occupier, and the pipes and works within the house connected therewith, shall be of such character, dimensions and material as the Committee fix and approve, and shall be constructed at the expense of the person requiring them.

Rangoon Water-works Bill.
(Chapter V.—Water-rates and Water-rents. Sec. 21.)

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 146.]

Inspection of works, pipes and fittings before connection with service-pipes.

12. (1) Before a connection for the supply of water from the service-pipes of the Committee to any house or land is sanctioned by the Committee, the Committee shall cause all the works, pipes and fittings within the house or land to be inspected by such officer as the Committee appoint in this behalf.

(2) The cost of an inspection under this section shall be payable in advance by the person applying for the connection, at such rate as the Committee, at a special meeting, from time to time, direct.

(3) Until the officer has certified that the works, pipes and fittings have been executed and put up in a satisfactory manner, a connection with the Committee's service-pipes shall not be permitted.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 471.]

Connection with service-pipes to be executed only by an officer of the Committee.

13. (1) The connection with the service-pipes of the Committee, and the laying of communication-pipes under any public street, shall be executed by an officer of the Committee authorized in that behalf.

(2) The expense of making the connection shall be payable in advance by the person applying for the same, at such rates as the Committee, at a special meeting, from time to time, direct.

[Ben. Act IV of 1878, s. 138.]

Power for officer of Committee to enter premises.

14. (1) The officer authorized in that behalf by the Committee may, between the hours of seven in the forenoon and five in the afternoon, enter into or on any house or land supplied with water as aforesaid in order to examine all pipes, works and fittings connected with the supply of water, and to ascertain if there is any waste or misuse of the water.

(2) If any such officer at any such time is refused admittance into any such house or land for the purposes aforesaid, or is prevented from making such examination as aforesaid, the Committee may forthwith turn off or cut off the water from the house or land.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 139.]

Power for Committee to turn off water when pipes are out of repair.

15. If any pipes, works or fittings connected with the supply of water to any house or land are at any time found, on examination, by any officer of the Committee authorized in that behalf, to be out of repair to such an extent as to cause any waste of water, the Committee may, after the expiry of twenty-four hours from the service of notice in writing to this effect, cause the water to be turned off or cut off from the house or land, and may recover the expense incurred for turning off the water from the occupier of the house or land.

B.—Supply for gratuitous use in Stand-pipes.

Duty of Committee to supply water for gratuitous use in stand-pipes.

16. The Committee shall cause a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome water to be supplied for the gratuitous use of the inhabitants of the town for domestic purposes in the stand-pipes to be erected by the Committee under section 6.

C.—Supply of water for extinguishing fires and cleansing streets.

[Cf. 10 Vic., c. 17, s. 38.]

Duty of Committee to fix fire-plugs in mains.

17. The Committee shall fix and renew and keep in effective order such fire-plugs in such of the mains and other pipes laid by them, and shall deposit keys of the fire-plugs at such places, as the Chief Commissioner from time to time, by rules made under this Act, directs.

[Cf. 10 Vic., c. 17, s. 37.]

Duty of Committee to supply water for cleansing sewers and drains.

18. In all the mains and pipes to which any fire-plug is fixed, the Committee shall provide and keep constantly laid on, unless prevented by unusual drought or other unavoidable accident, a sufficient supply of water for use with fire-engines, for cleansing the sewers and drains, and for cleansing and watering the streets.

D.—Supply of Water for other than domestic purposes.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 132.]

Supply for other than domestic purposes.

19. (1) The Committee may, from time to time, supply any person with water by measurement for other than domestic purposes, for such remuneration and on such terms and conditions as shall be agreed on between the Committee and the person:

Provided that,—

(a) notwithstanding any such agreement, a person shall not be entitled to such a supply whenever and as long as the Committee are of opinion that the supply would interfere with the proper supply of water for domestic purposes under this Act; and

(b) the Committee shall not be liable, in the absence of express stipulation under any such agreement, to any forfeiture, penalty or damages for not supplying the water if the want of the supply arises from unusual drought or other unavoidable cause or accident.

(2) When any such agreement has been entered into by the Committee with any person, the Committee may, subject to such charges or rates as may have been fixed by the Committee at a special meeting, lay down, or allow to be laid down, the necessary communication-pipes and works, of such dimensions and character as may be fixed by the Committee, for supplying the person with water in accordance with the terms of the agreement.

E.—Pressure of water supplied.

[Cf. 10 Vic., c. 17, s. 35; Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 131.]

Pressure at which water must be kept.

20. From such a day as the Chief Commissioner, by notification in the local official Gazette, directs in this behalf, the supply of water in the mains and pipes which the Committee are required to lay under this Act shall be laid on at such pressure as the Chief Commissioner, by rules made under this Act, prescribes.

CHAPTER V.

WATER-RATES AND WATER-RENTS.

[Cf. Act VII of 1874, s. 13.]

Power for Committee to impose water-rate.

21. (1) To provide for the supply of water under this Act the Committee may, by a resolution passed at a special meeting and confirmed by the Chief Commissioner, impose an annual rate on all houses and lands situate in the town or any part thereof not exceeding two per centum of their annual value calculated on such principles as the Chief Commissioner, by rules made under this Act, prescribes.

Rangoon Water-works Bill.
(Chapter VI.—Reciprocal Rights of Owners and Occupiers to supply of Water to Houses. Secs. 28—30.)

(2) It shall be at the option of the Committee, when a rate under sub-section (1) has been imposed, to levy in lieu thereof on any house of which the annual value is less than one hundred rupees an annual rate not exceeding one pie for every three square feet of the ground covered by the house.

(3) The rate leviable under this section in respect of any house or land shall be payable by the occupier of the house or land.

[Cf. Act VII of 1874, ss. 11 and 25.]

Power to abolish or reduce tax, or exempt from taxation.

22. The Committee, by a resolution passed at a special meeting and confirmed by the Chief Commissioner, may abolish or reduce in amount any tax imposed under the last foregoing section, or exempt any house or land, or description of house or land, from the tax.

Power to Chief Commissioner to suspend levy of tax.

23. (1) If it at any time appears to the Chief Commissioner, on complaint made or otherwise, that the tax imposed under section 21 is unfair in its incidence, or that the levy thereof or of any part thereof is obnoxious to the interests of the general public, or that any houses or lands, or description of houses or lands, should be exempted from the payment of the same, he may require the Committee to take within a specified period measures to remove the objection, or grant the exemption, as the case may be; and if within that period the requirement is not complied with to the satisfaction of the Chief Commissioner, he may, by notification in the local official Gazette, suspend the levy of the tax or of such part thereof until the objection has been removed or the exemption granted.

[Cf. Act VII of 1874, s. 27.]

Constitution and application of water-supply fund.

24. (1) A separate fund, to be called the water-supply fund, shall be established, and there shall be credited to it the existing balance (if any) of the water-rate levied under section 13 of the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874, the proceeds of the rate leviable under this chapter and all water-rents.

VII of 1874.

(2) The water-supply fund shall, subject to such rules as may be made by the Chief Commissioner in this behalf, be applicable at the discretion of the Committee to the supply of water in the town and to no other purpose.

[Cf. Act VII of 1874, s. 29.]

Custody of, and disbursement from, fund.

25. (1) The balance standing to the credit of the water-supply fund shall be kept in the Government treasury.

(2) No payment shall be made out of the fund except under the signature of the President or Vice-president and one other member of the Committee.

[Act VII of 1874, s. 44.]

Recovery of arrears of water-rates and water-rents.

26. All arrears of water-rates or water-rents under this Act may be recovered, on application to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may appoint in this behalf, as if they were arrears of land-revenue.

[Ben. Act VI of 1876, s. 140.]

Power for Committee to turn off water on neglect to pay the rate or charge.

27. If any person supplied with water neglects to pay—

(a) the rate leviable under this chapter, or

(b) any water-rent payable by him to the Committee, the Committee may turn off or cut off the water from the house or land in respect of which the rate or water-rent is payable, by cutting off the pipe to the house or land, or by such other means as the Committee think fit, and may recover in manner provided by the last foregoing section the expense of turning off or cutting off the water from the person:

Provided that the stopping or cutting off the supply of water shall not relieve any person from any penalties or liabilities which he has otherwise incurred.

CHAPTER VI.

RECIPROCAL RIGHTS OF OWNERS AND OCCUPIERS TO SUPPLY OF WATER TO HOUSES.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 10.]

Power for occupier of house to require owner to provide works for water-supply.

28. (1) Any occupier holding direct from the owner of a house may, by notice in writing signed by him, require the owner of the house to construct all such works as may be necessary for bringing into the house a supply of water for domestic purposes.

(2) Every notice under this section shall contain an undertaking on the part of the occupier to pay interest at the rate of one per centum per mensem, calculated from the date of the completion of the works, on the cost of the works during the residue of his term of occupation.

(3) If the house, or the land attached thereto, does not abut upon a street in which there is a supply-main, the occupier shall undertake to pay the cost of connecting the house with the nearest supply-main.

Power for occupier to make works in default of owner.

29. (1) If the owner does not, within three months from the service of the notice mentioned in the last foregoing section, cause such works as aforesaid to be completed, the occupier may cause the works to be completed, and may deduct the cost of the works from the rent payable by him in respect of the house:

Provided that the occupier shall not deduct from the rent on account of the cost—

(a) a sum exceeding the amount of six months' rent; or

(b) where the house or the land attached thereto does not abut upon a street in which there is a supply-main, the cost of connecting the house with a supply-main.

(2) The deduction which an occupier is authorized to make under this section shall be made by six equal monthly instalments.

(3) Interest on each instalment shall be payable to the owner by the occupier at the rate of one per centum per mensem from the time when it is deducted.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 152.]

What works are sufficient for supply of water to house.

30. The works shall not be deemed sufficient for bringing into the house a supply of water for domestic purposes unless the following taps, with the necessary works in connection therewith, are provided, namely:—

(a) two taps in the house;

(b) one tap in the cook-room of, or other building attached to, the house, and

(c) one tap in or near the stables or other out-houses belong to the house:

Provided that, if the annual rent of the house with the buildings and land attached thereto is less than three hundred rupees, it shall be sufficient to provide one tap only, together with the necessary works in connection therewith, within the house and the buildings and land attached thereto.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 153.]

Estimate and specification of works to be sent.

31. Works for introducing a supply of water to a house shall not be commenced by the owner without sending a specification and estimate of the cost thereof to the occupier, nor by the occupier without sending such a specification and estimate to the owner.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 154.]

Power to refer to Committee.

32. If there is any difference between the owner and the occupier respecting the cost or the sufficiency of the proposed works, either the owner or the occupier may refer the difference to the Committee, and the written award of any officer authorized by the Committee in this behalf shall be final and binding on the owner and the occupier.

Fee on reference.

33. There shall be payable by the person making a reference to the Committee under the last foregoing section a fee (not exceeding ten rupees) at the rate of two rupees for every hundred rupees of the monthly rent of the house in respect of the water-supply to which the difference has arisen.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 156.]

Duty of owner to keep works in repair.

34. (1) The owner of any house or land shall keep all works connected with the supply of water to the house or land in substantial repair.

(2) If the owner fails to put any such works in substantial repair after being requested by the occupier to do so, the occupier may cause the necessary repairs to be made, and may deduct the cost of the repairs from the rent payable by him in respect of the house or land.

[Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 157.]

Power for owner to recover sums payable by occupier.

35. Any owner to whom any sum is payable under section 28 or section 29 may recover the sum from the person liable to pay it as if it were rent payable by that person for the house in respect of which the expenses have been incurred.

Saving of contracts between owners and occupiers.

36. Nothing in this chapter shall affect any contract in writing between the owner and occupier of any house or land.

CHAPTER VII.

RULES.

Power for Chief Commissioner to make rules.

37. The Chief Commissioner may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) to prescribe the size and nature of the mains and pipes to be laid and the water-works to be constructed by the Committee for the supply of water under this Act;

(b) to prescribe the size and nature of standpipes or pumps to be erected by the Committee under this Act, and the intervals at which they must be erected;

(c) to prescribe the mains or pipes in which fire-plugs are to be fixed, and the places at which keys of the fire-plugs are to be deposited, by the Committee under this Act;

(d) to prescribe the pressure at which the water supplied by the Committee under this Act is to be laid on either generally or at specified times;

(e) to regulate the assessment and collection of the rates leviable under Chapter V, and the mode in which the proceeds of the rates are to be applied; and

Power for Committee to make rules.

38. (1) The Committee may, from time to time, at a special meeting make rules consistent with this Act—

(a) for regulating rowing, sailing and fishing on the Royal Lake; and

(b) for preventing the waste or misuse of water supplied by them, and for defining the nature of the pipes, casks, cisterns and other apparatus to be used by every person supplied by them with water.

In making a rule under this section the Committee may direct that a breach of it shall be punishable with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, and, when the breach is a continuing one, with a further fine of five rupees for every day after the first during which the breach continues. [Act VII 1874, s. 43.]

(2) If any person, having or requiring a supply of water from the Committee, fails to comply with any rules made under clause (b) of this section, the Committee may refuse to supply water to him, and may cut off the water supplied to him, unless and until the rules are complied with:

Provided that the stopping or cutting off the supply of water shall not relieve any person from any penalties or liabilities which he has otherwise incurred.

Procedure for making rules.

39. (1) The Chief Commissioner or Committee shall, before making any rules under section 37 or section 38, publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons interested.

(2) The publication shall be made—

(a) in the case of rules under section 37, in such manner as in the opinion of the Chief Commissioner is sufficient; and

(b) in the case of rules under section 38, in such manner as the Chief Commissioner, by order, directs.

(3) A notice shall be published with the draft rules specifying a date at or after which the draft shall be taken into consideration.

(4) The Chief Commissioner or Committee shall, before making the rules, receive and consider any objection or suggestion which is made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

Rangoon Water-works Bill.
(Chapter VIII.—Penalties.—Secs. 41—44.)

40. Every rule made under section 37 or section 38 shall be published in the local official Gazette in English and in such other language or languages as the Chief Commissioner directs, and such publication shall be conclusive evidence that the rule has been made as required by section 39.

Publication of rules.

CHAPTER VIII.

PENALTIES.

[Cf. Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 149.]

41. If any person unlawfully obstructs the flow of, flushes, draws off, diverts or takes, water from any water-works belonging to, or under the management or control of, the Committee, or from any water or streams by which those water-works are supplied, or wastes any water supplied to him under this Act, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

Penalty for obstructing, diverting or wasting water.

[26 & 27 Vic., c. 93, s. 18.]

42. If any person—

Penalty for unauthorized application of water.

(a) uses for other than domestic purposes any water supplied under this Act for domestic purposes; or

(b) where water is supplied under section 19 for a specified purpose, uses that water for any other purpose, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees, without prejudice to the right of the Committee to recover from him the price of the water misused.

[Cf. Ben. Act IV of 1876, s. 159.]

43. (1) If any person—

Penalties for causing the water of the Committee to be fouled, &c.

(a) bathes in any water-works, or washes, throws or causes to enter therein any dog or other animal, or

(c) causes the water of any sink, sewer or drain, or of any steam-engine or boiler, or any other filthy water belonging to him or under his control, to turn or be brought into any water-works, or does any other act whereby the water in any water-works is fouled, he shall, for every such offence, be punished with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees, and to ten rupees in addition for each day (if more than one) during which the offence continues.

[Act VII of 1884, s. 44.]

44. Prosecutions under this Act or the rules made under this Act may be instituted by the Committee or any person authorized by them in this behalf, and not otherwise.

Prosecutions.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill, which relates to the Rangoon water-works now in process of construction, is twofold.

2. The first is the vesting in the Municipal Committee for the Town of Rangoon of the Royal Lake at Rangoon and the water-works connected therewith. The Dalhousie Park, in which the lake is situated, was dedicated by the Marquis of Dalhousie to the use and recreation of the public. At present the public enjoy the privilege not only of boating and fishing, but also of bathing in the waters of the lake. As one of the main features of the scheme of the new water-works is that the town should be supplied with water for drinking as well as other purposes by a main led from the lake, it is essential to take steps for ensuring the purity of the water of the lake. The best means of doing this seems to be to vest the control of the lake in the Municipal Committee for the Town of Rangoon, to whom under the present scheme is assigned the duty of constructing and maintaining the new water-works. This is accordingly done by Chapter II of the Bill. In order, however, that the existing privileges of the public may not be interfered with more than is necessary to prevent any defilement of the water, the same chapter specially reserves the right of the public to row, sail or fish in or on the lake at any time, subject only to such rules as the Municipal Committee may make in this behalf. In order further to make it perfectly clear that nothing in the chapter affects the rights of the public with respect to the Dalhousie Park, a clause to this effect has been added.

3. The second object of this Bill is to confer powers and impose duties upon the Municipal Committee with respect to the construction and maintenance of the proposed water-works, and to the supply of water to the Town of Rangoon. And to this object the other provisions of the Bill are directed.

4. Chapter III deals generally with the construction and maintenance of the water-works. It imposes on the Committee a duty to construct the works necessary for supplying a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome water for domestic purposes, and confers on them the requisite powers of entering private land and breaking up streets.

5. Chapter IV provides, first, for the supply of water for domestic purposes to occupiers of houses or lands. It declares the right of every occupier, in a part of the town in which it is the duty of the Committee to supply water, not only to a certain supply of water for domestic purposes, but also to have communication-pipes laid down for the purpose of bringing the water into his house or land. The communication-pipes must, however, be made to the satisfaction of a municipal officer, by whom also the connection with the service-pipes must be made. A municipal officer is also authorized to enter the premises at certain times and to inspect the pipes and works connected with the supply of water; and, if the pipes and works are found to be at any time out of repair so as to cause any waste of water, the Municipal Committee are empowered, after notice, to cut off the supply of water to the house or land.

The chapter further imposes a duty on the Municipal Committee to supply a sufficient quantity of water for gratuitous use in stand-pipes.

Then the duty of the Committee to fix fire-plugs and supply water for cleansing sewers and drains is prescribed.

Next, there are provisions for the supply by measurement, under special agreement, of water for other than domestic purposes.

Lastly, there is a provision declaring that, on and after such day as the Chief Commissioner may fix, the water shall be kept at such pressure as the Chief Commissioner, by rules, prescribes. This provision cannot be put in force at once, inasmuch as the water is at present driven through the pipes by the force of gravitation only, and the pressure cannot, therefore, be artificially increased or reduced. But as it may, perhaps, be hereafter decided to provide the necessary tanks and pumping apparatus required to raise the pressure of the water, it has been thought advisable to insert a provision of this nature.

6. Chapter V deals with water-rates and water-rents. In lieu of the existing provisions on this subject contained in the British Burma Municipal Act, 1874, which are repealed by the Preliminary chapter of the Bill, this chapter empowers the Committee, with the sanction of the Chief Commissioner, to impose an annual water-rate on all houses and lands situate in the town, not exceeding two per cent. of their annual value, calculated on such principles as the Chief Commissioner by rule prescribes, and also empowers the Committee, with the like sanction, to abolish or reduce any such tax, or to exempt any houses or lands from taxation. The Chief Commissioner is authorized to suspend the levy of the tax if it appears to him that the tax is unfair in its incidence, or that the levy thereof or of any part thereof is obnoxious to the interests of the general public, or that any houses or lands should be exempted from payment of the same, and the Committee refuse to remove the objection or grant the exemption. The chapter also provides for the constitution and application of a water-supply fund, and for the recovery of arrears of water-rates and water-rents.

7. Chapter VI is concerned with the reciprocal rights of owners and occupiers in respect to the supply of water to houses. These provisions are modelled on the similar provisions in force in Calcutta, and may generally be described as empowering the occupier, after notice to and default by the owner, to construct such works as may be necessary for bringing into the house a supply of water for domestic purposes, and to deduct the cost from his rent. The occupier, however, will be required to pay, in addition to his rent, interest at the rate of one per cent. per month on the money expended by the owner on the construction of such works or recovered from him under the provisions just referred to. The other provisions of the chapter are subsidiary to the above, and among other matters provide for the reference of matters of difference between the owner and occupier to the Committee. Lastly, there is a clause saving from the chapter contracts in writing between the owners and occupiers of houses or lands.

8. Chapter VII empowers both the Chief Commissioner and the Committee to make rules for regulating subsidiary matters connected with the subject of the Bill, and prescribes the procedure for making such rules and the mode in which the rules are to be published; while Chapter VIII enacts penalties for obstructing, diverting, wasting or misusing and for fouling the water contained in the water-works, and provides for the institution of prosecutions under the Bill by the Committee.

9. Lastly, it may be noticed that, as the water-works to which the Bill relates have been to a great extent practically carried out, a clause has been inserted in the Preliminary chapter validating all acts already done which would have been lawful had the provisions of the Bill been in force.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 18th June, 1884:—

No. 5 OF 1884.

A Bill for the validation of certain licenses to solemnize Marriages granted to Ministers of Religion under Act XXV of 1864.

WHEREAS by section 4 of Act XXV of 1864 (to provide further for the solemnization of Marriages in India of persons professing the Christian Religion) it was enacted that, from and after the first day of July, 1864, certain Governments therein named should have authority to grant licenses to ministers of religion to solemnize marriages within the territories subject to such Governments respectively;

And whereas, in exercise of the authority so conferred, the Governments therein named granted licenses to certain ministers of religion to solemnize marriages;

And whereas Act XXV of 1864 was repealed by Act V of 1865 (to provide for the solemnization of Marriages in India of persons professing the Christian Religion);

And whereas by section 9 of the latter Act it was enacted that, from and after the commencement of that Act, all marriages which should be solemnized in India otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the fifth and sixth sections of that Act should be null and void;

And whereas by section 6 of the same Act it was enacted that marriages might be solemnized in India by (among other persons) any minister of religion who, under the provisions of that Act, had obtained a license to solemnize marriages;

And whereas Act V of 1865 was repealed by the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872; XV of 1872.

And whereas by section 4 of the latter Act it is enacted that every marriage between persons, one or both of whom is a Christian or Christians, shall be solemnized in accordance with the provisions of the next following section; and that any such marriage solemnized otherwise than in accordance with such provisions shall be null and void;

And whereas by the next following section of the same Act it is enacted that marriages may be solemnized in India by (among other persons) any minister of religion licensed under the same Act to solemnize marriages;

And whereas neither in Act V of 1865 nor in the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, was there or is there any provision either saving licenses granted under Act XXV of 1864 or permitting a marriage to be solemnized by a minister of religion who had obtained a license to solemnize marriages under Act XXV of 1864 only; XV of 1872.

And whereas certain marriages have been solemnized both while Act V of 1865 was in force and since the passing of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, by ministers of religion who had obtained licenses to solemnize marriages under Act XXV of 1864, but had never obtained licenses to solemnize marriages under Act V of 1865 or the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, as the case may be, and doubts have therefore arisen as to the validity of such marriages; XV of 1872. XV of 1872.

And whereas it is expedient to remove such doubts and to declare the continued validity of licenses to solemnize marriages granted to ministers of religion under Act XXV of 1864;

It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Validation of licenses to solemnize marriages granted to ministers of religion under Act XXV of 1864.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

BY section 4 of Act XXV of 1864 (to provide further for the solemnization of Marriages in India of persons professing the Christian Religion) it was enacted that, from and after the first day of July, 1864, the Governor General of India in Council, the Governors of Madras and Bombay in Council, and the Lieutenant-Governors of Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb should have authority to grant licenses to ministers of religion to solemnize marriages within the territories subject to such Governor General, Governors and Lieutenant-Governors respectively. In exercise of the authority conferred by this section, the Governments therein named licensed certain ministers of religion to solemnize marriages within the territories subject to them respectively. Act XXV of 1864 was repealed by Act V of 1865 (to provide for the solemnization of Marriages in India of persons professing the Christian Religion). The ninth section of this Act declared that, from and after the commencement of that Act, all marriages which should be solemnized in India otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of the fifth and sixth sections of the Act should be null and void; and the sixth section of the Act, which specified the persons by whom marriages might be solemnized in India, only permitted a minister of religion who, under the provisions of that Act, had obtained a license to solemnize marriages. Act V of 1865 was in turn repealed by the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872. The fourth section of this Act declares that every marriage between persons, one or both of whom is a Christian or Christians, shall be solemnized in accordance with the provisions of the next following section; and that any such marriage solemnized otherwise than in accordance with such provisions shall be void; and the following section of the Act, which specifies the persons by whom marriages may be solemnized in India, only permits a minister of religion licensed under the Act to solemnize marriages. There was no provision in Act V of 1865, and there is none in the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, either saving licenses granted under Act XXV of 1864 or permitting ministers of religion licensed under that Act only to solemnize marriages.

2. It has been brought to the notice of the Government that marriages have been solemnized in India, both since the commencement of Act V of 1865 and since the passing of the Indian Christian Marriage Act, 1872, by ministers of religion who were not licensed under either of these Acts but under the Act of 1864. As it seems to the Government that the effect of section 9 of the Act of 1865 and of section 4 of the present Act is to make such marriages of doubtful validity, and as it is desirable to remove such doubts, the present Bill has been prepared. It simply declares that a license to solemnize marriages granted to a minister of religion under Act XXV of 1864 shall be deemed, if in force on the date on which Act V of 1865 came into force, to have been, while that Act was in force, a license granted under that Act, and, if in force on the date on which Act XV of 1872 came into force, to have been since that Act came into force, and to be, a license granted under that Act.

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 25th June, 1884:—

No. 6 OF 1884.

A Bill to amend the Indian Salt Act, 1882.

WHEREAS it is expedient to exclude the Province of Sindh from the operation of those portions of the XII of 1882. Indian Salt Act, 1882, which do not extend by their own operation to the whole of British India, and whereas it is also expedient to remove certain doubts which have been raised as to the meaning of the words "importation of salt" in section 27 of the same Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Repeal of words "to the Province of Sindh" and "Province" in section 1 of Act XII of 1882.

1. From such day as the Governor of Bombay in Council, by notification in the official Gazette, fixes in this behalf, the words "to the Province of Sindh" and the word "Province," in paragraphs three and four respectively of section 1 of the Indian Salt Act, 1882, shall be repealed.

Amendment of section 27 of the same Act.

2. For the word "importation" in section 27 of the same Act, the word "bringing" shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. THE object of this Bill is to make two amendments in the Indian Salt Act, 1882.

2. It has been found that certain provisions of the Indian Salt Act, 1882, are not suitable to the circumstances of the Province of Sindh, to which they at present extend, and it is proposed to replace them by an enactment to be passed by the local legislature providing for the requirements of the whole Presidency of Bombay inclusive of Sindh. It is doubtful, however, whether this course can be adopted until the words in section 1 of the Act which bring the Province of Sindh within the operation of those provisions have been repealed. Those words are accordingly repealed by section 1 of the Bill, and, in order that the repeal may be made to operate from the date on which the proposed new Act of the local legislature comes into force, it is left to the Governor of Bombay in Council to fix the date from which the section shall have effect.

3. The object of the amendment made by section 2 of the Bill is to remove a doubt as to the meaning of section 27 of the Act, raised by a ruling of the Judicial Commissioner in Sindh, who has held that the words "importation of salt" in that section cover only the bringing in of salt as merchandize for the purposes of commerce and in merchantable quantities. The Bill substitutes for the word "importation" the word "bringing."

Such powers where and in what cases to be exercised.

15. Any person or bench invested under section 11, section 12 or section 13 with the powers of a Court of any grade shall exercise such powers and discharge the functions of such Court within such local limits and in such classes of cases as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 13.]

Power to alter local limits of jurisdiction.

16. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, fix the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Court of any of the six grades last mentioned in section 4.

CHAPTER III.

OF THE JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF THE CHIEF COURT.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 14.]

17. The Chief Court shall be deemed, for the purposes of all enactments for the time being in force, to be the highest Civil Court of appeal in the territories to which this Act extends.

Civil appeals from subordinate Courts.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 15; Cf. Crim. Pro. Code, ss. 4 (i) and 266.]

18. The Chief Court shall be the highest Court of criminal appeal or revision in the said territories, and shall have power, as a Court of original jurisdiction, to try European British subjects committed to it for trial.

Criminal, appellate and revisional jurisdiction.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 16; Civil Pro. Code, s. 25.]

19. The Chief Court may, on the application of any of the parties, after giving notice to the parties and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion, without giving such notice, withdraw any suit or other civil proceeding instituted in any Court under its superintendence or control, and try or dispose of such suit or proceeding itself, or transfer the same for trial or disposal to any other Court under its superintendence or control and competent to try or dispose of such suit or proceeding in respect of its nature and the amount or value of its subject-matter.

Power to withdraw and try, or to transfer, suits.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 17.]

20. Except as otherwise provided by any law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie from any decree or order passed or made by the Chief Court—

Appeals from original jurisdiction of Chief Court.

(a) in exercise of the original jurisdiction conferred by section 19; or

(b) in exercise of any other original jurisdiction of a civil nature to which the Chief Court may by rule extend this section:

Provided that such appeal shall lie only in the cases and in manner following (that is to say):—

(c) when such decree or order is made by a single Judge, an appeal shall lie, either to a bench consisting of two other Judges, or to the full bench, as the Court may, by general rule or special order, from time to time, direct;

(d) when such decree or order is made by a bench of Judges not being the full bench, and such Judges differ in opinion, the appeal shall lie from such decree or order to the full bench.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 18, extended to Divisional Courts.]

21. (1) Except as by this Act or by any other enactment for the time being in force otherwise provided, the Chief Court may make rules to provide in such manner as it thinks fit for the exercise by one or more of its Judges of any powers conferred on it, and for the exercise by one or more of the Judges of a Divisional Court of any of the powers conferred on that Court, by this Act, or by any other enactment for the time being in force:

Delegation of powers to its members.

Provided that no order not being an interlocutory order, and no decree, sentence or decision of any Court, shall be reversed by any Judge of the Chief Court or of a Divisional Court sitting alone.

Proviso.

(2) When the Chief Court consists of more than three Judges, it may make rules declaring what number of Judges, not being less than three, shall constitute a full bench of the Court, and may by these rules prescribe the mode of determining what Judges shall sit as a full bench, when a full bench sitting becomes necessary.

(3) The Chief Court may, from time to time, delegate to one of its Judges the power of determining, subject to any rules made under this section, what Judge in each case shall sit alone and what Judges of the Court shall constitute any bench of Judges.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 20.]

22. When there is a difference of opinion among the Judges composing any bench of the Chief Court on any question arising before such Judges in the exercise by them of any powers conferred on such Court by this Act, or by any other enactment for the time being in force, such question shall, except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force, be decided as follows, that is to say:

Rule of decision when Judges differ.

If the number of such Judges concurring in one opinion upon such question is larger than the number holding any other opinion upon such question, the decision shall be in accordance with the opinion of such larger number.

If the numbers of such Judges holding two or more opinions on such question are equal, the following rules shall be observed, that is to say:—

(a) if such bench is the full bench, or is exercising any original jurisdiction to which section 20 applies or is extended, the decision upon such question shall be in accordance with such one of these opinions as is held by the Judge who has precedence under section 6;

(b) in other cases the bench before which such question has arisen shall refer the same to the full bench, and the full bench shall decide the same in accordance with the rules hereinbefore contained, and the case in which such question has arisen shall be disposed of by the bench referring such question in accordance with the decision of the full bench thereon.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 21.]

23. (1) Any single Judge of the Chief Court or any bench of Judges of such Court (not being the full bench) exercising any powers conferred on the Chief Court by this Act or by any other enactment for the time being in force may refer for the decision of the full bench any question of law or custom having the force of law, or the construction of any document, or the admissibility of any evidence arising before such Judge or bench of Judges.

Power to refer question to full bench.

(2) Any Judge or bench making a reference on any question in any case under this section shall dispose of such case in accordance with the decision of the full bench on such question.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 22.]

24. (1) The Chief Court may, from time to time, appoint a Registrar and Deputy Registrar and such other ministerial officers as may be necessary for the administration of justice by such Court, and for the exercise and performance of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on it by this Act.

Power to appoint ministerial officers.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

(Chapter IV.—Of the Jurisdiction and Powers of the Subordinate Courts.—Section 34.)

25. The officers so appointed shall exercise such powers and discharge such duties of a ministerial nature as the Chief Court may, from time to time, direct.

26. Any such officer may be suspended or dismissed from his office by order of the Chief Court:

Provided that neither the Registrar nor the Deputy Registrar shall be dismissed without the previous sanction of the Local Government.

27. The general superintendence and control over all Courts of the six grades last mentioned in section 4, and over all Courts of Small Causes, shall be vested in, and such Courts shall be subordinate to, the Chief Court.

28. (1) The Chief Court may, from time to time, make rules—

(a) declaring what persons shall be permitted to practise as petition-writers in the Courts of the Panjáb;

(b) regulating the conduct of persons so practising.

(2) Whoever breaks any rule made under this section and having the force of law shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 27; see also Criminal Procedure Code, s. 553, and Civil Procedure Code, s. 652.] Power to make rules as to other matters.

29. The Chief Court may, from time to time,—

(a) make rules consistent with this Act conferring and imposing on the ministerial officers of the Courts subject to its superintendence such powers and duties of a ministerial nature as it thinks fit, and regulating the mode in which powers and duties so conferred and imposed shall be exercised and performed;

(b) make rules consistent with this Act to determine in what cases pleaders practising in such Courts shall be permitted to address such Courts in English;

(c) prescribe forms for seals to be used by such Courts;

(d) prescribe forms for such books, entries, statistics and accounts as it thinks necessary to be kept, made or compiled in such Courts or submitted to any authority;

(e) make rules consistent with this Act providing for the inspection of such Courts and the supervision of the working thereof;

(f) make such rules consistent with this Act, institute such enquiries and submit such recommendations to the Local Government as it may think fit, with a view to promoting the efficiency of the judicial and ministerial officers of such Courts and maintaining proper discipline among such officers.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 28.] Registers, books, accounts and statements to be kept and furnished by Chief Court.

30. (1) The Chief Court shall keep such registers, books and accounts as may be necessary for the transaction of the business of the Court, and shall submit to the Local Government such of the same registers, books and accounts, and statements of the work done in the Court, as may, from time to time, be required by the said Government.

(2) The Chief Court shall also comply with such requisitions as may, from time to time, be made by the Governor General in Council, or by the Local Government, for certified copies of, or extracts from, the records of the Courts.

[Sec. 29, Act XVII of 1877, and ss. 638 and 639, Civ. Pro. Code.] Chief Court to take evidence and record judgments according to its own rules, and to frame forms for proceedings.

31. (1) The Chief Court, when sitting as a Court of civil judicature, shall take evidence and record judgments and orders in such manner as it, by rule, from time to time, directs, and may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding in that Court in the exercise of its civil jurisdiction.

(2) The following provisions of the Civil Procedure Code shall not apply to the Chief Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, namely, sections 119, 182 to 185 (both inclusive), 187, 189 to 191 (both inclusive), 192 (so far as it relates to the manner of taking evidence), 198, 200 to 204 (both inclusive), and so much of section 409 as relates to the making of a memorandum; XIV of 1882.

And sections 571 to 573 (both inclusive), 554 (so far as it relates to the time of dating and signing judgment) and 579 shall not apply to the Chief Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.

32. (1) Any non-judicial or quasi-judicial act which the Civil Procedure Code requires to be done by a Judge, and any act which may be done by a Commissioner appointed to examine and adjust accounts under section 394 of that Code, may be done by the Registrar of the Court, or by such other officer of the Court as the Court may direct to do such act. XIV of 1882.

(2) The Chief Court may, from time to time, by rule, declare what shall be deemed to be non-judicial and quasi-judicial acts within the meaning of this section.

33. When any appeal, reference or case heard in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction has been heard by a bench consisting of two or more Judges, a judgment or dissent written by any member of the bench, but not pronounced, may be delivered by any other member of that bench.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF THE SUBORDINATE COURTS.

34. Subject to the general superintendence and control of the Chief Court—

every Divisional Court shall control (a) the Courts of all Assistant Judges or officers invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge within its division, and (b) the Courts controlled by the Assistant Judges or Deputy Commissioners invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge within its division;

and, subject to the control of the Divisional Court—

every Assistant Judge and every Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge shall control (a) all Courts of the four grades last mentioned in section 4, and all Courts of Small Causes, and (b) all Courts of persons other than the Deputy Commissioner of a district invested under section 11 or section 12 with the powers of an Assistant Judge within the area subject to his jurisdiction.

Principal Court of original jurisdiction.

35. Except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force, the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Court or principal civil Court of original jurisdiction in its division:

Provided that the Local Government may empower any Assistant Judge or any Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge to exercise all or any of the powers of a District Court within the area subject to his jurisdiction.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 32.]

36. Except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force—

No pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of Divisional Court or of Assistant Judge.

(1) the Divisional Court, and (2) the Court of the Assistant Judge, shall have jurisdiction for the adjudication of original civil suits without limit as regards the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suits; and Pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of other Courts.

each of the Courts mentioned in the first column of the subjoined table shall have jurisdiction for the adjudication of civil suits when the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suits does not exceed the limit prescribed for such Court in the second column of the table:—

COURT.	Limit of jurisdiction.
	Rs.
(a)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class.	5,000
(b)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the second class.	1,000
(c)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the third class.	500
(d)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the fourth class.	100

[Section 33, Act XVII of 1877.]

Powers of Divisional Court and of Court of Assistant Judge.

37. (1) Any Divisional Court or any Assistant Judge, or Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of Assistant Judge, may exercise, as regards the Courts under its or his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by section 19 on the Chief Court.

(2) The Court trying any suit withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes.

(3) The Local Government may, from time to time, confer upon any Assistant Commissioner the powers of an Assistant Judge under this section, and withdraw the same.

[Section 34, Act XVII of 1877.] [XIV of 1882.]

Power to distribute business.

38. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, every Divisional Court, Assistant Judge or Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of Assistant Judge may, by written order, direct that any civil business cognizable by it or his Court and the Courts under its or his control (including the execution of decrees) shall be distributed among such Courts in such manner as it or he thinks fit:

Provided that no direction issued under this section shall empower any Court to exercise any jurisdiction in any suit of which the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds its proper jurisdiction:

Provided also that no such direction shall be inconsistent with any direction or notification issued by the Local Government under section 15 or 16.

[Section 35 Act XVII of 1877.]

Ministerial officers of subordinate Courts.

39. (1) The ministerial officers of the Divisional Court and of the Courts of Assistant Judges and Courts of Small Causes shall be appointed, and may be suspended and dismissed, by the Judges of those Courts respectively, whose orders in such matters shall, in the case of a Divisional Court, be final, and in the case of any other Court be subject to the general control of the Divisional Court.

(2) The ministerial officers of all Courts controlled by an Assistant Judge, other than a Court of Small Causes, shall be appointed, and may be suspended and dismissed, by the Assistant Judge, subject to the general control of the Divisional Court.

(3) Every appointment under this section shall be subject to such rules as the Local Government, from time to time, prescribes in this behalf.

[Act XVI of 1877, s. 36.]

Power to fine ministerial officers.

40. (1) The Judge or presiding officer of every Court under the control of an Assistant Judge may fine, in an amount not exceeding one month's salary, any of the ministerial officers of such Court who is guilty of misconduct or neglect in the performance of the duties of his office.

(2) The Assistant Judge, subject to the general control of the Divisional Court, may, on appeal or otherwise, reverse or modify any such order made by any such Judge or officer, other than a Judge of a Court of Small Causes; and may of his own motion fine up to the amount of one month's salary any ministerial officer of any Court under his control other than a Court of Small Causes.

(3) Any Divisional Court or Assistant Judge, and the Judge of any Court of Small Causes, may fine any ministerial officer of his Court in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

[Now, Act VI 1871, s. 21 and Act XII of 1879, s. 24.]

Power to invest with Small Cause Court jurisdiction.

41. The Local Government may invest, within such local limits as it, from time to time, fixes, any Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge of the first class with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the amount of five hundred rupees, and any Subordinate Judge of the second or third class with similar jurisdiction up to the amount of fifty rupees; and may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw the jurisdiction so conferred.

(Chapter V.—Of Appellate Jurisdiction in Civil Cases.—Sections 42-47.)

(Chapter VI.—Of Revenue Courts.—Section 48.)

CHAPTER V.

OF APPELLATE JURISDICTION IN CIVIL CASES.

First appeals to whom to lie.

42. (1) Appeals from the decrees and orders of a Court of any of the three grades last mentioned in section 4 in suits of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, and in suits of any other class which the Chief Court, with the sanction of the Local Government, may, from time to time, determine to place on the same footing, shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, and the value or amount of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed five hundred rupees, lie to the Court of the Assistant Judge.

(2) Appeals from the decrees and orders of the Court of the Assistant Judge in original suits, when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds five thousand rupees, and appeals from the decrees and orders of the Divisional Court in original suits, shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the Chief Court.

(3) Appeals from decrees and orders in original suits not hereinbefore provided for shall, when such appeal is allowed by law, lie to the Divisional Court.

Further appeal to lie to the Chief Court on the certificate of the Divisional Court that the case is a fit one for further appeal.

43. When two Judges of a Divisional Court are unable to concur in a judgment varying or reversing the decree or order appealed against, or when some question of law or custom, or of general interest, is involved, the Judges may, if they regard the case as of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal, or if, when the certificate is applied for, one of the Judges who passed the decree is no longer attached to the Court, the remaining Judge may, if he regards the case as of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal, grant a certificate to any party to the appeal that the case is a fit one for a further appeal; and on such certificate being granted a further appeal shall lie to the Chief Court from the decree or order of the Divisional Court on any ground which would be a good ground of appeal if the decree or order had been passed in an original suit:

Provided that no further appeal shall lie in any suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, or other suit placed on the same footing under section 42 when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the original suit does not exceed five hundred rupees.

Appellate decision of Assistant Judge or Divisional Court otherwise final.

XIV of 1882.

44. Subject to the provisions of section 43, and of the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 595 and 622, the decision of the Court of the Assistant Judge or of the Divisional Court passed in appeal shall be final.

[Cf. Act XIII of 1879, s. 22.]

Appeals from decrees, &c., passed before Act comes into force.

45. For the purposes of sections 42 and 23, all decrees, orders and decisions passed before the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed—

(a) if passed by a Commissioner or Additional Commissioner, or by the Civil Judge of Peshawar, to have been passed by the Divisional Court;

(b) if passed by a Deputy Commissioner or other officer invested with the appellate jurisdiction of a Deputy Commissioner, to have been passed by an Assistant Judge;

(c) if passed by an Assistant Commissioner with full powers, to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge of the first class;

(d) if passed by an Assistant Commissioner not invested with full powers or with the appellate powers of a Deputy Commissioner, or by an Honorary Civil Judge, or by a Tahsíldár or Náib Tahsíldár, to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge of the second, third or fourth class:

Provided that—

(1) no right of appeal which has accrued under the existing law shall be taken away, and no certificate shall be required for a further appeal;

(2) if the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds five thousand rupees, the appeal, if any is allowed by law, shall lie to the Chief Court; but in other cases in which the appeal now lies to the Commissioner's Court, the appeal shall lie to the Divisional Court.

Period of limitation.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 40.]

46. (1) The period of limitation for an appeal under section 41 or section 42 shall run from the date of the decree, order or decision appealed against, and shall be as follows, that is to say:—

(a) when such appeal lies to the Court of the Assistant Judge or to the Divisional Court—sixty days.

(2) In computing such periods of sixty and ninety days, and in all respects not herein specified, the limitation of such appeals shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

XV of 1877.

Power to withdraw and try or to transfer appeal.

[Act XVII of 1877 s. 41.]

47. The Chief Court, the Divisional Court or the Court of an Assistant Judge may, on the application of any of the parties, after giving notice to the parties and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion, without giving such notice, withdraw any civil appeal pending in any Court under its superintendence or control, and try such appeal itself, or transfer the same for trial to any other Court under its superintendence or control and of a grade equal or superior to that of the Court from which such appeal is withdrawn.

CHAPTER VI.

OF REVENUE COURTS.

Certain classes of suits cognizable by Revenue Courts only.

48. Suits of any of the following classes instituted on and after the first day of October, 1884, shall be heard and determined in Revenue Courts and not otherwise:

(a) suits by tenants to establish a claim to a right of occupancy under Chapter II of the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868;

(b) suits by landlords under section 6 of the same Act to prove that a tenant presumed to have a right of occupancy under that section has no such right;

XXVIII of 1868.

(c) suits for enhancement or abatement of rent under Chapter III of the same Act;

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.
(Chapter VI.—Of Revenue Courts.—Sections 49-55.)

(d) suits for ejectment of a tenant under Chapter IV of the same Act;

(e) suits under section 25 of the same Act to contest liability to be ejected when notice of ejectment has been served;

(f) suits under section 40 of the same Act to determine the amount or value of the compensation to be paid or the terms of a lease to be granted to a tenant under section 39 of the same Act, or both;

(g) suits for arrears of rent on account of land, or on account of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, fisheries or the like;

(h) suits for the recovery of any over-payment of rent;

(i) suits by lambardárs for arrears of land-revenue, payable through them by the co-sharers, or for village-expenses or other dues for which the co-sharers may be responsible to the lambardár;

(j) suits by co-sharers for their share of the profits of an estate or part thereof after payment of the land-revenue and village-expenses, or for a settlement of accounts;

(k) suits by assignees of land-revenue for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(l) suits by superior proprietors for arrears of revenue due to them as such; and

(m) suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act to recover possession of land assessed to the land-revenue or liable to be so assessed, or of which the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned. I of 1877.

49. If in any suit of any of the classes mentioned in clauses (a) to (l) of the last preceding section it appears that the parties are at issue on any question of proprietary title, or on the question of the existence of the relation of landlord and tenant between them, the Revenue Court shall not determine such question, but may either proceed to decide the case by passing a decree contingent upon the determination of such question by a Civil Court, giving such directions as it may think proper as to the party with whom it shall rest to institute a suit for the purpose, or, on the application of either party, may stay proceedings to enable the party applying to institute a suit for the purpose in a Civil Court; but the proceedings shall not be stayed under this section for more than three months unless such suit is in the meantime instituted; nor, when a decree has been passed contingent upon the determination of such question by a Civil Court, shall any execution be issued, property sold or person ejected or imprisoned thereunder until the receipt of a copy of the judgment of the Civil Court on the question, unless the decree has been passed against the party whose duty it is to sue and he fails to institute the suit for more than three months from the date of the decree.

Procedure when question of proprietary title or of existence of relation of landlord and tenant arises.

50. (1) All Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs shall have power to try suits of the classes mentioned in section 48, clauses (g), (i), (k) and (l), when the amount or value of the claim does not exceed one hundred rupees; and the Local Government may invest Náib Tahsíldárs with the same powers.

Certain revenue powers of Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs to be exercised ex officio.

51. The Local Government may invest any Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár with power to try all suits of the classes mentioned in the same section, clauses (d) and (f) to (m), both inclusive.

Additional powers with which Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs may be invested.

52. The Deputy Commissioner shall have power to try suits of any of the classes mentioned in section 48, and the Local Government may specially invest any Assistant Commissioner with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner for the trial of suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of the same section.

Revenue powers of Deputy Commissioners and power to invest Assistant Commissioners therewith.

53. (1) The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure of Revenue Courts in cases under this chapter for which a procedure is not prescribed thereby; and may, by any such rule, direct that any provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, with or without modification, to all or any classes of cases before Revenue Courts. [Cf. Act XVIII of 1881, s. 19.] XIV of 1882.

Procedur of Revenue Courts how to be regulated.

(2) Until such rules are made, Revenue Courts shall be guided in cases under this chapter by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section 2, Part I, except Chapters XVI and XX, Parts II, III and IV, Chapters XXXVII and XXXVIII, XLI, XLIII and XLIV, and Parts VIII and X, so far as applicable; and the Court of the Financial Commissioner shall, in respect of such cases, be deemed to be the High Court within the meaning of the said Code, and shall exercise, as regards the Courts under his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by sections 19 and 47 on the Chief Court; and the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner shall respectively exercise, as regards the Courts under his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by sections 57 and 47 upon a Divisional Court and an Assistant Judge. XIV of 1882.

54. Every Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner may, by written order, direct that any business cognizable under this chapter by his Court, and the Courts under his control (including the execution of decrees) shall be distributed among such Courts in such manner as he thinks fit:

Power to distribute business.

Provided that no direction issued under this section shall empower any Court to exercise any jurisdiction which it is not empowered to exercise under section 50, section 51 or section 52.

55. All decisions and orders (except decisions and orders in suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act) of Assistant Commissioners not invested with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner under section 52, and of Tahsíldárs, shall be appealable to the Deputy Commissioner, whose order thereon shall be final, unless when the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees, when a I of 1877.

Other judgments to be final.

Further appeal to Financial Commissioner in certain cases.

57. An appeal from the decisions of the Commissioner on appeals in suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of section 48 shall lie to the Financial Commissioner, unless when the Commissioner dismisses the appeal.

Other judgments of Commissioner to be final.

All other judgments and orders of the Commissioner on appeals shall be final, subject to revision by the Financial Commissioner.

Revisional jurisdiction of Financial Commissioner.

58. The Financial Commissioner may at any time call for any case which has come before any Commissioner or any Court subordinate to him, and pass such orders thereon consistent with the law applicable thereto as he thinks fit.

Limitation of appeals under this chapter.

59. (1) The period of limitation for an appeal under section 55, section 56 or section 57 shall run from the date of the decree, order for decision appealed against, and shall be as follows, that is to say :—

(a) when such appeal lies to the Court of the Deputy Commissioner or of the Commissioner—sixty days ;

(2) In computing such periods of sixty and ninety days, and in all respects not herein specified, the limitation of such appeals shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

Controlling powers of Financial Commissioner, Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner.

60. Subject to the general superintendence and control of the Financial Commissioner, every Commissioner shall control the Revenue Courts of all Deputy Commissioners and the Revenue Courts controlled by Deputy Commissioners within his Division ; and subject to the control of the Commissioner, every Deputy Commissioner shall control the Revenue Courts of all Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs and officers invested with the powers of Deputy Commissioner, Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár within his District.

Persons invested with powers under this chapter to be deemed to be Courts of corresponding grades, and where and in what cases to exercise their powers.

61. Except for the purpose of exercising control over any other Revenue Court, any person exercising the powers of a Revenue Court of any grade under section 49 or section 51 shall be deemed to be a Court of such grade for all the purposes of this Act, and shall exercise such powers and discharge the functions of such Court within such local limits and in such classes of cases as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

Distribution of business between Financial Commissioners.

62. When more than one Financial Commissioner is appointed, the Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the distribution of revenue, judicial and other business between the persons so appointed ; and, until such rules are made, the Financial Commissioner who is senior in respect of his appointment as such may transfer such business as he thinks fit to the other Financial Commissioner for disposal, and may withdraw and himself dispose of any business so transferred and not disposed of.

Consultation between Financial Commissioners.

63. If either Financial Commissioner desires to obtain the opinion of the other upon any question arising in any appeal under this chapter pending before him, he may forward the record to the other Financial Commissioner with a statement of the question upon which he desires his opinion ; and the latter, after such examination and such hearing (if any) as he thinks fit, shall record his opinion upon the question referred to him ; and the Financial Commissioner who made the reference shall proceed to dispose of the appeal after considering the opinion so obtained.

Power to invest Settlement-officers with powers of Civil or Revenue Courts in certain cases.

64. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in official Gazette, declare that a settlement of land-revenue is in progress in any local area, and invest any officer making or controlling such settlement, either by name or in virtue of his office, with all or any of the powers of any Court constituted under this Act for the purpose of trying all or any specified class of suits and appeals relating to land, or the rent, revenue or produce of such land, arising in such local area.

(2) The publication of any notification under this section shall be conclusive evidence that a settlement of land-revenue is in progress in the local area to which the notification refers.

(3) The Local Government may cancel any such notification.

(4) While such notification continues in force, such powers shall be exercised by the officers so invested, and not otherwise :

Provided that the Local Government may, by order published in the official Gazette, direct that any jurisdiction with which any officer may have been invested by such notification shall be exercised solely by the Court by which such jurisdiction would have been exercised if such notification had not been published :

Provided also that any cases pending before any officer under such notification when it is cancelled may, notwithstanding such cancellation, be disposed of by him as if it continued in force, unless the Local Government directs (as it is hereby empowered to do) that such cases shall be transferred for disposal to the Court by which they would have been disposed of if such notification had not been published.

Explanation.—In this section "land" means land assessed to the land-revenue or whereof the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, and all land the property of Government not within the site of any town or village.

Power to alter subordination of Courts for purposes of section 64.

65. For the purposes of section 64 the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything in this Act, from time to time direct that any of the Courts mentioned in this Act (except the Chief Court) shall, in respect of any specified class of cases, be subordinate to, or subject to the control or superintendence of, any authority other than those specified in this Act.

CHAPTER VII.

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 46; compare Act VI of 1871, s. 25; Act XVII of 1875, s. 19; and Act XIII of 1879, s. 23.]

Presiding Officer of Court not to try certain suits and appeals.

66. (1) Except with the consent of the parties, no presiding officer of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall try any suit or appeal to which he is a party or in which he is personally interested, or any appeal against a decree or order passed by himself, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit or appeal.

(2) When any such suit, appeal or proceeding comes before him, he shall forthwith transmit the record of the case to the Court to which he is immediately subordinate, with a report of the circumstances attending the reference.

(3) The superior Court shall thereupon dispose of the case in the manner prescribed by section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure. XIV of 1882.

Rules when to have force of law.

67. All rules made and forms prescribed under section 28 and section 29, clauses (a), (b), (d) and (e), shall be submitted for sanction to the Local Government, and, on receiving such sanction, shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 48.]

Local Government may transfer power conferred by section 27 to a single Judge.

68. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint a single Judge of the Chief Court to exercise the power of superintendence conferred on such Court by section 27, and may cancel such notification.

(2) While such notification continues in force, such power shall be exercised by the Judge appointed thereby, and not otherwise.

Jurisdiction under Divorce Act.

69. For the purposes of the Indian Divorce Act, any Judge of the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Judge throughout the Division over which that Court has jurisdiction.

[Act VI of 1871, s. 1; Act XIII of 1879, s. 26.]

Vacations

70. (1) Subject to such orders as may, from time to time, be issued by the Governor General in Council, and to the approval of the Local Government, the Chief Court shall prepare a list of days to be observed in each year as close holidays in the Civil Courts subordinate thereto.

(2) Such list shall be published in the official Gazette, and the said days shall be observed accordingly.

Pending proceedings.

71. (1) All cases or proceedings pending in any Civil Court on the first day of October, 1884, may be disposed of as if this Act had not been passed, unless the Chief Court directs (as it is hereby empowered to do) that such cases or proceedings shall be transferred for disposal to the Courts established under this Act which would have had jurisdiction if they had been in existence when such cases or proceedings were instituted.

(2) For the purposes of this section, all appeals in civil suits or proceedings pending on the said day shall—

(a) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Commissioners, Additional Commissioners or the Civil Judge of Peshawar be deemed to be appeals from the Divisional Court;

(b) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Deputy Commissioners or officers invested under section three of Act XIV of 1875 with the appellate powers of Deputy Commissioners, or with the full powers of an Assistant Commissioner, be deemed to be appeals from the Court of the Assistant Judge; and

(c) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Assistant Commissioners not invested with full powers, or with the appellate powers of Deputy Commissioners, or of Honorary Civil Judges not invested with the full powers of an Assistant Commissioner, or of Tahsildárs or Náib Tahsildárs, be deemed to be appeals from Subordinate Judges of the second, third or fourth class.

Explanation of sections 617 and 622, Civil Procedure Code.

72. For the proposes of sections 617 and 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, the decree of an Appellate Court subordinate to the Chief Court shall be deemed to be final when no certificate permitting a further appeal to the Chief Court under section 13 has been granted, and a case decided by an Appellate Court in which no such certificate has been granted shall be deemed to be a case in which no appeal lies to the Chief Court. XIV of 1882.

Amendment of the first schedule annexed to the Court-fees Act, 1870.

73. To the first schedule annexed to the Court-fees Act, 1870, the following shall be added :— VII of 1870.

NUMBER.		PROPER FEE.
3. Application to the Chief Court of the Panjáb for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.	When the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed twenty-five rupees.	Two rupees.
	When such amount or value exceeds twenty-five rupees.	The fee leviable on memorandum of appeal.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

(Chapter VII.—Miscellaneous and Supplementary Provisions.—Sections 74-75.)

74. If the Chief Court, on an application under section 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, on which a fee has been paid under the last preceding section, sets aside or modifies the decree or order of a subordinate Court, or remands the case for a fresh decision, it may grant to the applicant a certificate authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the application, or any smaller amount which, with regard to the circumstances of the case, it may think proper to order to be refunded.

Refund of fee paid on application for revision. XIV of 1882.

75. All appointments made under sections 5 and 22 of Act XVII of 1877, directions given under section 23, rules and forms prescribed under sections 26 and 27, and notifications published, powers conferred and orders issued under section 49, of the same Act, shall, so far as may be, be deemed to have been respectively made, given, prescribed, published, conferred and issued under this Act.

Saving of certain appointments, rules and forms, notifications, powers and orders.

SCHEDULE.

ACTS REPEALED.

(See section 2.)

Number and year.	Title of Act.	Extent of repeal.
Act IV of 1869	The Indian Divorce Act.	So much of section 3 as defines "District Judge" in the Panjáb to mean the "Commissioner of a Division."
Act X of 1870	The Land Acquisition Act, 1870.	So much of section 3 as defines "Court" in the Panjáb to mean the "Commissioner of a Division."
Act XIV of 1875.	The Panjáb Judicial Administration Act, 1875.	So far as it relates to civil or criminal judicial powers.
Act XVII of 1877.	The Panjáb Courts' Act, 1877.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

AN essential portion of the scheme for the reorganization of the civil administration in the Panjáb, which has recently received the sanction of the Secretary of State for India, is to be found in the improvement of the judicial agency and the reform of the appellate system. The arrangements proposed for this purpose render necessary very large changes in the law under which the Panjáb Courts are now constituted (the Panjáb Courts Act, 1877), and the most convenient mode of giving effect to them appears to be to repeal that Act and re-enact its provisions with the necessary additions and modifications. This it is proposed to do by the present Bill.

2. The changes in the law which it is intended to make will now be noticed.

3. Chapter II deals with the constitution of the Courts. The present law confers the civil judicial powers of the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court upon the executive officers of Government from the Commissioner down to the Tahsíldár, though Act XIV of 1875 enables the Local Government to confer the powers of a Deputy Commissioner or of a Tahsíldár upon other persons, and under that Act civil judicial powers have been conferred upon a number of officers known as Judicial Assistants and Munsifs, whose functions are mainly, though not always exclusively, judicial. Similarly, the Civil and Sessions Judge of Pesháwar and certain Additional Commissioners have been invested with the judicial powers of Commissioners under Act XVII of 1877. It is now proposed to relieve Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, as a rule, of civil judicial functions, though they will continue to exercise jurisdiction in certain classes of cases which will be transferred from the Civil to the Revenue Courts, and they may also be invested with civil judicial powers where the judicial work is so light as not to require the creation of special Courts. Commissioners will likewise be, as a rule, relieved of the functions as Sessions Judges which now devolve upon them, but this can be done under the Criminal Procedure Code, without special legislation.

4. Special designations which do not imply the exercise of executive functions are accordingly given to the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court (section 4).

5. With a view to strengthen the Courts of appeal in order to admit of greater finality being given to appellate decisions, it is proposed that the Court immediately subordinate to the Chief Court should ordinarily consist of two Judges, and that, while one of these Judges may be enabled by rule to exercise certain of the powers of the Court, a single Judge should not have power in the exercise of his appellate jurisdiction to reverse any order other than an interlocutory order passed by any Court.

6. Power is also taken (in section 7) to appoint the Commissioner of a Division to be one of the Judges of a Divisional Court in addition to his other duties, as it is in contemplation to establish one of the Divisional Courts at Derá Ismáíl Khán, and only one Judge will be available for that Court unless the Commissioner of the Deráját Division is appointed as one of the Judges.

7. The appointment of Assistant Judges and Subordinate Judges of the first class by the Local Government, and of Subordinate Judges of the second, third and fourth classes, corresponding to the present Munsifs, by the Chief Court, subject to rules to be made by the Local Government, is provided for by section 9. The Court of the Assistant Judge will replace the Court of the Deputy Commissioner or Judicial Assistant under the present law, and no provision has hitherto been made by law as to the authority by which Munsifs may be appointed or removed.

8. The other differences between Chapter II of the Bill and the corresponding chapter of Act XVII of 1877 follow upon those which have been already described.

9. The third chapter, which provides for the jurisdiction and powers of the Chief Court, only differs from the corresponding chapter of Act XVII of 1877 in that section 19, relating to the transfer of suits, is assimilated to section 25 of the Civil Procedure Code; section 21 is modified so as to enable the Chief Court to make rules for the exercise by one or more of the Judges of a Divisional Court of the powers of that Court, except as regards the reversal of decrees, sentences or decisions of any Court, to provide by rule for the constitution of a full bench of the Chief Court, and to delegate to one of its Judges the power of determining what Judges shall sit alone or as a bench of the Court, and power is also taken to enable a single Judge of the Chief Court or of a Divisional Court to reverse an interlocutory order; sections 31 and 32 replace the reference in section 29 of the present Act to sections 633 and 637 of the Civil Procedure Code, and add what is necessary of sections 638 and 639 of that Code; and section 33 provides for the delivery of the judgments of a bench of Judges by any Judge who was a member of that bench, in accordance with existing practice, and with the analogy of section 199 of the Civil Procedure Code.

10. Chapter IV relates to the jurisdiction and powers of Courts subordinate to the Chief Court. The Divisional Court is declared to be the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, but the Local Government is enabled to empower any Assistant Judge or Deputy Commissioner with the powers of an Assistant Judge to exercise any of the powers of a District Court, so as to obviate the inconvenience of unduly limiting the number of Courts which can exercise jurisdiction under certain laws, e. g., Acts XL of 1858, XXVII of 1860 and IX of 1861.

11. While the jurisdiction of the Divisional Court and of the Court of the Assistant Judge is unlimited as respects the value or amount in litigation, thus corresponding with the jurisdiction now exercised by Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, that of the Subordinate Judge of the first class is limited to Rs. 5,000 instead of Rs. 10,000, which is the limit of the present jurisdiction of an Assistant Commissioner with full powers, and that of other Subordinate Judges may extend either to Rs. 100, to Rs. 500 or to Rs. 1,000.

12. In section 41 power is taken to invest Assistant Judges or Subordinate Judges with the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court Judge for the trial of suits cognizable by a Small Cause Court within certain limits of value or amount.

13. The other changes in Chapter IV are those which are rendered necessary by the alterations of the law already described.

14. Chapter V relates to appellate jurisdiction in civil cases. It embodies the modifications proposed in the appellate system with the view of restricting the right of appeal so far as it is considered that the improved organization of the Courts will admit of this. The second appeals allowed by the Code of Civil Procedure, and the further appeals allowed by the present Panjáb Courts Act are abolished, and the decisions of appellate Courts are made final, except that the Judges of a Divisional Court are enabled, when they differ as to the judgment which should be passed, or when some question of law or custom or of general interest is involved, if they think the case of sufficient importance to justify further appeal, to grant a certificate permitting a further appeal to the Chief Court.

15. Appeals to Assistant Judges are confined to suits not above Rs. 500 in value, either of the Small Cause Court class or of any other class which the Chief Court, with the sanction of the Local Government, may determine to put upon the same footing, and appeals in suits above Rs. 5,000 in value, as well as appeals from decrees of the Divisional Court, will, when allowed by law, lie to the Chief Court, all other appeals allowed by law lying to the Divisional Court.

16. Section 47, relating to the transfer of appeals, has been modified to the same extent as section 19.

17. Chapter VI, which deals with Revenue Courts, is new, having been rendered necessary by the transfer of certain classes of suits enumerated in section 48 from the Civil to the Revenue Courts. It provides for the jurisdiction and powers of these Courts, for their procedure, for appeals from their decisions, for the revisional jurisdiction of the Financial Commissioner, and the controlling powers of the Financial Commissioner, Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner, respectively, for the transfer of suits and appeals, and for the distribution of business between Financial Commissioners when more than one such officer is appointed, the sanction which has been given by the Secretary of State to the appointment of a second Financial Commissioner rendering a provision of this nature necessary. Sections 64 and 65 correspond with sections 49 and 50 of the present Act, enabling the Local Government to confer judicial powers upon Settlement-officers, the only addition being that the officer may be so empowered either by name or in virtue of his office.

18. Chapter VII contains miscellaneous and supplementary provisions, some of which correspond with sections 46 to 48 of the present Act. Of the others, section 69 provides that any Judge of the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Judge throughout its jurisdiction for the purposes of the Indian Divorce Act; section 70 provides for vacations; and section 71 for proceedings pending when this Bill becomes law; section 72 interprets certain expressions in sections 617 and 622 of the Civil Procedure Code so as to prevent doubt as to the cases in which the revisional jurisdiction of the Chief Court may be exercised; section 73 amends the Court-fees Act so that the fee leviable on a memorandum of appeal, when it exceeds the fee leviable on a petition to the Chief Court, may be charged on an application to it for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under section 622 of the Civil Procedure Code; and section 74 enables the Court in certain cases to grant a certificate authorizing the refund of the fee so charged.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Government House, Simla, on Wednesday, the 25th June, 1884.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, K.G., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., presiding.

His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, G.C.B., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble J. Gibbs, C.S.I., C.I.E.

Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble T. F. Wilson, C.B., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble C. P. Ilbert, C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Sir S. C. Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble T. C. Hope, C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Sir A. Colvin, K.C.M.G., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble D. G. Barkley.

KHOJÁ SUCCESSION BILL, 1884.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend and define the law of Testamentary and Intestate Succession to Khojás. He said:—

"The Khojás are a small sect who were converted from Hinduism to Muhammadanism about 400 years ago, but who notwithstanding their conversion still retain to a great extent their Hindu laws and usages. They are, as a rule, traders by occupation, and they are to be found in almost all the trading communities of Western India, and on the seaboard of the Indian Ocean,—not only in British India but in such places as Cutch, Muscat and Zanzibar. It appeared, from some enquiries made in a lawsuit heard about 18 years ago, that there were then about 2,800 Khojá houses or families in Sindh, about 5,000, in Kathiawar, a considerable number (the precise number is not stated) in Cutch and Gúzerat, 450 in Zanzibar, 400 in Muscat, and about 1,400 in Bombay and the immediate neighbourhood. There are Sunni Khojás and Shiá Khojás, but the great majority of them are Shias, of the particular variety known as Shia Imámí Ismailís, who owe spiritual allegiance to the hereditary Imáms of the Ismailís. The representative of these hereditary Imáms was, at the time when the present legislation was first contemplated, and until quite recently, a Persian nobleman, known as His Highness Aghá Khán, a man of romantic history and romantic lineage, claiming descent in direct line from Alí, the Vicar of God, through the seventh and (according to the Ismailí creed) the last of what are called the revealed Imáms—Ismail, the son of Jaffir Sadiq. This nobleman, after a series of adventures in his own country, in the course of which he seems to have seized and held for some time the Province of Kirman, fled to Sindh and there raised a body of light horse which was of some service to General Nott and General England during the first Afghan war (in the years 1841 and 1842), and afterwards to Sir Charles Napier in his conquest of Sindh. In 1845 he went to Bombay, and there spent, with one short exception, the remainder of his days, living in considerable state and enjoying the homage of his spiritual followers. This homage appears to have been of some substantial value, for it is stated that his yearly income, derived from his votaries in various parts of India, and, it is said, in some remote parts of Asia, averaged about £10,000 sterling. The greater part of this income is said to have been spent by his late Highness in horse-racing, a pursuit of which he was for some time one of the most munificent patrons in Bombay. His Highness Ágha Khán died last year, and has been succeeded in the Imámship by his son, who is known as His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh. So much for the spiritual head of the Shia Khojás, whose peculiar relation to his adherents has a very intimate bearing on some of the provisions of the Bill which I am asking leave to introduce.

"Now, the Khojás are, as I have said, subject partly to the Hindu and partly to the Muhammadan law, and they retain the former law to such an extent in matters connected with property and succession that it is presumed to apply to them until the contrary is proved. The extent to which it does apply to them has always been a matter of considerable doubt, and, as they are a wealthy community, the doubts on the subject have given rise to a great deal of litigation, insomuch that the Khojás occupy a space in the reports of the Bombay High Court quite disproportionate to their numbers.

"Among the suits relating to them are three of especial importance—one decided by Sir Erskine Perry in 1847 and reported by him in his volume of Oriental cases; another decided in 1866, after a hearing of 21 days, by Sir Joseph Arnould, whose elaborate and most interesting judgment is our principal source of information about the Khojás; and a third, decided in 1875, by Sir Michael Westropp, after a hearing which occupied the Lower Court for twenty-four days, and the Appellate Court for four days. In this last case Sir Michael Westropp, the then Chief Justice, after describing the state of the law, went on to remark:—

'It is, however, evident that the Khojás are not as firmly bound in matters of succession and inheritance by the Hindu law as Muhammadans proper are by the Muhammadan law and the Hindus by the Hindu law, and hence it is that it would not be reasonable to require such stringent proof of a custom of inheritance amongst them differing from ordinary Hindu law as from a Hindu.

'Now, it is manifest that such a state of the law must greatly encourage litigation, and we cannot help thinking that it would be most desirable that the Government should take steps, as was done in the case of the Párs'is, to ascertain the views of the majority of the community on the subject of succession, and should then pass an enactment giving effect to those views. Unanimity, of course, could not be expected, but the rules which were found generally to prevail might be made law; and though the religious differences existing among members of the Khojá caste might create some difficulty, it would not, we think, be insuperable.'

"Sir Richard Temple's Government acted on this suggestion and appointed a Commission, of which Mr. Justice Maxwell Melvill, of the Bombay High Court, was President, and of which the other members were His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh and three other gentlemen representing the Shia Khojás, one gentleman representing the Sunni Khojás, and Mr. Spencer, then Acting First Judge of the Small Cause Court at Bombay.

"The Commission took the greatest pains to ascertain the customs and views of the Khojá sect in the Presidency of Bombay and other parts of the country, and after much consideration and discussion agreed on a draft Bill, subject to a dissent on certain specific points which was signed by His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh and by one only of the three other members representing the Shia division. This Bill was approved by the Government of Bombay and sent up to the Government of India, and it constitutes the basis of the Bill which I am now asking leave to introduce. It raised several difficult questions, and it has been the subject of a great deal of correspondence between the Government of India and the Government of Bombay—a correspondence which I found in active progress when I came out here, and which continued until the latter end of last year.

"I do not propose to trouble the Council with the details of the Bill, but to confine myself to the more important of the questions of principle which it raises, and to explain the course which it is proposed to take with respect to each of those questions and the reasons for adopting that course.

"The first of these questions is raised by a section of the Bill, which defines the application of the measure—a matter which was not clearly provided for in the Bill prepared by the Commission. The section proposes to enact that the property, whether moveable or immoveable, in British India of a Khojá dying after a specified day shall be regulated by the rules contained in the Act wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. If you compare this provision with the corresponding section of the Indian Succession Act, you will find that, whereas it coincides with it as respects immoveable property, it involves an important deviation from it as respects moveable property; for section 5 of the Indian Succession Act says:—

'Succession to the immoveable property in British India of a person deceased is regulated by the law of British India wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. Succession to the moveable property of a person deceased is regulated by the law of the country in which he had his domicile at the time of his death.'

"Whereas the Bill proposes to disregard domicile in the case of moveable as well as in the case of immoveable property. Now, the rule embodied in the Indian Succession Act is not only the rule of one of the most important of our Codes, but also, as a rule of what is called private international law, has obtained general acceptance among the civilized nations of the West; and we should not be justified in departing from it unless there appeared to be good reason for supposing that it is not suitable to the peculiar circumstances of the Khojás. I think that there are such reasons.

"In determining the question by which rule the succession to moveable property should be regulated, the choice is practically between the law of the domicile of the deceased and the law of the situs of the assets; that is to say, the law of the place where the man had his home and the law of the place where he left his property. Western nations have generally agreed to apply to succession to moveable property the former rule—the rule of domicile—and not the latter. The objections urged against applying the law of the situs to moveable property are chiefly that a man's moveables are apt to be scattered over many jurisdictions each of which has a readily ascertainable law of its own; that accordingly, if the law of the situs is applied to them, his estate will be broken up into many fragments, all governed by different laws; that a man's moveables may change their place; that the most important of them—goods employed in commerce—are constantly changing their place; that accordingly, if the law of the situs is applied, it will be impossible to foresee the particular law under which they will fall on his death; and, lastly, that the rule of the law of situs does not clearly provide for the portion of the assets which consists of debts or other obligations existing in favour of the deceased. Various theoretical reasons have also been adduced for preferring the law of the domicile, but it is probably practical considerations of the kinds to which I have referred that have turned the scale in its favour.

"Now, do these considerations apply to the case of Khojás dying domiciled out of British India and leaving moveable property in British India? The places out of British India in which Khojás are principally found are, as I have said, such places as Cutch, Zanzibar and Muscat. Now, at a place like Zanzibar there is nothing that can be called a territorial law of succession, and the Courts would probably try to apply the personal law of the deceased, which in the case of the Khojá is ex hypothesi unsettled and unascertainable. Thus, there would be, in such a case, no local law of the situs which would conflict with the law applying to the assets in British India, and no law of the domicile to which recourse could be had; so that to give the law of the domicile a preference over British Indian law would be to substitute a congeries of indefinite and half established customs for a law to the application of which no reasonable objection could be made. This being so, the balance of convenience would appear to be, in the case of the Khojás, against allowing the law of the domicile to prevail as to British Indian assets. And a further advantage of adopting the other rule would probably be that, as Consular Courts at Zanzibar and elsewhere would naturally apply British Indian law, the rule would probably come in course of time to be adopted as a personal law applicable to Khojás in all foreign States in this part of the world.

very exclusive community, and look with great disfavour on marriages with any person outside their body. None of them deny—at least so we are informed by the president of the Commission—that the marriage of a male Khojá to a female who is not a Khojá is perfectly valid if within the limits allowed by Muhammadan law. But at the same time they are anxious to go as far as they can in the direction of discouraging marriages of this kind. Accordingly, all the Khojá members of the Commission agreed that only a Khojá widow should be entitled to inherit from her husband; but the Sunni Khojás, who in this matter appear to hold views of a slightly more liberal shade than their brethren of the Shia division, were willing that the sons of a non-Khojá's wife should take some share in the inheritance. Eventually the Commission agreed upon what they called a compromise. They confined to a Khojá widow the rights of a widow in her husband's inheritance, but they invented a term—'alien son'—which they defined as meaning 'the male offspring of a male Khojá and of a female, not being a Khoja, legally married according to the rules of Muhammadan law in force in the sect to which the Khojá in question belongs.' But when you came to see what the rights of the alien son were to be in the inheritance, it turned out that he had no rights at all, and that he was in all respects, except the mere name, treated as if he were illegitimate. I do not refer to daughters, because daughters were placed on an entirely different footing with respect to inheritance. This so-called compromise approved itself not only to the Commission but to the Bombay Government; but with all deference to those high authorities it appears to me that, so far from being a compromise, it was a complete surrender of the principle at stake. The practical effect of the proposals of the Commission would be to place the non-Khojá widow for all the purposes of the Bill on the same footing as a concubine, and the children of a non-Khojá wife on the same footing as bastards; and there is not much difference between doing this and declaring the marriage invalid.

"Now, there are to my mind serious objections on principle to the acceptance of this proposal. Although in legislation of this kind, which is avowedly an attempt to define and make more precise certain usages and customs, we are bound to follow as closely as we can the usages and feelings of those for whom we are legislating, yet there are limits to the distance which we are justified in going in this direction, and the legislature cannot, in my opinion, go as far as the Courts of law. There are, as we all know, certain customs and usages which a Court of law declines, and very properly declines, to enforce on the ground that they are immoral and contrary to public policy. But there are also customs which a Court of law might feel itself bound to recognise or even to enforce, but which nevertheless the legislature would hesitate to impress with the seal of its authority. It is one thing to recognise a rule as existing, but quite another to give it the imprimatur of the legislature as a rule which ought to exist. Under what circumstances and to what extent the legislature would be justified in interfering to set aside restrictions on marriage based on religious or caste differences is a question on which I need not enter, and about which there would probably be some difference of opinion. But on one point I think we should be all agreed, and that is that we should not interfere by legislation to enforce such restrictions. At least I for one would never be a party to any legislation which should throw a doubt on the validity of mixed marriages.

"But the argument against adopting the proposals of the Commission goes further than this; for although the majority of Khojás look with disapproval on marriages of this kind, and possibly regard them as sinful,—opinions with which we have not the slightest wish to interfere,—yet, as I have said, it does not appear to have been even asserted that such marriages are by existing Khojá law or custom invalid. We are not now proposing to pass a law defining or amending the law of marriage among Khojás; and in a Bill which is not dealing specifically with the subject of marriage it would be manifestly improper to throw doubt by a side wind on the validity of certain marriages which, according to existing law and usage, are perfectly valid.

"Accordingly, in the Bill which I am asking leave to introduce you will find no distinction made between Khojá widows and non-Khojá widows, and no definition of an 'alien son.' The Bill defines 'son' to be a legitimate son, and leaves 'widow' undefined, and then proceeds to declare the rights of sons and widows, trusting to the Courts to decide as they will on principles lying outside the law of succession who are legally entitled to the status of sons and widows.

"Whilst I am on the subject of definitions, I may mention that I have omitted the definition of 'undivided family,' which was to be found in the Commission's Bill. The institution of the undivided family appears to prevail among the Khojás, and to resemble, but to be by no means identical with, the undivided family of Hindu law. Now, he would be a bold man who would attempt to define precisely and exhaustively the characteristics of the Hindu undivided family, but it would require still greater boldness to attempt to define the undivided family with a difference which is to be found among the Khojás. It is true that the Commission had attempted such a definition, but when the matter came to be examined it was found that the definition would not hold water. Under these circumstances, we thought it the more prudent course to leave the term undefined.

"The next point on which the Bill departs from the recommendation of the Commission relates to the succession of remote relations to the inheritance of a person who dies intestate. The Commission's Bill admitted to the succession only those of the 'more distant relatives' of the intestate who were on the father's side, and confined it to such of them as are within the seventh degree of kindred. On failure of this limited class of distant kindred, section 42 gave the property 'to the jamát of that sect of the Khojás to which the intestate belonged at the time of his death, to be held and applied according to to the customs of the said jamát.' Even this did not satisfy the two dissenting members of the Commission and some of the other adherents of His Highness Ághá Khán, who, as Imám, was the person chiefly interested in the succession of the jamát. They contended that the jamát should come in after the nearer relations. This point was very carefully considered by the Government of India in consultation with the Bombay Government, and the conclusion they came to was that it was impossible to exclude the heirs of deceased persons in favour of any such institution as a 'jamát' or any person or authority representing such an institution. Of course, it is quite open to any Khojá who desires that his property should be devoted to any charitable or religious purpose, or should be enjoyed by any spiritual person for whom he entertains a special veneration, to dispose of his property by will, or otherwise in accordance with law; but if he dies intestate, it would be contrary to all established principles to enact that his property should devolve otherwise than upon his relatives.

"Apart from this objection on the ground of principle, there appear to be practical objections to the proposal as formulated by the Commission. You ask what a jamát is. It appears from Sir Joseph Arnould's judgment in one of the cases to which I have referred that it is an assembly in council of all the adult male members of the Khojá community of the place. Now, of course, it is obvious that doubts might arise as to the constitution of a jamát with respect to the religious belief, the residence of the deceased, his attendance at the jamát, and on other similar matters. Then there might be doubts as to who were the other persons actually belonging to the jamát to which the deceased belonged so as to be entitled to the property; and further there might be doubts as to how the property of a deceased intestate Khojá was to be held and the objects to which it was to be applied. It is quite true that the Bill prepared by the Commission proposed to say that the property was to be held and applied according to the customs of the jamát; but if you refer to Sir Joseph Arnould's judgment, you will find that, as a matter of fact, there are no customs at all to look to." (The Hon'ble MR. GIBBS.—"Excepting as to dinners, I think.)" "There may possibly be customs as to dinners, but the fact appears to be that, though a jamát collects large sums of money through its officers, it only does so on behalf of the Imám; the money collected is passed on to him, and if the jamát wants any portion of it for its own purposes, such as the dinners to which Mr. Gibbs has referred, or the keeping up of the jamát-khánd (the council-room or guildhall of the community), it can procure it only as a grant from the Imám. Practically, therefore, to give the money to the jamát is to give it to the Imám, and it appears to be absolutely in the discretion of the Imám to spend the money as he pleases; and it appears from the judgment of Sir Joseph Arnould that the late Imám used to devote the money derived from this source to such purposes as horse-racing. Practically, therefore, if you give the succession to the jamát, it is the same thing as giving succession to the Imám, and the property may be devoted by him to such purposes as he thinks fit, whether religious or secular. It has been said that there is practically no difficulty in ascertaining how the money ought to be spent, but it is quite clear that we cannot legislate on a basis such as this. We should have to define the constitution of the jamát, and we should have to define carefully how money belonging to the jamát should be applied, and it would be impossible to place the property at the absolute disposal of any individual, in whatever degree of veneration he might be held. That being so, we have excluded the jamát from the succession, and the Bill extends the succession to relatives of the intestate, both on the father's and on the mother's side, without limit of degree, and then goes on to apply the ordinary rule which makes the Crown the ultimate heir in the very rare occasions in which the owner of property dies and leaves no person entitled to succeed under the ordinary provisions of law.

"One of the most difficult parts of the Bill—to pass to another subject—was that which relates to the rights and interests of a widow or mother taking by succession in cases where there are in existence certain male relations entitled to the inheritance subject to her rights. The interest of a Khojá female succeeding under these circumstances resembles the well-known estate of the Hindu widow, but with very important differences, some of which are not easy to understand or explain. The provisions of the Bill on this subject have been worked out with very great care by Mr. Fitzpatrick, who has devoted an immense deal of trouble to the Bill, and are merely a development, with the requisite amplifications and the additions of the necessary machinery, of the proposals formulated by the Commission. On one point we have departed, not indeed from the substance, but from the language, of the Bill prepared by the Commission. They proposed to call the widow's interest a life-estate, and to describe those who came after her as 'reversioners.' But terms like these, borrowed from the highly technical and artificial nomenclature of English law, are always apt to suggest false analogies when applied to Hindu legal conceptions, and we thought it better to discard them. For the purpose of describing the position of the Khojá female taking the limited estate which is given her under this Bill, we have suggested the term 'restricted owner.' The chief advantage of this term is that it has not already any technical meaning, but it is quite possible that some one may be able to suggest some more appropriate phrase, and, if so, we shall be only too glad to adopt it. The rights and liabilities of this restricted owner are carefully defined in the Bill; but I will not dwell on them now, because they are of a very technical character and will be found fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. As to the power of alienation which should be given to a widow or mother taking by succession, there was not a complete agreement among the members of the Commission. His Highness Aghá Alí Sháh and some of his adherents were anxious to give her somewhat larger powers of alienation for religious purposes; but on this point the Government of India, after hearing the arguments adduced on both sides, came to the conclusion that they ought to support the views of the majority of the Commission. So much as to intestate succession.

"In dealing with the wills of Khojás, the Bill, following generally the lines of the Hindu Wills Act, proposes to apply to them certain sections of the Indian Succession Act with modifications; but there are difficulties, with which some of us are familiar, connected with the construction of the Hindu Wills Act, which made it necessary to depart in some points from the form and language of that measure. The difficulties to which I refer are these. The Succession Act contains provisions which give or assume the existence of a power of disposition by will in favour of unborn persons. The Hindu Wills Act applies these provisions to certain Hindus, but qualifies their application by the proviso that nothing in the Act is to authorize a Hindu to create in property any interest which he could not previously have created, that is to say, could not have created before the passing of the Hindu Wills Act. Now, in the famous Tagore case, which was pending when the Hindu Wills Act was passed and was decided shortly afterwards, the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council held that a Hindu could not under his own law, as unaffected by our legislation, make any disposition by will in favour of an unborn person; and the High Court at Calcutta, in a judgment delivered a short time ago, and against which no appeal has, so far as I know, been lodged, have decided that, under the proviso in the Hindu Wills Act, when read in connection with the decision of the Judicial Committee in the Tagore case, a Hindu has no power to make a disposition by will in favour of an unborn person, notwithstanding the incorporation in the Hindu Wills Act of certain sections which imply the existence of such a power; that is to say, they have held that the power of a Hindu to leave property by will to an unborn person is precisely the same as it was before the Hindu Wills Act was passed; in other words, that he has no such power at all. But the Judges made some strong remarks as to the inconsistency between the language of the incorporating Act and the language of the sections which it incorporated. After those remarks it was quite impossible to take the Hindu Wills Act as a precise model for legislation in the present case, and, practically, two courses lay open to us, either to give Khojás the same power of disposition in favour of unborn persons as is given by the Indian Succession Act, or else to place them in the same position as Hindus under the Hindu Wills Act are declared by judicial decision to occupy; that is to say, the position of not having any power to make such a disposition by will. It was clear that the question as to which of these two courses should be adopted stood on grounds altogether independent of those on which the perpetuity question among Hindus had been discussed; for it must be borne in mind that the Khojás are not Hindus, although they have in certain particulars retained some of their customs and usages. Under these circumstances, the Government of India consulted the Bombay Government as to which of the two courses should be adopted, and intimated in their communication that they would be willing to adopt whichever of the two courses might be considered most expedient having regard to existing practices and usages among the Khojás. The reply which we received was to the effect that, as far as appeared, there was no recognized definite rule among the Khojás bearing on the point; that it was unlikely that any attempt had hitherto been made among them to create by will an interest in favour of an unborn person; that there was thus a tabula rasa; and that it was quite open to the legislature to legislate on the subject as it thought best, without any fear of violating an existing custom or of running counter to any prejudice or desire of the Khojá community. This being so, the Government of India have come to the conclusion that it is not desirable to confer by law on the Khojás any power of testamentary disposition in favour of persons not in existence at the time of the testator's death; and accordingly all portions of the Indian Succession Act which confer or assume the existence of such a power, have, as far as practicable, been omitted from the sections which we have incorporated, and we intend to insert a proviso to the effect that nothing in the portions of that Act made applicable shall confer such a power. It appears to me that, if the question is to be settled by reference to considerations of general expediency apart from any pre-established usage, the balance of convenience is in favour of not superadding to the complications which arise out of Hindu family law the further complications which we all know are apt to arise out of testamentary settlements.

"I may add that, in order to meet the objections which were urged by the Calcutta Judges against the practice of wholesale incorporation by reference, I propose to put in a schedule to the Bill those sections of the Indian Succession Act which are to be incorporated in it, showing precisely the modifications which are to be made in the sections as incorporated.

"These, I think, are the only points in connection with the Bill on which I need touch at the present stage, and I will merely conclude by apologizing for the length to which I have been compelled, by the nature of the subject, to carry my explanations."

His Excellency THE PRESIDENT SAID:— "It is needless that I should say that ample time will be given for the consideration of this Bill by the parties concerned before it is proceeded with in its various stages."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN SALT ACT, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR A. COLVIN introduced the Bill to amend the Indian Salt Act, 1882, and moved that it be circulated for the purpose of eliciting opinion thereon.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR A. COLVIN also moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the local official Gazettes in English and in such other languages as the Local Governments might think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

PANJÁB COURTS BILL, 1884.

The Hon'ble MR. BARKLEY moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the law relating to Courts in the Panjáb. He said :—

"The object of this Bill is to make the changes in the law under which the Panjáb Courts are now constituted, which are required for the purpose of giving effect to the arrangements for the improvement of the judicial agency and the reform of the appellate system, which form part of the scheme for the reorganization of the civil administration in the Panjáb recently sanctioned by the Secretary of State for India on the recommendation of Your Lordship's Government. These changes are so numerous that the most convenient mode of carrying them out appears to be to repeal the Panjáb Courts Act of 1877 and include the whole of the law on the subject, except so far as it is to be found in the Criminal Procedure Code, in the Bill which I have now the honour to ask leave to introduce.

"The arrangements proposed involve a further step in the direction of relieving from judicial duties officers employed in the revenue and general administration of the Province. When the Panjáb Administration was organized, thirty-five years ago, all its officers, from the members of the Board of Administration down to the Tahsíldárs, were invested with civil and criminal jurisdiction in addition to their revenue and executive functions, and there can be no doubt that this was the arrangement best suited to the earlier days of the administration of a new province, and that it was attended with many advantages so long as it was possible to maintain it. But it was almost inevitable, that, in the administration of an extensive province like the Panjáb, some division of labour should become necessary. The growth of population, the extension of agriculture, the development of trade, the steady increase of litigation, the introduction of a stricter system of law and procedure, and the increasing demands of the central administration upon local officers, have all added to the amount of work to be done, while the simplicity of system which enabled a single officer to control the administration of a district or division in all departments has disappeared as departments have been multiplied. It has therefore become necessary from time to time to increase the number of officers, and to arrange for the distribution of work between them. "When the Board of Administration was dissolved, the Chief Commissioner was relieved of judicial functions by the appointment of a Judicial and a Financial Commissioner, of whom the former became the head of the Judicial Department. The duties of the Judicial Commissioner, however, were by no means purely judicial. He had the control of important branches of the administration, such as the police and the public works of the province, and it was not until the Chief Court took the place of the Judicial Commissioner, early in 1866, that any Court, except a few Small Cause Courts, could be said to be presided over by officers exclusively engaged in the judicial administration.

"In 1875, the increasing pressure of work made it necessary, in order to give Deputy Commissioners and Tahsíldárs time for their other duties, to relieve them, in a large measure, of civil judicial work. This was done, under Act XIV of 1875, by the appointment of a number of special officers, known as Judicial Assistants and Munsifs, upon whom the powers of a Deputy Commissioner and of a Tahsíldár were respectively conferred, and these officers have been mainly, though not always exclusively, employed in the discharge of judicial functions. The Commissioner of Pesháwar has also been practically relieved of his judicial duties by the appointment of a Civil and Sessions

Judge, and some other Commissioners have been partially relieved of judicial work by the appointment of two Additional Commissioners.

"It has now become necessary to make further provision for the judicial duties at present performed by Commissioners and Additional Commissioners and by the Civil and Sessions Judge of Peshâwar, and as the number of appeals to the Chief Court is annually increasing and has for several years been greatly in excess of what three Judges—the permanent strength of the Court—could dispose of, it has been thought advisable to reduce the number by giving greater finality to the decisions of Courts subordinate to the Chief Court. It is, therefore, now proposed to constitute seven Divisional Courts, consisting ordinarily of two Judges each, which will take the place of the Commissioners' Courts and of that of the Civil and Sessions Judge of Peshâwar, and at the same time to make considerable alterations in the law regarding the right of appeal in civil suits. The number of Judges sanctioned for these Divisional Courts being thirteen, it is proposed, in order to complete the seven Courts, to take power to appoint the Commissioner of a Division to be one of the Judges; but, unless where this is done, Commissioners will be relieved of the judicial duties now devolving upon them. It is, however, proposed to transfer certain classes of suits relating to land, which can be better disposed of by Revenue-officers than by purely judicial officers, from the Civil to the Revenue Courts, and in these cases Commissioners will still exercise appellate jurisdiction. There is no doubt that, in consequence of the proposed changes, the work of Commissioners will be greatly reduced, and this renders possible a reduction in the number of Commissioners east of the Indus, as well as the abolition of the appointments of the Civil and Sessions Judge of Peshâwar and the Additional Commissioners.

"It is proposed to empower the Chief Court to make rules for the exercise of the powers of the Divisional Court by one of the Judges of that Court, subject to the proviso that no order other than an interlocutory order, and no decree, sentence or decision of any Court, should be reversed by any Judge sitting alone. The Chief Court at present possesses an analogous power to make rules for the exercise of its own powers by one or more of its Judges.

"The reason for proposing that these Courts should consist of two Judges was that it was considered that this would strengthen them for appellate purposes and allow of finality being given to their decisions passed in appeal. There is of course the drawback that more Judges will be required to do the same work, and this may make it more difficult to fill up the appointments properly at first. But the greater number of appointments of this class may induce more officers to prepare themselves to fill them; and, where two Judges concur in reversing or modifying the decision of a subordinate Court, there will be less reason for allowing a further appeal than where a single Judge of appeal has come to a different decision from that of the first Court on the same evidence.

"For the Court of the Deputy Commissioner, again, it is proposed to substitute the Court of the Assistant Judge, and to relieve Deputy Commissioners of their civil judicial functions, except in a few of the lightest districts, where the Deputy Commissioner may be empowered to act as Assistant Judge in addition to his other duties.

"It is provided that the new Divisional Court should be the District Court or principal Court of original civil jurisdiction within its division, power being reserved to Government to confer all or any of the powers of a District Court upon an Assistant Judge, in order to provide for the disposal of certain classes of cases which are only cognizable by a District Court.

"The jurisdiction of the Divisional Court and of the Assistant Judge in original civil suits will, like that of the Deputy Commissioner at present, be unlimited as respects the value or amount in litigation, and power is taken to give certain Subordinate Judges jurisdiction extending to Rs. 5,000, to take the place of the officers now exercising the full powers of an Assistant Commissioner, whose jurisdiction extends to Rs. 10,000. All other officers empowered to decide civil suits, including the Munsifs, will be invested with the powers of a Subordinate Judge of the second, third or fourth class, that is, with powers to decide suits the amount or value of which extends to Rs. 1,000, Rs. 500 or Rs. 100, respectively.

"Power is also taken to invest Assistant Judges and Subordinate Judges with certain Small Cause Court jurisdiction, as may now be done in Bengal, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, under the corresponding Acts applicable to those provinces.

"The changes made by the Bill in the appellate system are mainly directed to reducing the number of appeals at present allowed. The second appeal on a question of law or custom now allowed by the Civil Procedure Code in suits other than those which would be cognizable in a Small Cause Court, and the further appeal on the whole case, when an Appellate Court has reversed or modified the decree of a Court of original jurisdiction, which is permitted by sections 38 and 39 of the Panjáb Courts' Act of 1877, are both taken away, and the decisions of Appellate Courts are made final, except that the Judges of a Divisional Court are enabled, when they differ as to the judgment which should be passed on an appeal, or when some question of law or custom or general interest is involved, to grant a certificate permitting a further appeal to the Chief Court, if they think the case of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal. The abolition of second appeals takes away a great part of the appellate work for disposal by the Chief Court, while the abolition of further appeals, with the above exception, will greatly relieve the Divisional Courts.

"To admit of finality being given, as far as possible, to appellate decisions, appeals to Assistant Judges are confined to suits not above Rs. 500 in value, either of the Small Cause Court class, or of any other class which the Chief Court, with the sanction of the Local Government, may determine to put on the same footing for purposes of appeal; and appeals in suits above Rs. 5,000 in value, as well as appeals in any other suits decided by the Divisional Court, are declared to lie to the Chief Court, while all other appeals allowed by law will lie to the Divisional Court. A few first appeals now cognizable by Commissioners and all further appeals hereafter to be allowed will thus lie to the Chief Court, while appeals in some cases now cognizable by Deputy Commissioners will lie to the Divisional Court, which will be relieved of all further appeals and a few first appeals.

"It being proposed, as already mentioned, to transfer the jurisdiction in certain classes of suits relating to land to the Revenue Courts, a chapter has been added to the Bill making these cases cognizable by the Revenue instead of by the Civil Courts, and containing other provisions rendered necessary by the transfer. Most of these classes are similar to those made cognizable by Revenue Courts by section 93 of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act, 1881; and, while appellate jurisdiction is not given, as in that Act, to the Civil Courts of appeal, but to the superior Revenue-authorities, thus entirely relieving the Civil Courts of a class of cases which Revenue-officers are likely to be in a better position to dispose of satisfactorily, the provisions of the Bill as to the powers of Revenue Courts and as to the cases in which first and further appeals should lie are in part based on the model furnished by that Act. This part of the Bill has undergone less discussion than the chapters relating to the Civil Courts, but it would be difficult to adapt the provisions of the Bill as to appeal in civil suits to the Revenue Courts, which will be differently constituted from the Civil Courts; and it is at the same time not desirable to continue the system of second appeals allowed by the Civil Procedure Code, or to allow further appeals to the same extent to which these are now permitted by the Panjáb Courts' Act. The provisions now proposed will restrict further appeals to a few of the more important classes of cases, the first appeal in which will lie to Commissioners and the further appeal to the Financial Commissioner.

"Power is taken for the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to make rules regulating the procedure of the Revenue Courts in the cases thus transferred to their jurisdiction, it being at the same time provided that, until such rules are made, these Courts should be guided by certain parts of the Civil Procedure Code, and that the Financial Commissioner should be deemed to be the High Court within the meaning of that Code.

"As sanction has been given to the appointment of a second Financial Commissioner, provision is also made for the distribution of business between Financial Commissioners, and power is given to one Financial Commissioner to refer any question arising in an appeal pending before him to the other for his opinion thereupon.

"Owing to the greater finality given to appellate decisions by the provisions of this Bill, the revisional jurisdiction of the Chief Court under the Civil Procedure Code, sections 617 and 622, is certain to be more largely resorted to than hitherto, and some supplementary sections have, therefore, been added to the Bill, interpreting certain expressions to be found in those sections, and increasing the fee leviable on an application to the Chief Court under section 622 for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction, but empowering the Court to direct the refund of this fee when the application has been successful, if it thinks proper to do so.

"Other minor modifications of the law will be found to be sufficiently explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons. The only one of these which need be mentioned now is that, in section 21, interlocutory orders are excepted from the proviso declaring that a single Judge of the Chief Court, in the exercise of his appellate jurisdiction, may not reverse the order of any Court; and the Chief Court is also enabled to provide by rule for the constitution of a full bench of the Court, and to delegate to one of its Judges the power of determining what Judges shall sit alone or as a bench of the Court. This is necessary, as, although the present Panjáb Courts' Act provides for the disposal of certain cases by a full bench, it contains no explanation of this expression, and a doubt has therefore arisen whether a full bench can be constituted when, from any cause, it is not possible for all the Judges for the time being appointed to the Court to be present. Thus, if a Judge is absent on leave and no successor has been appointed, as happened on two occasions last year, or if a Judge is from illness unable to attend Court, it is doubtful whether, under the present law, a full bench sitting can be held. To remove this difficulty, it is proposed that, when the Chief Court consists of more than three Judges, it may by rule declare what number of Judges, not being less than three, shall constitute a full bench and prescribe the mode of determining what Judges should sit together for the purpose.

"In the High Courts established by Royal Charter, the Chief Justice, under the Act of Parliament providing for the establishment of those Courts (24 & 25 Vic., c. 104, section 14) regulates the sittings of the Judges either alone or as division benches. In the Chief Court, there being no Chief Justice, and no such power being given to one of the Judges by the existing law, the power to regulate the sittings of the Judges resides in the Court as a whole; and, unless this power is conferred by law upon the senior Judge (who is declared to be the Chief Justice within the meaning of the Criminal Procedure Code), the Court should be authorized to delegate the power subject to any rules it may make for its exercise.

"I need only, in conclusion, refer to two other questions which have been discussed in connection with the subject of the present Bill, but with which it does not deal. These are the amendment of the description of the cases cognizable by Small Cause Courts contained in section 6 of Act XI of 1865, and the mode of determining the value of a suit for purposes of jurisdiction, which is, in many cases, very different from its value for the purpose of levying a court-fee on its institution. These questions are as important in other parts of India as in the Panjáb, and can be more appropriately dealt with in connection with the amendment of the general law than in a local Bill; and the former of them, at least, will, it is understood, be taken up separately."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble MR. BARKLEY also introduced the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. BARKLEY then moved that the Bill and Statement of Objects and Reasons be published in the Panjáb Government Gazette in English and in such other languages as the Local Government might think fit.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Council adjourned to Wednesday, the 9th July, 1884.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

HOME DEPARTMENT.

ALTERATION OF CLAUSE 6 OF THE "NOTICE TO PILGRIMS" ATTACHED TO PILGRIM PASSPORTS.

No. $\frac{5}{175-91}$.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Home Department,—(Sanitary), under date Simla, 3rd July 1884.

Read—

Home Department Resolution No. $\frac{4}{198-214}$, dated 12th July 1882.

Telegram from the Secretary of State, dated 20th February 1884.

Telegram to the Secretary of State, dated 22nd February 1884.

Despatch from the Secretary of State, No. 57 (Statistics and Commerce), dated 24th April 1884.

RESOLUTION.

It having been brought to the notice of the Government of India that Clause 6 of the "Notice to Pilgrims," attached to the passport issued under the Resolution cited in the preamble, is liable to be understood as implying that the pilgrim holding the passport is entitled to pecuniary assistance from the British Consul at Jeddah, His Excellency the Governor General in Council is pleased to direct that the Clause be altered as follows :—

"This passport is granted solely for the convenience of the pilgrim. The holder thereof should apply to the British Consul at Jeddah for advice in case of difficulty."

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of the above Resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations and to the several Departments of the Government of India for information and guidance. Also, that it be published in the Gazette of India and in all Local Gazettes for general information. Local Governments should arrange for its translation and publication in the Vernacular Gazettes, and amend the passports issued accordingly.

A. MACKENZIE,
Secretary to the Government of India.

PUBLIC NOTICE.

ALL persons proposing to make a pilgrimage to Mecca are hereby warned that they will be required by the Turkish Government to perform quarantine for at least 10 days on the Island of Camaran before being allowed to go on to Jeddah, during which period the pilgrims will have to provide for all their expenses. They should, therefore, make certain in taking their passages that the steamer starts so as to arrive at Jeddah in time for the Haj, after making due allowance for the detention at Camaran. During the quarantine at Camaran the Turkish Government require the pilgrims to pay certain fees besides arranging for their own provisions, and ships which have evaded quarantine are not allowed to land their pilgrims at Jeddah.

Pilgrims are, therefore, warned that before starting they should see that they have sufficient funds for the expenses of quarantine and of the Haj, and for their journey back to India. The Mahomedan Vice-Consul at Jeddah, Abdur Ruzzak, suggests that each pilgrim should have at least Rs. 300 with him when he leaves India after having paid his passage to Jeddah. No pecuniary assistance can be obtained from the British authorities at Jeddah.

Intending pilgrims should apply to the Protector of Pilgrims, Bombay, and to the Port Officer at other ports for information as to the latest safe date for sailing.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 2nd JULY 1884.

GENERAL REMARKS.—Rain in varying quantities has fallen throughout the Madras Presidency. In Mysore the fall is still insufficient for standing crops, but Coorg continues to receive good rain. Showers have fallen in most districts of the Bombay Presidency, but more is generally wanted everywhere to facilitate kharif sowings. In the Berars and Hyderabad there has been very little rain during the week. The Central India States and Rajputana report rain from most parts, but it was deficient compared with that of the previous week. In the Central Provinces good rain continues to fall and was especially heavy in the eastern districts. Good rain has also fallen in all districts of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, except Farukhabad, Meerut, and Saharanpur, where the weather is close. In the Punjab the fall has been much below that of last week and more rain is much wanted, especially in the south-east. British Burma continues to have heavy rain, and in Assam the fall has been above that of last week. The rains appear to have set in throughout Bengal, and heavy falls are reported from several districts. More rain is however wanted in places to facilitate transplanting operations.

The latest weather report of the Meteorological Department, dated the 3rd instant, states that on the 2nd idem there was no rain over the Deccan, the Carnatic and Ganjam coasts, nor over Rajputana, Sind, or a large portion of Central India, but that in all other places there have been falls of more or less importance.

Agricultural operations are in active progress throughout India and prospects are so far not unfavourable. Harvesting continues in Madras, and the standing crops in that Presidency and in Mysore are generally in fair condition. Rice is being transplanted in Bengal and Assam, and standing crops are in good condition. In Cachar the prospects of tea continue unfavourable; the plants are suffering from blight, and it is expected that the yield of tea will be much below that of last year. Rice sowings have commenced in British Burma.

Cholera and small-pox are generally prevalent throughout the country, but are abating in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjab, Bengal, and British Burma.

Prices are generally stationary, with local fluctuations.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat; the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January, 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow :—

The following duties remained with reference to the expenditure of 1882-83 :—

(1) To receive and pass the Audit Certificates for the expenditure of the abovementioned £156,445.

(2) To receive the account of the Secretary of State of his disposal of the sterling received £1,001,393. (See proceedings of the fourth meeting.)

II

The following estimate of the state of the account for 1883-84 and 1884-85 was laid before the Commissioners :—

FAMINE AND REDUCTION OF DEBT.

Estimate for all India. (Revised to 3rd March 1884.) (Thousands of Rupees.)

The only famine charges provided in the Revised Estimate for 1883-84 are—Bengal 7, North-West Provinces 2, Madras 42, and Bombay 47; total 98.

From the Public Works Estimate we get—

	Revised. 1883-84.	Budget. 1884-85.
Protective Works, Railways	62,59	88,86+25,00
„ „ Irrigation	29,10	31,01
Total ...	91,69	1,44,87

Now the accounts from the beginning have been as follow :—

	1881-82.	1882-83.
32.—Famine	3,48	2,21
33.—Protective Works, Railways	61,46	—12,91
34.— „ „ Irrigation	18,54	26,34
35.—Reduction of Debt	71,52	1,34,36
	1,50,00	1,50,00

In the first year 1881-82 the Commission and the Public Works Department had each their 75,00. Next year the Commission obtained for Famine and Reduction of Debt 1,36,57, or 61,57 in excess of their shares, and the amounts at disposal for 1883-84 were accordingly—

Commission	75,00 — 61,57 = 13,43
Public Works Department	75,00 + 61,57 = 1,36,57

As the Revised Estimates stand, the Public Works are to short-spend 1,36,57 — 91,69 = 44,88 of their share, and this they may add to their next year's grant. They work up in 1883-84, it will be seen, to 1,00,00 + 44,87, instead of to 75,00 + 44,87, as the famine grant for the whole year is to be increased from 1,50,00 to 1,75,00 by the addition of the 25 lakhs given out of North-West Provincial resources.

The following statement therefore shows the balance which will be available for the Commission :—

	Revised. 1883-84.	Budget. 1884-85.
Famine	98	...
Protective Works, Railway	62,59	1,13,86
„ „ Irrigation	29,10	31,01
Reduction of Debt	57,33	30,13
	1,50,00	1,75,00

III

On the question of the disposal of the money credited to the account of the Commission for 1883-84, the Government proposed that, seeing the present difficulty of raising money in India, it should be repaid to the Government Treasury so as to obviate pro tanto the necessity for raising a new debt. The accompanying letter containing the views of the two Commissioners present was accordingly addressed to Mr. Keswick, who was absent from Calcutta. His reply is also attached.

DURGA CHURN LAW,
J. J. J. KESWICK,
E. T. ATKINSON [for J. WESTLAND],
Commissioners for the Reduction of Debt.

No. 358, dated 14th March 1884.

From—J. WESTLAND, Esq., Head Commissioner of Paper Currency,
To—J. J. J. KESWICK, Esq.

Your absence from Calcutta has prevented my laying before you personally the present state of the account of the Commission for Reduction of Debt; but I now forward for your information a statement showing the position of the account as it is estimated to stand at the end of 1883-84.

The papers I send are—

(1) An extract, pages 101 to 104, of the Finance and Revenue Accounts of the Government of India for 1882-83.

(2) An extract showing the Revised Estimate for 1883-84 and the Budget Estimate for 1884-85. From the last you will see that it is probable that the balance to be transferred to credit of the Commission for the Reduction of Debt in 1883-84 is Rs. 57,31,000.

The appropriation of the amount we have now to consider under the terms of the Resolution of 3rd February 1882, of which the material part is as follow :—

"Whether the sum available shall be appropriated to the actual discharge of existing rupee debt or sterling debt, or whether it shall be temporarily invested in Government securities, or whether it shall be retransferred from the Commissioners to the Government Treasury with a view to the avoidance pro tanto of new debt which might otherwise be incurred for the construction of Productive Public Works, is a question which must be considered and determined from year to year, in view of the condition of the money market in India and England, and other circumstances."

Babu Durga Churn Law and myself concur in opinion that the present state of the money market is so entirely unfavourable for borrowing, that the best application of the money would be "to retransfer it to the Government Treasury with a view to the avoidance pro tanto of new debt," as the Commissioners may safely take for granted that the Government will have to borrow, either in sterling or in rupees, a considerable part of the annual requirement for the construction of Productive Public Works, and is not in a position to apply any of the available funds for the cancelment of existing debt.

If you concur in this opinion, I would be much obliged by your permitting me to record this letter and your reply as part of the proceedings of the meeting held in your absence from Calcutta by Babu Durga Churn Law and myself.

No. 359.

Copy forwarded to the Hon'ble Babu Durga Churn Law.

Dated 30th May 1884.

From—J. J. J. KESWICK, Esq.,
To—The Head Commissioner of Paper Currency.

I thank you for sending in response to my letter of yesterday a copy of your No. 358 of 14th March, the original of which, owing to my absence from Calcutta, I have not received.

I note that it is probable that the balance to be transferred to credit of the Commission for the Reduction of Debt in 1883-84 is Rs. 57,31,000, and quite approve of the money being retransferred to the Government Treasury with a view to the avoidance pro tanto of new debt.

ORDER.—Ordered, that these Proceedings be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

The following Corrigendum to the Codes of the Financial Department is published for general information :—

Section 57.

Substitute the following for Clause (i) of this Section and the Note under it :—

The following rules regulate the powers of the Government of India and of Local Governments in sanctioning deputations and temporary appointments, and the rates of deputation allowance :—

(i) An officer is said to be on deputation when he is detached on special temporary duty for the performance of which there is no permanently or temporarily sanctioned appointment. A temporary appointment is an appointment carrying a definite rate of pay and sanctioned for a limited time.

(ii) A temporary appointment, if the cost is Provincial, may be sanctioned by a Local Government without reference to the Government of India, provided the pay of the appointment does not exceed Rs. 3,000 a year. If the cost is Imperial, a temporary appointment requires the sanction of the Government of India; but if the pay of the appointment does not exceed Rs. 3,000 a year, it will be sufficient to include it in the statement of fresh charges submitted to the Government of India, unless it should last for more than a year. In the latter case, a special application must be made for the sanction of the Supreme Government.

(iii) Temporary appointments on more than Rs. 250 a month will be reported to Her Majesty's Secretary of State in the Annual Statement of Increases and Decreases of Expenditure, or separately in each instance, according to the nature of the case.

(iv) An officer may be deputed on special duty by a Local Government without reference to the Government of India, and without limit of time, if the cost of the deputation is Provincial, and if the remuneration granted to the officer is not at a higher rate than Rs. 3,000 a year. An officer may not be deputed on special duty by a Local Government if the cost is Imperial, without the sanction of the Government of India.

(v) An officer, no matter what his salary, may be deputed on special duty by a Local Government for a period not exceeding six months, provided the cost of the deputation is Provincial, and he may be allowed by the Local Government to draw the pay or salary which, but for his deputation, he would have continued to draw either as substantive or officiating. If the duties involve a decided increase of work or responsibility in comparison with the duties of his regular appointment, or require a change of station, the Local Government may in addition allow the officer to draw a deputation allowance at a rate not exceeding one-fifth of salary, subject to a maximum limit of Rs. 10 a day.

If it is expected that the deputation should last for more than six months, or if it does actually last for more than six months, a special application for the sanction of the Government of India must be made.

Deputation allowances are granted independently of any travelling allowance which may be admissible.

[Note.—"Local Government," for the purposes of these rules, includes a Chief Commissioner, the Resident at Hyderabad, the Agents to the Governor General for Rajputana and Central India, and a Department of the Government of India.]

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Bill was introduced into the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 25th June, 1884:—

No. 6 OF 1884.

A Bill to amend the Indian Salt Act, 1882.

WHEREAS it is expedient to exclude the Province of Sindh from the operation of those portions of the Indian Salt Act, 1882, which do not extend by their own operation to the whole of British India, and whereas it is also expedient to remove certain doubts which have been raised as to the meaning of the words "importation of salt" in section 27 of the same Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

XII of 1882.

Repeal of words "to the Province of Sindh" and "Province" in section 1 of Act XII of 1882.

1. From such day as the Governor of Bombay in Council, by notification in the official Gazette, fixes in this behalf, the words "to the Province of Sindh" and the word "Province," in paragraphs three and four respectively of section 1 of the Indian Salt Act, 1882, shall be repealed.

Amendment of section 27 of the same Act.

2. For the word "importation" in section 27 of the same Act, the word "bringing" shall be substituted.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

1. THE object of this Bill is to make two amendments in the Indian Salt Act, 1882.

2. It has been found that certain provisions of the Indian Salt Act, 1882, are not suitable to the circumstances of the Province of Sindh, to which they at present extend, and it is proposed to replace them by an enactment to be passed by the local legislature providing for the requirements of the whole Presidency of Bombay inclusive of Sindh. It is doubtful, however, whether this course can be adopted until the words in section 1 of the Act which bring the Province of Sindh within the operation of those provisions have been repealed. Those words are accordingly repealed by section 1 of the Bill, and, in order that the repeal may be made to operate from the date on which the proposed new Act of the local legislature comes into force, it is left to the Governor of Bombay in Council to fix the date from which the section shall have effect.

3. The object of the amendment made by section 2 of the Bill is to remove a doubt as to the meaning of section 27 of the Act, raised by a ruling of the Judicial Commissioner in Sindh, who has held that the words "importation of salt" in that section cover only the bringing in of salt as merchandize for the purposes of commerce and in merchantable quantities. The Bill substitutes for the word "importation" the word "bringing."

(3) "Revenue Court" means the Court of a Financial Commissioner, of a Commissioner, of a Deputy Commissioner, of an Assistant Commissioner or of a Tahsíldár exercising jurisdiction in suits of any of the classes mentioned in section 48.

(4) "Interlocutory order" means an order not having the force of a decree under the Civil Procedure Code or any other enactment, nor being a judgment, order to give security, order of acquittal or order under the Code of Criminal Procedure for the disposal of property or the proceeds thereof, passed or made by a Criminal Court. XIV of 1882. X of 1882.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.
(Chapter II.—Of the Constitution of the Courts.—Sections 4-16.)

CHAPTER II.

OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE COURTS.

Grades of Courts.

4. Besides the Courts established under any other law for the time being in force, there shall be the following grades of Courts (namely) :—

(1) the Chief Court;
(2) the Divisional Court;
(3) the Court of the Assistant Judge;
(4) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class;
(5) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the second class;
(6) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the third class;
(7) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the fourth class.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 5.]

Constitution of Chief Court and appointment and tenure of Judges.

5. The Chief Court shall consist of three or more Judges who shall be appointed by the Governor General in Council, and shall hold their offices during his pleasure, and of whom one at least shall always be a barrister of not less than five years' standing.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 6.]

Rank and precedence of Judges of Chief Court.

6. The Judges of the Chief Court shall have rank and precedence according to the seniority of their appointments as such Judges:

Provided that a Judge permanently appointed shall be deemed senior to an officiating Judge.

Constitution of Divisional Courts.

7. (1) Each Divisional Court shall consist of two or more Judges who shall be appointed by the Local Government, and may be transferred, suspended or removed by the Local Government.

(2) The Commissioner of a Division may be appointed Judge of a Divisional Court, in addition to his other duties.

Seniority of Judges of a Divisional Court.

8. (1) When the Commissioner of a Division is one of the Judges of a Divisional Court, he shall be deemed the Senior Judge of the Court.

(2) The seniority of the other Judges shall be regulated by the seniority of their appointments as Judges of a Divisional Court:

Provided that a Judge permanently appointed shall be deemed senior to an officiating Judge.

Appointment of Assistant Judges and Subordinate Judges.

9. (1) The Assistant Judges and the Subordinate Judges of the first class shall be appointed, and may be transferred, suspended or removed, by the Local Government.

(2) The Subordinate Judges of the second, third and fourth classes shall be appointed, and may be transferred, suspended or removed, by the Chief Court, subject to the control of the Local Government, and to rules which the Local Government is hereby empowered to make as to the qualifications of persons to be appointed to the office of Subordinate Judge.

(3) The present Munsifs shall be deemed to have been duly appointed, and shall be, Subordinate Judges under this Act, and their classification as Subordinate Judges of the second, third or fourth class shall be determined by the Chief Court.

Certain powers to be exercised ex officio.

10. Every person appointed under this Act to be or to act as Judge of a Divisional Court, Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge shall, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court to which he may, from time to time, be posted, have the powers of a Judge of a Divisional Court, of the Court of an Assistant Judge, or of the Court of a Subordinate Judge of the fourth class, as the case may be.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 8.]

Deputy Commissioners, Assistant Commissioners, Subordinate Judges, Tahsíldárs and Náib Tahsíldárs may be invested with powers.

11. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, confer upon any Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner the powers of an Assistant Judge, or upon any Assistant Commissioner the powers of a Subordinate Judge of any class, or upon any Subordinate Judge not being an Assistant Commissioner the powers of a Subordinate Judge of the second or of the third class, or upon any Tahsíldár or Náib Tahsíldár the powers of a Subordinate Judge of the third or of the fourth class, and may withdraw any powers so conferred.

(2) Any officer invested with powers under this section may exercise such powers in any district or sub-division of a district to which he may, from time to time, be posted.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 9.]

Any person may be invested with certain powers.

12. The Local Government may, from time to time, confer upon any person all or any of the powers of a Court of any of the five grades last mentioned in section 4, and may withdraw any powers so conferred.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 10.]

Exercise of such powers by benches.

13. (1) The Local Government may direct any three or more persons invested with powers of the same description under section 12 to sit together as a bench; and those powers shall, while such direction remains in force, be exercised by the bench so constituted, and not otherwise.

(2) The decision of the majority of the members of a bench constituted under this section shall be deemed to be the decision of the bench.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 11.]

Persons and benches exercising such powers to be deemed Courts of corresponding grades.

14. Except for the purpose of exercising control over any other Court, any person or any bench exercising the powers of a Court of any grade under section 12 or section 13 shall be deemed to be a Court of such grade for all the purposes of this Act.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 12.]

Such powers where and in what cases to be exercised.

15. Any person or bench invested under section 11, section 12 or section 13 with the powers of a Court of any grade shall exercise such powers and discharge the functions of such Court within such local limits and in such classes of cases as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 13.]

Power to alter local limits of jurisdiction.

16. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, fix the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Court of any of the six grades last mentioned in section 4.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

(Chapter III.—Of the Jurisdiction and Powers of the Chief Court.—Sections 17-24.)

CHAPTER III.

OF THE JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF THE CHIEF COURT.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 14.]

17. The Chief Court shall be deemed, for the purposes of all enactments for the time being in force, to be the highest Civil Court of appeal in the territories to which this Act extends.

Civil appeals from subordinate Courts.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 15; Cf. Crim. Pro. Code, ss. 4 (i) and 266.]

18. The Chief Court shall be the highest Court of criminal appeal or revision in the said territories, and shall have power, as a Court of original jurisdiction, to try European British subjects committed to it for trial.

Criminal, appellate and revisional jurisdiction.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 16; Civil Pro. Code, s. 25.]

19. The Chief Court may, on the application of any of the parties, after giving notice to the parties and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion, without giving such notice, withdraw any suit or other civil proceeding instituted in any Court under its superintendence or control, and try or dispose of such suit or proceeding itself, or transfer the same for trial or disposal to any other Court under its superintendence or control and competent to try or dispose of such suit or proceeding in respect of its nature and the amount or value of its subject-matter.

Power to withdraw and try, or to transfer, suits.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 17.]

20. Except as otherwise provided by any law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie from any decree or order passed or made by the Chief Court—

Appeals from original jurisdiction of Chief Court.

(a) in exercise of the original jurisdiction conferred by section 19; or

(b) in exercise of any other original jurisdiction of a civil nature to which the Chief Court may by rule extend this section:

Provided that such appeal shall lie only in the cases and in manner following (that is to say):—

(c) when such decree or order is made by a single Judge, an appeal shall lie, either to a bench consisting of two other Judges, or to the full bench, as the Court may, by general rule or special order, from time to time, direct;

(d) when such decree or order is made by a bench of Judges not being the full bench, and such Judges differ in opinion, the appeal shall lie from such decree or order to the full bench.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 19, extended to Divisional Courts.]

21. (1) Except as by this Act or by any other enactment for the time being in force otherwise provided, the Chief Court may make rules to provide in such manner as it thinks fit for the exercise by one or more of its Judges of any powers conferred on it, and for the exercise by one or more of the Judges of a Divisional Court of any of the powers conferred on that Court, by this Act, or by any other enactment for the time being in force:

Delegation of powers to its members.

Provided that no order not being an interlocutory order, and no decree, sentence or decision of any Court, shall be reversed by any Judge of the Chief Court or of a Divisional Court sitting alone.

Proviso.

(2) When the Chief Court consists of more than three Judges, it may make rules declaring what number of Judges, not being less than three, shall constitute a full bench of the Court, and may by these rules prescribe the mode of determining what Judges shall sit as a full bench, when a full bench sitting becomes necessary.

(3) The Chief Court may, from time to time, delegate to one of its Judges the power of determining, subject to any rules made under this section, what Judge in each case shall sit alone and what Judges of the Court shall constitute any bench of Judges.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 20.]

22. When there is a difference of opinion among the Judges composing any bench of the Chief Court on any question arising before such Judges in the exercise by them of any powers conferred on such Court by this Act, or by any other enactment for the time being in force, such question shall, except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force, be decided as follows, that is to say:

Rule of decision when Judges differ.

If the number of such Judges concurring in one opinion upon such question is larger than the number holding any other opinion upon such question, the decision shall be in accordance with the opinion of such larger number.

If the numbers of such Judges holding two or more opinions on such question are equal, the following rules shall be observed, that is to say:—

(a) if such bench is the full bench, or is exercising any original jurisdiction to which section 20 applies or is extended, the decision upon such question shall be in accordance with such one of these opinions as is held by the Judge who has precedence under section 6;

(b) in other cases the bench before which such question has arisen shall refer the same to the full bench, and the full bench shall decide the same in accordance with the rules hereinbefore contained, and the case in which such question has arisen shall be disposed of by the bench referring such question in accordance with the decision of the full bench thereon.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 21.]

23. (1) Any single Judge of the Chief Court or any bench of Judges of such Court (not being the full bench) exercising any powers conferred on the Chief Court by this Act or by any other enactment for the time being in force may refer for the decision of the full bench any question of law or custom having the force of law, or the construction of any document, or the admissibility of any evidence arising before such Judge or bench of Judges.

Power to refer question to full bench.

(2) Any Judge or bench making a reference on any question in any case under this section shall dispose of such case in accordance with the decision of the full bench on such question.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 22.]

24. (1) The Chief Court may, from time to time, appoint a Registrar and Deputy Registrar and such other ministerial officers as may be necessary for the administration of justice by such Court, and for the exercise and performance of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on it by this Act.

Power to appoint ministerial officers.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

(Chapter IV.—Of the Jurisdiction and Powers of the Subordinate Courts.—Section 34.)

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 23.]

25. The officers so appointed shall exercise such powers and discharge such duties of a ministerial nature as the Chief Court may, from time to time, direct.

Powers and duties of such officers.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 24.]

26. Any such officer may be suspended or dismissed from his office by order of the Chief Court:

Suspension and dismissal of such officers.

Provided that neither the Registrar nor the Deputy Registrar shall be dismissed without the previous sanction of the Local Government.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 25.]

27. The general superintendence and control over all Courts of the six grades last mentioned in section 4, and over all Courts of Small Causes, shall be vested in, and such Courts shall be subordinate to, the Chief Court.

Superintendence and control of subordinate Courts.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 26.]

28. (1) The Chief Court may, from time to time, make rules—

Power to make rules as to petition writers.

(a) declaring what persons shall be permitted to practise as petition-writers in the Courts of the Panjáb;

(2) Whoever breaks any rule made under this section and having the force of law shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 27; see also Criminal Procedure Code, s. 553, and Civil Procedure Code, s. 652.]

29. The Chief Court may, from time to time,—

Power to make rules as to other matters.

(a) make rules consistent with this Act conferring and imposing on the ministerial officers of the Courts subject to its superintendence such powers and duties of a ministerial nature as it thinks fit, and regulating the mode in which powers and duties so conferred and imposed shall be exercised and performed;

(b) make rules consistent with this Act to determine in what cases pleaders practising in such Courts shall be permitted to address such Courts in English;

(c) prescribe forms for seals to be used by such Courts;

(d) prescribe forms for such books, entries, statistics and accounts as it thinks necessary to be kept, made or compiled in such Courts or submitted to any authority;

(e) make rules consistent with this Act providing for the inspection of such Courts and the supervision of the working thereof;

(f) make such rules consistent with this Act, institute such enquiries and submit such recommendations to the Local Government as it may think fit, with a view to promoting the efficiency of the judicial and ministerial officers of such Courts and maintaining proper discipline among such officers.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 28.]

30. (1) The Chief Court shall keep such registers, books and accounts as may be necessary for the transaction of the business of the Court, and shall submit to the Local Government such of the same registers, books and accounts, and statements of the work done in the Court, as may, from time to time, be required by the said Government

Registers, books, accounts and statements to be kept and furnished by Chief Court.

(2) The Chief Court shall also comply with such requisitions as may, from time to time, be made by the Governor General in Council, or by the Local Government, for certified copies of, or extracts from, the records of the Courts.

31. (1) The Chief Court, when sitting as a Court of civil judicature, shall take evidence and record judgments and orders in such manner as it, by rule, from time to time, directs, and may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding in that Court in the exercise of its civil jurisdiction.

Chief Court to take evidence and record judgments according to its own rules, and to frame forms for proceedings.

[See. 29. Act XVII of 1877, and ss. 638 and 639. Civ. Pro. Code.]

(2) The following provisions of the Civil Procedure Code shall not apply to the Chief Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, namely, sections 119, 182 to 185 (both inclusive), 187, 189 to 191 (both inclusive), 192 (so far as it relates to the manner of taking evidence), 198, 200 to 204 (both inclusive), and so much of section 409 as relates to the making of a memorandum; XIV of 1882.

And sections 571 to 573 (both inclusive), 554 (so far as it relates to the time of dating and signing judgment), and 579 shall not apply to the Chief Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.

32. (1) Any non-judicial or quasi-judicial act which the Civil Procedure Code requires to be done by a Judge, and any act which may be done by a Commissioner appointed to examine and adjust accounts under section 394 of that Code, may be done by the Registrar of the Court, or by such other officer of the Court as the Court may direct to do such act.

Non-judicial acts may be done by Registrar.

(2) The Chief Court may, from time to time, by rule, declare what shall be deemed to be non-judicial and quasi-judicial acts within the meaning of this section.

33. When any appeal, reference or case heard in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction has been heard by a bench consisting of two or more Judges, a judgment or dissent written by any member of the bench, but not pronounced, may be delivered by any other member of that bench.

Delivery of judgment in the absence of Judge who recorded it.

[New. Cf. s. 199, Civ. Pro. Code.]

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF THE SUBORDINATE COURTS.

34. Subject to the general superintendence and control of the Chief Court—

Controlling powers of Divisional Court and of Assistant Judges.

[See. 30. Act XVII of 1877.]

every Divisional Court shall control (a) the Courts of all Assistant Judges or officers invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge within its division, and (b) the Courts controlled by the Assistant Judges or Deputy Commissioners invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge within its division;

and, subject to the control of the Divisional Court—

every Assistant Judge and every Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of an Assis-

(Chapter IV.—Of the Jurisdiction and Powers of the Subordinate Courts.—Sections 35-41.)

ant Judge shall control (a) all Courts of the four grades last mentioned in section 4, and all Courts of Small Causes, and (b) all Courts of persons other than the Deputy Commissioner of a district invested under section 11 or section 12 with the powers of an Assistant Judge within the area subject to his jurisdiction.

Principal Court of original jurisdiction.

35. Except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force, the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Court or principal civil Court of original jurisdiction in its division:

Provided that the Local Government may empower any Assistant Judge or any Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge to exercise all or any of the powers of a District Court within the area subject to his jurisdiction.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 32.]

36. Except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force—

No pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of Divisional Court or of Assistant Judge.

(1) the Divisional Court, and (2) the Court of the Assistant Judge, shall have jurisdiction for the adjudication of original civil suits without limit as regards the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suits; and Pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of other Courts.

each of the Courts mentioned in the first column of the subjoined table shall have jurisdiction for the adjudication of civil suits when the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suits does not exceed the limit prescribed for such Court in the second column of the table:—

COURT.	Limit of jurisdiction.
	Rs.
(a)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class.	5,000
(b)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the second class.	1,000
(c)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the third class.	500

[Section 33, Act XVII of 1877.]

37. (1) Any Divisional Court or any Assistant Judge, or Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of Assistant Judge, may exercise, as regards the Courts under its or his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by section 19 on the Chief Court.

Powers of Divisional Court and of Court of Assistant Judge.

(2) The Court trying any suit withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes.

(3) The Local Government may, from time to time, confer upon any Assistant Commissioner the powers of an Assistant Judge under this section, and withdraw the same.

[Section 34, Act XVII of 1877, XIV of 1882.]

38. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, every Divisional Court, Assistant Judge or Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of Assistant Judge may, by written order, direct that any civil business cognizable by it or his Court and the Courts under its or his control (including the execution of decrees) shall be distributed among such Courts in such manner as it or he thinks fit:

Power to distribute business.

Provided that no direction issued under this section shall empower any Court to exercise any jurisdiction in any suit of which the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds its proper jurisdiction:

Provided also that no such direction shall be inconsistent with any direction or notification issued by the Local Government under section 15 or 16.

[Section 35, Act XVII of 1877.]

39. (1) The ministerial officers of the Divisional Court and of the Courts of Assistant Judges and Courts of Small Causes shall be appointed, and may be suspended and dismissed, by the Judges of those Courts respectively, whose orders in such matters shall, in the case of a Divisional Court, be final, and in the case of any other Court be subject to the general control of the Divisional Court.

Ministerial officers of subordinate Courts.

(2) The ministerial officers of all Courts controlled by an Assistant Judge, other than a Court of Small Causes, shall be appointed, and may be suspended and dismissed, by the Assistant Judge, subject to the general control of the Divisional Court.

(3) Every appointment under this section shall be subject to such rules as the Local Government, from time to time, prescribes in this behalf.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 36.]

40. (1) The Judge or presiding officer of every Court under the control of an Assistant Judge may fine, in an amount not exceeding one month's salary, any of the ministerial officers of such Court who is guilty of misconduct or neglect in the performance of the duties of his office.

Power to fine ministerial officers.

(2) The Assistant Judge, subject to the general control of the Divisional Court, may, on appeal or otherwise, reverse or modify any such order made by any such Judge or officer, other than a Judge of a Court of Small Causes; and may of his own motion fine up to the amount of one month's salary any ministerial officer of any Court under his control other than a Court of Small Causes.

(3) Any Divisional Court or Assistant Judge, and the Judge of any Court of Small Causes, may fine any ministerial officer of his Court in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

[New. Cf. Act VI of 1871, s. 29, and Act XIII of 1879, s. 24.]

41. The Local Government may invest, within such local limits as it, from time to time, fixes, any Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge of the first class with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the amount of five hundred rupees, and any Subordinate Judge of the second or third class with similar jurisdiction up to the amount of fifty rupees; and may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw the jurisdiction so conferred.

Power to invest with Small Cause Court jurisdiction.

(Chapter V.—Of Appellate Jurisdiction in Civil Cases.—Sections 42-47.)
(Chapter VI.—Of Revenue Courts.—Section 48.)

CHAPTER V.

OF APPELLATE JURISDICTION IN CIVIL CASES.

First appeals to whom to lie.

42. (1) Appeals from the decrees and orders of a Court of any of the three grades last mentioned in section 4 in suits of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, and in suits of any other class which the Chief Court, with the sanction of the Local Government, may, from time to time, determine to place on the same footing, shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, and the value or amount of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed five hundred rupees, lie to the Court of the Assistant Judge.

(2) Appeals from the decrees and orders of the Court of the Assistant Judge in original suits, when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds five thousand rupees, and appeals from the decrees and orders of the Divisional Court in original suits, shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the Chief Court.

(3) Appeals from decrees and orders in original suits not hereinbefore provided for shall, when such appeal is allowed by law, lie to the Divisional Court.

Further appeal to lie to the Chief Court on the certificate of the Divisional Court that the case is a fit one for further appeal.

43. When two Judges of a Divisional Court are unable to concur in a judgment varying or reversing the decree or order appealed against, or when some question of law or custom, or of general interest, is involved, the Judges may, if they regard the case as of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal, or if, when the certificate is applied for, one of the Judges who passed the decree is no longer attached to the Court, the remaining Judge may, if he regards the case as of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal, grant a certificate to any party to the appeal that the case is a fit one for a further appeal; and on such certificate being granted a further appeal shall lie to the Chief Court from the decree or order of the Divisional Court on any ground which would be a good ground of appeal if the decree or order had been passed in an original suit:

Provided that no further appeal shall lie in any suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, or other suit placed on the same footing under section 42 when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the original suit does not exceed five hundred rupees.

Appellate decision of Assistant Judge or Divisional Court otherwise final.

XIV of 1882.

44. Subject to the provisions of section 43, and of the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 595 and 622, the decision of the Court of the Assistant Judge or of the Divisional Court passed in appeal shall be final.

[Cf. Act XIII of 1879, s. 22.]

Appeals from decrees, &c., passed before Act comes into force.

45. For the purposes of sections 42 and 23, all decrees, orders and decisions passed before the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed—

(a) if passed by a Commissioner or Additional Commissioner, or by the Civil Judge of Peshâwar, to have been passed by the Divisional Court;

(b) if passed by a Deputy Commissioner or other officer invested with the appellate jurisdiction of a Deputy Commissioner, to have been passed by an Assistant Judge;

(c) if passed by an Assistant Commissioner with full powers, to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge of the first class;

(d) if passed by an Assistant Commissioner not invested with full powers or with the appellate powers of a Deputy Commissioner, or by an Honorary Civil Judge, or by a Tahsíldár or Náib Tahsíldár, to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge of the second, third or fourth class:

Provided that—

(1) no right of appeal which has accrued under the existing law shall be taken away, and no certificate shall be required for a further appeal;

(2) if the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds five thousand rupees, the appeal, if any is allowed by law, shall lie to the Chief Court; but in other cases in which the appeal now lies to the Commissioner's Court, the appeal shall lie to the Divisional Court.

Period of limitation.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 40.]

46. (1) The period of limitation for an appeal under section 41 or section 42 shall run from the date of the decree, order or decision appealed against, and shall be as follows, that is to say:—

(a) when such appeal lies to the Court of the Assistant Judge or to the Divisional Court—sixty days.

(2) In computing such periods of sixty and ninety days, and in all respects not herein specified, the limitation of such appeals shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

XV of 1877.

Power to withdraw and try or to transfer appeal.

[Act XVII of 1877 s. 41.]

47. The Chief Court, the Divisional Court or the Court of an Assistant Judge may, on the application of any of the parties, after giving notice to the parties and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion, without giving such notice, withdraw any civil appeal pending in any Court under its superintendence or control, and try such appeal itself, or transfer the same for trial to any other Court under its superintendence or control and of a grade equal or superior to that of the Court from which such appeal is withdrawn.

CHAPTER VI.

OF REVENUE COURTS.

Certain classes of suits cognizable by Revenue Courts only.

48. Suits of any of the following classes instituted on and after the first day of October, 1884, shall be heard and determined in Revenue Courts and not otherwise:

XXVIII of 1868.

(b) suits by landlords under section 6 of the same Act to prove that a tenant presumed to have a right of occupancy under that section has no such right;

(c) suits for enhancement or abatement of rent under Chapter III of the same Act;

(d) suits for ejectment of a tenant under Chapter IV of the same Act;

(e) suits under section 25 of the same Act to contest liability to be ejected when notice of ejectment has been served;

(f) suits under section 40 of the same Act to determine the amount or value of the compensation to be paid or the terms of a lease to be granted to a tenant under section 39 of the same Act, or both;

(g) suits for arrears of rent on account of land, or on account of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, fisheries or the like;

(h) suits for the recovery of any over-payment of rent;

(i) suits by lambardárs for arrears of land-revenue, payable through them by the co-sharers, or for village-expenses or other dues for which the co-sharers may be responsible to the lambardár;

(j) suits by co-sharers for their share of the profits of an estate or part thereof after payment of the land-revenue and village-expenses, or for a settlement of accounts;

(k) suits by assignees of land-revenue for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(m) suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act to recover possession of land assessed to the land-revenue or liable to be so assessed, or of which the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned. I of 1877.

49. If in any suit of any of the classes mentioned in clauses (a) to (l) of the last preceding section it appears that the parties are at issue on any question of proprietary title, or on the question of the existence of the relation of landlord and tenant between them, the Revenue Court shall not determine such question, but may either proceed to decide the case by passing a decree contingent upon the determination of such question by a Civil Court, giving such directions as it may think proper as to the party with whom it shall rest to institute a suit for the purpose, or, on the application of either party, may stay proceedings to enable the party applying to institute a suit for the purpose in a Civil Court; but the proceedings shall not be stayed under this section for more than three months unless such suit is in the meantime instituted; nor, when a decree has been passed contingent upon the determination of such question by a Civil Court, shall any execution be issued, property sold or person ejected or imprisoned thereunder until the receipt of a copy of the judgment of the Civil Court on the question, unless the decree has been passed against the party whose duty it is to sue and he fails to institute the suit for more than three months from the date of the decree.

Procedure when question of proprietary title or of existence of relation of landlord and tenant arises.

50. All Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs shall have power to try suits of the classes mentioned in section 48, clauses (g), (i), (k) and (l), when the amount or value of the claim does not exceed one hundred rupees; and the Local Government may invest Náib Tahsíldárs with the same powers.

Certain revenue powers of Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs to be exercised ex officio.

51. The Local Government may invest any Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár with power to try all suits of the classes mentioned in the same section, clauses (d) and (f) to (m), both inclusive.

Additional powers with which Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs may be invested.

52. The Deputy Commissioner shall have power to try suits of any of the classes mentioned in section 48, and the Local Government may specially invest any Assistant Commissioner with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner for the trial of suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of the same section.

Revenue powers of Deputy Commissioners and power to invest Assistant Commissioners therewith.

53. (1) The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure of Revenue Courts in cases under this chapter for which a procedure is not prescribed thereby; and may, by any such rule, direct that any provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, with or without modification, to all or any classes of cases before Revenue Courts. [Cf. Act XVIII of 1881, s. 19.] XIV of 1882.

Procedure of Revenue Courts how to be regulated.

(2) Until such rules are made, Revenue Courts shall be guided in cases under this chapter by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section 2, Part I, except Chapters XVI and XX, Parts II, III and IV, Chapters XXXVII and XXXVIII, XLI, XLIII and XLIV, and Parts VIII and X, so far as applicable; and the Court of the Financial Commissioner shall, in respect of such cases, be deemed to be the High Court within the meaning of the said Code, and shall exercise, as regards the Courts under his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by sections 19 and 47 on the Chief Court; and the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner shall respectively exercise, as regards the Courts under his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by sections 57 and 47 upon a Divisional Court and an Assistant Judge. XIV of 1882.

54. Every Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner may, by written order, direct that any business cognizable under this chapter by his Court, and the Courts under his control (including the execution of decrees) shall be distributed among such Courts in such manner as he thinks fit:

Power to distribute business.

Provided that no direction issued under this section shall empower any Court to exercise any jurisdiction which it is not empowered to exercise under section 50, section 51 or section 52.

55. All decisions and orders (except decisions and orders in suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act) of Assistant Commissioners not invested with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner under section 52, and of Tahsíldárs, shall be appealable to the Deputy Commissioner, whose order thereon shall be final, unless when the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees, when a I of 1877.

Cases appealable to Deputy Commissioner.

(Chapter VI.—Of Revenue Courts.—Sections 56-64.)

Further appeal in certain cases.

further appeal shall lie to the Commissioner, or, in case the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds five thousand rupees, to the Financial Commissioner.

Cases appealable to Commissioner or Financial Commissioner.

56. (1) All decisions and orders of Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners invested with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner in suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of section 48, and in other suits (except suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act) in which the value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees, shall be appealable to the Commissioner, or in case the amount or value exceeds five thousand rupees, to the Financial Commissioner.

I of 1877.

Other judgments to be final.

Further appeal to Financial Commissioner in certain cases.

57. An appeal from the decisions of the Commissioner on appeals in suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of section 48 shall lie to the Financial Commissioner, unless when the Commissioner dismisses the appeal.

Other judgments of Commissioner to be final.

All other judgments and orders of the Commissioner on appeals shall be final, subject to revision by the Financial Commissioner.

Revisional jurisdiction of Financial Commissioner.

58. The Financial Commissioner may at any time call for any case which has come before any Commissioner or any Court subordinate to him, and pass such orders thereon consistent with the law applicable thereto as he thinks fit.

Limitation of appeals under this chapter.

59. (1) The period of limitation for an appeal under section 55, section 56 or section 57 shall run from the date of the decree, order for decision appealed against, and shall be as follows, that is to say :—

(a) when such appeal lies to the Court of the Deputy Commissioner or of the Commissioner—sixty days ;

(2) In computing such periods of sixty and ninety days, and in all respects not herein specified, the limitation of such appeals shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

XV of 1877.

Controlling powers of Financial Commissioner, Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner.

60. Subject to the general superintendence and control of the Financial Commissioner, every Commissioner shall control the Revenue Courts of all Deputy Commissioners and the Revenue Courts controlled by Deputy Commissioners within his Division ; and subject to the control of the Commissioner, every Deputy Commissioner shall control the Revenue Courts of all Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs and officers invested with the powers of Deputy Commissioner, Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár within his District.

Persons invested with powers under this chapter to be deemed to be Courts of corresponding grades, and where and in what cases to exercise their powers.

61. Except for the purpose of exercising control over any other Revenue Court, any person exercising the powers of a Revenue Court of any grade under section 49 or section 51 shall be deemed to be a Court of such grade for all the purposes of this Act, and shall exercise such powers and discharge the functions of such Court within such local limits and in such classes of cases as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

Distribution of business between Financial Commissioners.

62. When more than one Financial Commissioner is appointed, the Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the distribution of revenue, judicial and other business between the persons so appointed ; and, until such rules are made, the Financial Commissioner who is senior in respect of his appointment as such may transfer such business as he thinks fit to the other Financial Commissioner for disposal, and may withdraw and himself dispose of any business so transferred and not disposed of.

Consultation between Financial Commissioners.

63. If either Financial Commissioner desires to obtain the opinion of the other upon any question arising in any appeal under this chapter pending before him, he may forward the record to the other Financial Commissioner with a statement of the question upon which he desires his opinion ; and the latter, after such examination and such hearing (if any) as he thinks fit, shall record his opinion upon the question referred to him ; and the Financial Commissioner who made the reference shall proceed to dispose of the appeal after considering the opinion so obtained.

Power to invest Settlement-officers with powers of Civil or Revenue Courts in certain cases.

64. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, declare that a settlement of land-revenue is in progress in any local area, and invest any officer making or controlling such settlement, either by name or in virtue of his office, with all or any of the powers of any Court constituted under this Act for the purpose of trying all or any specified class of suits and appeals relating to land, or the rent, revenue or produce of such land, arising in such local area.

(2) The publication of any notification under this section shall be conclusive evidence that a settlement of land-revenue is in progress in the local area to which the notification refers.

(3) The Local Government may cancel any such notification.

(4) While such notification continues in force, such powers shall be exercised by the officers so invested, and not otherwise :

Provided that the Local Government may, by order published in the official Gazette, direct that any jurisdiction with which any officer may have been invested by such notification shall be exercised solely by the Court by which such jurisdiction would have been exercised if such notification had not been published :

Provided also that any cases pending before any officer under such notification when it is cancelled may, notwithstanding such cancellation, be disposed of by him as if it continued in force, unless the Local Government directs (as it is hereby empowered to do) that such cases shall be transferred for disposal to the Court by which they would have been disposed of if such notification had not been published.

Explanation.—In this section "land" means land assessed to the land-revenue or whereof the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, and all land the property of Government not within the site of any town or village.

65. For the purposes of section 64 the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything in this Act, from time to time direct that any of the Courts mentioned in this Act (except the Chief Court) shall, in respect of any specified class of cases, be subordinate to, or subject to the control or superintendence of, any authority other than those specified in this Act.

CHAPTER VII.

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 46; compare Act VI of 1871, s. 25; Act XVII of 1875, s. 19; and Act XIII of 1879, s. 23.] Presiding Officer of Court not to try certain suits and appeals.

66. (1) Except with the consent of the parties, no presiding officer of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall try any suit or appeal to which he is a party or in which he is personally interested, or any appeal against a decree or order passed by himself, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit or appeal.

(2) When any such suit, appeal or proceeding comes before him, he shall forthwith transmit the record of the case to the Court to which he is immediately subordinate, with a report of the circumstances attending the reference.

(3) The superior Court shall thereupon dispose of the case in the manner prescribed by section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure. XIV of 1882.

67. All rules made and forms prescribed under section 28 and section 29, clauses (a), (b), (d) and (e), shall be submitted for sanction to the Local Government, and, on receiving such sanction, shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 48.] Local Government may transfer power conferred by section 27 to a single Judge.

68. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint a single Judge of the Chief Court to exercise the power of superintendence conferred on such Court by section 27, and may cancel such notification.

(2) While such notification continues in force, such power shall be exercised by the Judge appointed thereby, and not otherwise.

69. For the purposes of the Indian Divorce Act, any Judge of the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Judge throughout the Division over which that Court has jurisdiction.

70. (1) Subject to such orders as may, from time to time, be issued by the Governor General in Council, and to the approval of the Local Government, the Chief Court shall prepare a list of days to be observed in each year as close holidays in the Civil Courts subordinate thereto.

(2) Such list shall be published in the official Gazette, and the said days shall be observed accordingly.

Pending proceedings.

71. (1) All cases or proceedings pending in any Civil Court on the first day of October, 1884, may be disposed of as if this Act had not been passed, unless the Chief Court directs (as it is hereby empowered to do) that such cases or proceedings shall be transferred for disposal to the Courts established under this Act which would have had jurisdiction if they had been in existence when such cases or proceedings were instituted.

(2) For the purposes of this section, all appeals in civil suits or proceedings pending on the said day shall—

(a) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Commissioners, Additional Commissioners or the Civil Judge of Peshāwar be deemed to be appeals from the Divisional Court;

(b) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Deputy Commissioners or officers invested under section three of Act XIV of 1875 with the appellate powers of Deputy Commissioners, or with the full powers of an Assistant Commissioner, be deemed to be appeals from the Court of the Assistant Judge; and

(c) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Assistant Commissioners not invested with full powers, or with the appellate powers of Deputy Commissioners, or of Honorary Civil Judges not invested with the full powers of an Assistant Commissioner, or of Tahsildārs or Nāib Tahsildārs, be deemed to be appeals from Subordinate Judges of the second, third or fourth class.

Explanation of sections 617 and 622, Civil Procedure Code.

72. For the proposes of sections 617 and 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, the decree of an Appellate Court subordinate to the Chief Court shall be deemed to be final when no certificate permitting a further appeal to the Chief Court under section 43 has been granted, and a case decided by an Appellate Court in which no such certificate has been granted shall be deemed to be a case in which no appeal lies to the Chief Court. XIV of 1882.

Amendment of the first schedule annexed to the Court-fees Act, 1870.

73. To the first schedule annexed to the Court-fees Act, 1870, the following shall be added :— VII of 1870.

NUMBER.		PROPER FEE.
3. Application to the Chief Court of the Panjāb for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.	When the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed twenty-five rupees.	Two rupees.
	When such amount or value exceeds twenty-five rupees.	The fee leviable on memorandum of appeal.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

(Chapter VII.—Miscellaneous and Supplementary Provisions.—Sections 74-75.)

74. If the Chief Court, on an application under section 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, on which a fee has been paid under the last preceding section, sets aside or modifies the decree or order of a subordinate Court, or remands the case for a fresh decision, it may grant to the applicant a certificate authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the application, or any smaller amount which, with regard to the circumstances of the case, it may think proper to order to be refunded.

Refund of fee paid on application for revision. XIV of 1882.

75. All appointments made under sections 5 and 22 of Act XVII of 1877, directions given under section 23, rules and forms prescribed under sections 26 and 27, and notifications published, powers conferred and orders issued under section 49, of the same Act, shall, so far as may be, be deemed to have been respectively made, given, prescribed, published, conferred and issued under this Act.

Saving of certain appointments, rules and forms, notifications, powers and orders.

SCHEDULE.

ACTS REPEALED.

(See section 2.)

Number and year.	Title of Act.	Extent of repeal.
Act IV of 1869	The Indian Divorce Act.	So much of section 3 as defines "District Judge" in the Panjab to mean the "Commissioner of a Division."
Act X of 1870	The Land Acquisition Act, 1870.	So much of section 3 as defines "Court" in the Panjáb to mean the "Commissioner of a Division."
Act XIV of 1875.	The Panjáb Judicial Administration Act, 1875.	So far as it relates to civil or criminal judicial powers.
Act XVII of 1877.	The Panjáb Courts' Act, 1877.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

AN essential portion of the scheme for the reorganization of the civil administration in the Panjáb, which has recently received the sanction of the Secretary of State for India, is to be found in the improvement of the judicial agency and the reform of the appellate system. The arrangements proposed for this purpose render necessary very large changes in the law under which the Panjáb Courts are now constituted (the Panjáb Courts Act, 1877), and the most convenient mode of giving effect to them appears to be to repeal that Act and re-enact its provisions with the necessary additions and modifications. This it is proposed to do by the present Bill.

2. The changes in the law which it is intended to make will now be noticed.

3. Chapter II deals with the constitution of the Courts. The present law confers the civil judicial powers of the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court upon the executive officers of Government from the Commissioner down to the Tahsíldár, though Act XIV of 1875 enables the Local Government to confer the powers of a Deputy Commissioner or of a Tahsíldár upon other persons, and under that Act civil judicial powers have been conferred upon a number of officers known as Judicial Assistants and Munsifs, whose functions are mainly, though not always exclusively, judicial. Similarly, the Civil and Sessions Judge of Pesháwar and certain Additional Commissioners have been invested with the judicial powers of Commissioners under Act XVII of 1877. It is now proposed to relieve Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, as a rule, of civil judicial functions, though they will continue to exercise jurisdiction in certain classes of cases which will be transferred from the Civil to the Revenue Courts, and they may also be invested with civil judicial powers where the judicial work is so light as not to require the creation of special Courts. Commissioners will likewise be, as a rule, relieved of the functions as Sessions Judges which now devolve upon them, but this can be done under the Criminal Procedure Code, without special legislation.

4. Special designations which do not imply the exercise of executive functions are accordingly given to the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court (section 4).

5. With a view to strengthen the Courts of appeal in order to admit of greater finality being given to appellate decisions, it is proposed that the Court immediately subordinate to the Chief Court should ordinarily consist of two Judges, and that, while one of these Judges may be enabled by rule to exercise certain of the powers of the Court, a single Judge should not have power in the exercise of his appellate jurisdiction to reverse any order other than an interlocutory order passed by any Court.

6. Power is also taken (in section 7) to appoint the Commissioner of a Division to be one of the Judges of a Divisional Court in addition to his other duties, as it is in contemplation to establish one of the Divisional Courts at Derá Ismaíl Khán, and only one Judge will be available for that Court unless the Commissioner of the Deráját Division is appointed as one of the Judges.

7. The appointment of Assistant Judges and Subordinate Judges of the first class by the Local Government, and of Subordinate Judges of the second, third and fourth classes, corresponding to the present Munsifs, by the Chief Court, subject to rules to be made by the Local Government, is provided for by section 9. The Court of the Assistant Judge will replace the Court of the Deputy Commissioner or Judicial Assistant under the present law, and no provision has hitherto been made by law as to the authority by which Munsifs may be appointed or removed.

8. The other differences between Chapter II of the Bill and the corresponding chapter of Act XVII of 1877 follow upon those which have been already described.

9. The third chapter, which provides for the jurisdiction and powers of the Chief Court, only differs from the corresponding chapter of Act XVII of 1877 in that section 19, relating to the transfer of suits, is assimilated to section 25 of the Civil Procedure Code; section 21 is modified so as to enable the Chief Court to make rules for the exercise by one or more of the Judges of a Divisional Court of the powers of that Court, except as regards the reversal of decrees, sentences or decisions of any Court, to provide by rule for the constitution of a full bench of the Chief Court, and to delegate to one of its Judges the power of determining what Judges shall sit alone or as a bench of the Court, and power is also taken to enable a single Judge of the Chief Court or of a Divisional Court to reverse an interlocutory order; sections 31 and 32 replace the reference in section 29 of the present Act to sections 633 and 637 of the Civil Procedure Code, and add what is necessary of sections 638 and 639 of that Code; and section 33 provides for the delivery of the judgments of a bench of Judges by any Judge who was a member of that bench, in accordance with existing practice, and with the analogy of section 199 of the Civil Procedure Code.

10. Chapter IV relates to the jurisdiction and powers of Courts subordinate to the Chief Court. The Divisional Court is declared to be the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, but the Local Government is enabled to empower any Assistant Judge or Deputy Commissioner with the powers of an Assistant Judge to exercise any of the powers of a District Court, so as to obviate the inconvenience of unduly limiting the number of Courts which can exercise jurisdiction under certain laws, e. g., Acts XL of 1858, XXVII of 1860 and IX of 1861.

11. While the jurisdiction of the Divisional Court and of the Court of the Assistant Judge is unlimited as respects the value or amount in litigation, thus corresponding with the jurisdiction now exercised by Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, that of the Subordinate Judge of the first class is limited to Rs. 5,000 instead of Rs. 10,000, which is the limit of the present jurisdiction of an Assistant Commissioner with full powers, and that of other Subordinate Judges may extend either to Rs. 100, to Rs. 500 or to Rs. 1,000.

12. In section 41 power is taken to invest Assistant Judges or Subordinate Judges with the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court Judge for the trial of suits cognizable by a Small Cause Court within certain limits of value or amount.

13. The other changes in Chapter IV are those which are rendered necessary by the alterations of the law already described.

14. Chapter V relates to appellate jurisdiction in civil cases. It embodies the modifications proposed in the appellate system with the view of restricting the right of appeal so far as it is considered that the improved organization of the Courts will admit of this. The second appeals allowed by the Code of Civil Procedure, and the further appeals allowed by the present Panjáb Courts Act are abolished, and the decisions of appellate Courts are made final, except that the Judges of a Divisional Court are enabled, when they differ as to the judgment which should be passed, or when some question of law or custom or of general interest is involved, if they think the case of sufficient importance to justify further appeal, to grant a certificate permitting a further appeal to the Chief Court.

15. Appeals to Assistant Judges are confined to suits not above Rs. 500 in value, either of the Small Cause Court class or of any other class which the Chief Court, with the sanction of the Local Government, may determine to put upon the same footing, and appeals in suits above Rs. 5,000 in value, as well as appeals from decrees of the Divisional Court, will, when allowed by law, lie to the Chief Court, all other appeals allowed by law lying to the Divisional Court.

16. Section 47, relating to the transfer of appeals, has been modified to the same extent as section 19.

17. Chapter VI, which deals with Revenue Courts, is new, having been rendered necessary by the transfer of certain classes of suits enumerated in section 48 from the Civil to the Revenue Courts. It provides for the jurisdiction and powers of these Courts, for their procedure, for appeals from their decisions, for the revisional jurisdiction of the Financial Commissioner, and the controlling powers of the Financial Commissioner, Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner, respectively, for the transfer of suits and appeals, and for the distribution of business between Financial Commissioners when more than one such officer is appointed, the sanction which has been given by the Secretary of State to the appointment of a second Financial Commissioner rendering a provision of this nature necessary. Sections 64 and 65 correspond with sections 49 and 50 of the present Act, enabling the Local Government to confer judicial powers upon Settlement-officers, the only addition being that the officer may be so empowered either by name or in virtue of his office.

18. Chapter VII contains miscellaneous and supplementary provisions, some of which correspond with sections 46 to 48 of the present Act. Of the others, section 69 provides that any Judge of the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Judge throughout its jurisdiction for the purposes of the Indian Divorce Act; section 70 provides for vacations; and section 71 for proceedings pending when this Bill becomes law; section 72 interprets certain expressions in sections 617 and 622 of the Civil Procedure Code so as to prevent doubt as to the cases in which the revisional jurisdiction of the Chief Court may be exercised; section 73 amends the Court-fees Act so that the fee leviable on a memorandum of appeal, when it exceeds the fee leviable on a petition to the Chief Court, may be charged on an application to it for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under section 622 of the Civil Procedure Code; and section 74 enables the Court in certain cases to grant a certificate authorizing the refund of the fee so charged.

Explanation of abbreviation used in the margin.

"Bo. Bill" refers to the draft Bill prepared by the Commission and received with the letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 216, dated 14th January, 1880.

A Bill to amend and define the law of Testamentary and Intestate Succession to Khojás.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and define the law applicable to testamentary and intestate succession to Khojás; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called the Khojá Succession Act, 1884; and it shall extend to the whole of British India.

Short title. Local extent.

2. Except as provided by any other law for the time being in force, succession to the property, whether moveable or immoveable, in British India of a Khojá dying on or after the first day of January eighteen hundred and eighty-five shall be regulated by the rules contained in this Act, wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. [Act X of 1865, s. 5.]

Application.

Explanation.—Property in British India includes obligations enforceable there.

3. (1) In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— [Bo. Bill, s. 3.]

Definitions.

"son" means a legitimate son, and does not include an adopted son:

"grandson" means a son's son:

"great-grandson" means a grandson's son:

"daughter" means a legitimate daughter:

"father" and "mother" do not include step-father and step-mother:

"grandfather" and "grandmother" do not include a father's step-father or step-mother:

"brother" and "sister" do not include step-brother and step-sister, nor half-brother and half-sister:

"half-brother" means son of the same father but by another wife:

"lineal male descendant," used with reference to any person, means a male descended from that person through males only: [New.]

"degree" means a degree of kindred computed according to the rules laid down in sections 21, 22 and 24 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, and the table of consanguinity thereto annexed: X of 1865.

"undivided property" means a share in the property belonging to an undivided family: [Home Dept Office Memo dated 12th August, 1882 para. 7.]

"restricted owner," used with reference to any property, means a female acquiring that property in the manner specified in section 21, section 23, sub-section (2), section 24, sub-section (1), section 27 and section 39. [New.]

(2) When it is provided in this Act that the members of any class shall take property and the shares which they are respectively to take therein are not specified, they shall take equal shares therein.

4. For the purposes of this Act there shall be no distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property, nor between moveable and immoveable property, nor between those born in the lifetime of a deceased owner of property and those who at the date of his death were only conceived in the womb, but who have been subsequently born alive. [Bo. Bill, s. 7.] [Act X of 1865, s. 23.]

No distinction between ancestral and self-acquired, nor between moveable and immoveable, property.

Child in womb.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter II.—Of Succession to the Undivided Property of a Male Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 5-6.)

(Chapter III.—Of Succession to the Separate Property of a Male Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 7-20.)

CHAPTER II.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 8-12.]

OF SUCCESSION TO THE UNDIVIDED PROPERTY OF A MALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

5. (1) When a male Khojá owning undivided property dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal male descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, every such descendant shall be entitled to a share in that property unless one of the persons through whom he is descended from the intestate is living.

Where there are lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

(2) When the sharers under sub-section (1) all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, their shares shall be equal.

[Act X of 1865, s. 33.]

(3) When the sharers under sub-section (1) do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as will correspond with the number of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to him at his decease, and of his lineal male descendants of the like degree of kindred who died before him, and through whom the other sharers are descended from him; and one such share shall be allotted to each of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at his decease; and one such share shall be allotted in respect of each such deceased male descendant; and the share allotted in respect of each such deceased male descendant shall be divided among the sharers descended through him, in such manner that the sons of any person shall always take that which their father would have been entitled to if he had survived the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, s. 13.]

6. In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the property of the intestate shall be divided equally among all the male members of his undivided family living at his death.

Where there are no lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

CHAPTER III.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE SEPARATE PROPERTY OF A MALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, s. 16.]

7. When a male Khojá owning property, not being undivided property, dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal male descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, the property shall descend in the manner provided in section 5.

Where there are lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

[Bo. Bill, s. 17.]

8. In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the intestate's father shall succeed to the property.

In default of such lineal male descendants, property to belong to the intestate's father.

[Bo. Bill, s. 18.]

9. In default of the father, the intestate's mother shall succeed to the property.

In default of the father, to the mother.

[Bo. Bill, s. 19, see infra, s. 36.]

10. In default of the mother, the widow or widows of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of the mother, to the widows.

[Bo. Bill, s. 20.]

11. In default of widows, the daughters of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of widows, to the daughters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 21.]

12. (1) In default of daughters, the sons of daughters shall succeed to the property, the sons of each daughter taking an equal share:

In default of daughters, to daughters' sons and to brothers.

Provided that, if the intestate has left brothers surviving him, the daughters' sons shall succeed to a moiety of the property, the sons of each daughter taking an equal share, and the brothers shall take the other moiety.

[Bo. Bill, s. 22.]

13. In default of brothers, the daughters of the intestate's sons shall succeed to the property, the daughters of each son taking an equal share.

In default of brothers, to sons' daughters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 23.]

14. In default of sons' daughters, the sons of the intestate's brothers shall succeed to the property, the sons of each brother taking an equal share.

In default of sons' daughters, to brothers' sons.

[Bo. Bill, s. 24.]

15. In default of brothers' sons, the half-brothers of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of brothers' sons, to half-brothers.

[Bo. Bill, s. 25.]

16. In default of half-brothers, the sons of half-brothers shall succeed to the property, the sons of each half-brother taking an equal share.

In default of half-brothers, to half-brothers' sons.

[Bo. Bill, s. 26.]

17. In default of sons of half-brothers, the paternal grandfather shall succeed to the property; and in default of the paternal grandfather, the paternal grandmother shall succeed to it.

In default of half-brothers' sons, to the grandfather; and in default of the grandfather, to the grandmother.

[Bo. Bill, s. 27.]

18. In default of the paternal grandmother, the paternal uncles shall succeed to the property.

In default of the grandmother, to paternal uncles.

[Bo. Bill, s. 28.]

19. In default of paternal uncles, the sisters of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of paternal uncles, to sisters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 29.]

20. In default of sisters, the property shall belong to those of the intestate's relatives on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate; and, in default of relatives on the father's side, to those of the intestate's relatives on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate:

In default of sisters, to the nearest of kin.

Provided that no female relative shall be entitled to share in the property if there is a male relative standing on the same side in the same degree of kindred to the intestate.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter IV.—Of Succession to the Absolute Property of a Female Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 23-27.)

(Chapter V.—Of Property which a Female takes as Restricted Owner, and the further Succession to the same.—Section 28.)

[Bo. Bill, s. 33. See sec. 48, infra.]

When female takes as restricted owner under foregoing sections.

21. If, at the death of the intestate, any of the male heirs mentioned in sections 7 to 18 (both inclusive), or any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate, is living, a female succeeding under any of the foregoing sections shall take the property as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 30.]

Widow's right to retain possession of ornaments.

22. When a male Khojá dies intestate in respect of any ornaments belonging to him, and not being undivided property, which are in the possession of his wife with his consent, and the wife does not acquire the ownership, whether absolute or restricted, of the ornaments under this Act, she shall be entitled to retain possession of them until she dies or re-marries.

CHAPTER IV.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE ABSOLUTE PROPERTY OF A FEMALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, s. 38.]

Descent of unmarried female's absolute property.

23. (1) When an unmarried female Khojá owning property otherwise than as a restricted owner dies intestate in respect of that property, it shall belong to her brothers; in default of brothers, to her father; in default of the father, to her mother; in default of the mother, to the relatives of the intestate on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate; and, in default of such relatives, to the relatives on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 32 & 33.]

(2) If at the death of the intestate any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate is living, a female succeeding under this section, whether in preference to or together with that male relative, shall take the property as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 40.]

Descent of married female's absolute property.

24. (1) When a married female Khojá owning property otherwise than as restricted owner dies intestate in respect of that property, it shall belong to her sons and daughters; and the daughters shall take it as restricted owners.

[Bo. Bill, s. 32.]

(2) In default of sons and daughters, the property shall, except as provided in sub-section (3), belong to her husband.

(3) If the property has been given to the female on the occasion of her marriage separately from the "Dej" for her sole use and benefit by her parents or relatives, it shall, in default of sons and daughters, belong—

(a) to her father; and

(4) A female taking property under clause (b) of sub-section (3) shall not take it as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 37.]

Descent of absolute property of widow or divorced female leaving lineal descendants within the fourth degree.

25. (1) When a female Khojá, being a widow or divorced and owning property otherwise than as restricted owner, dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, every such descendant shall be entitled to a share of the property unless one of the persons through whom he is descended from the intestate is living.

(2) When the sharers under sub-section (1) all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, their shares shall be equal.

[Act X of 1865, s. 33.]

(3) When the sharers under sub-section (1) do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as may correspond with the number of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to her at her decease, and of lineal descendants of the like degree of kindred who died before her and through whom the other sharers are descended from her; and one such share shall be allotted to each of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at her decease; and one such share shall be allotted in respect of each such deceased descendant; and the share allotted in respect of each such deceased descendant shall be divided among the sharers descended through him, in such manner that the children of any person shall always take what that person would have been entitled to if he had survived the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, 37.]

Where there are no such lineal descendants.

26. (1) In default of the descendants mentioned in section 25, the property shall belong to the brothers of the intestate; in default of brothers, to her father; in default of the father, to her mother.

(2) In default of the mother, the property shall belong to the relatives of the intestate on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred, and, in default of such relatives, to the relatives of the intestate on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred.

When female taking under section 25 or 26 takes as restricted owner.

27. If, at the death of the intestate, any of the male heirs mentioned in section 25 and the first sub-section of section 26, or any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate, is living, a female succeeding under section 25 or section 26, whether in preference to or together with that heir or relative, shall take the property as restricted owner.

CHAPTER V.

OF PROPERTY WHICH A FEMALE TAKES AS RESTRICTED OWNER, AND THE FURTHER SUCCESSION TO THE SAME.

[Bo. Bill, s. "life-estate," "stridhan."]

Nature of restricted ownership generally.

28. A female taking property as restricted owner shall be absolutely entitled to the use of, and the income accruing from, that property during her life, and, except as otherwise provided by this Act, shall have all the other rights and powers of an absolute owner in respect of that property.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter V.—Of Property which a Female takes as Restricted Owner, and the further Succession to the same.—Sections 29-36.)

[Bo. Bill, s. 3; "life-estate."]

29. Except as provided by section 31, no right to, over or in respect of property created by a restricted owner of that property shall have effect for any time beyond her life.

Powers of alienation limited.

[New.]

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect a lease granted at a fair rent for a term not exceeding twenty years, and without payment of any fine or premium, or a right created for consideration in favour of a person acting in good faith, and without notice of the ownership being restricted.

Explanation.—A person has notice of the ownership being restricted when he actually knows that it is restricted, or when, but for wilful abstention from enquiry or gross negligence, he would have known it, or when information of it is given to, or obtained by, his agent under the circumstances mentioned in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 229.

IX of 1872.

30. A female taking property as restricted owner shall be bound, so far as it is possible for her to do so without applying her other property for that purpose,—

Obligations of restricted owner.

(a) to preserve the substance of the property without any material alteration, deterioration, or diminution except such as may be essential to the realization of the full income of it in a reasonable manner, and to deal with it in all respects as carefully as a person of ordinary prudence would deal with property which he hoped to transmit in good condition to his heirs; and

(b) to make such payments, institute, maintain and defend such suits and other proceedings, and take such other steps as, regard being had to the nature and amount or value of the property, may be reasonably requisite for the assertion and protection of the title thereto, for the protection of the interest of those who are to take it after her, or for the recovery of any portion of it which is not in her possession.

[Bo. Bill, s. 3; "life-estate."]

31. A female taking property as restricted owner shall have power to transfer the same, so that the transfer may have effect beyond her life when, the income being insufficient, such transfer is necessary in order to raise money for any of the following purposes, namely:—

Restricted owner's power of transfer.

(a) to discharge any of the obligations imposed by section 30;

(b) to discharge the debts of the absolute owner from whom the property descended;

(c) to provide for the maintenance of any persons entitled under this Act to have their maintenance provided for out of the property, for the payment of any marriage expenses or funeral expenses payable under this Act out of the property, and for the performance of any ordinary family ceremonies; and

[New.] [Act II of 1882, s. 34.]

32. (1) A restricted owner of property may, without instituting a suit, apply by petition to a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction to sanction any transfer of that property which she proposes to make under section 31.

Power to apply to Court to sanction a transfer under section 31.

(2) The petition must state the names of all the persons interested in the application so far as they can be ascertained, and must be verified by the applicant or by some other competent person in the manner required by law for the verification of plaints; and, if it contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, that person shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 18

(3) A copy of the petition shall be served upon, and the hearing thereof may be attended by, such of the persons interested in the application as the Court thinks fit.

(4) A transfer made with the sanction of a Court obtained under this section shall be deemed to be warranted by section 31.

[New.]

33. A Court dealing with an application under section 32 may, if it thinks fit, sanction the transfer proposed subject to the condition that the money raised by the transfer shall be paid into Court or to trustees appointed by the Court, and may give such further directions as it thinks fit with a view to ensuring that the money shall be applied to the purpose for which it is raised, or that any balance thereof which is not required for that purpose, shall be secured for the benefit of those who would take the property after the restricted owner.

Power to direct money raised to be paid into Court.

34. When property belonging to a female as restricted owner is sold in execution of a decree passed against her, the interest taken by the purchaser shall cease on her death,—

Effect of sale in execution against restricted owner.

except when, without any collusion between her and the plaintiff,—

(a) the decree is passed against her as representative of the absolute owner from whom the property descended; or

(b) the decree is one for sale passed on a mortgage made under section 31 so as to take effect beyond the life of the female.

35. A decision in any suit or other proceeding, or a compromise of any dispute, relating to the property to which the restricted owner is a party, shall, except where she acts in collusion with the party opposed to her, bind those who take the property after her under this Act in the same manner and to the same extent as if she were an absolute owner of the property.

Effect of decision or compromise to which the restricted owner is a party.

36. In any case in which, under any enactment for the time being in force, an owner of property would by lapse of time lose any right to, over or in respect of that property, or any means of enforcing any such right, or another person would by lapse of time acquire any right to, over or in respect of that property, any period which elapses during the continuance of the restricted ownership shall be reckoned as against those taking the property after the termination of that ownership in the same manner and to the same extent as if the restricted owner had been an absolute owner of the property and it had been taken by them as her heirs.

Further descent of property held by unmarried female as restricted owner.

37. (1) When property has descended to a female as restricted owner and she dies unmarried, it shall belong to the person to whom it would then have belonged if she had died before the absolute owner from whom it descended and it had descended under this Act without having been alienated.

(2) In default of such person, the property shall descend as if the female were not a restricted owner.

Further descent of restricted property of married or divorced female or widow.

38. (1) When property has descended to a female as restricted owner and she dies, being at the time of her death married, a widow or divorced from her husband, the property shall be divided among her legitimate lineal male descendants, not being more remote than the fourth degree, those nearest in degree of kindred to her excluding the more remote, and, when those nearest in degree are not her sons, the property being so divided amongst them that the sons of any person shall take the share which he would have taken if the fathers of all had survived the restricted owner.

(2) In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the property shall belong to the daughters of the deceased; in default of daughters, the property shall belong to the legitimate lineal male descendants of daughters, not being more remote from the deceased than the fourth degree, those nearest in degree excluding the more remote; the descendants of each daughter, when they take, taking an equal share, and when they are not sons of the daughters, that share being so divided among them that the sons of any person shall take what he would have taken if the fathers of all had survived the restricted owner.

(3) In default of legitimate lineal male descendants of daughters as aforesaid, the property shall belong to the person to whom it would then have belonged if the restricted owner had died before the absolute owner from whom it descended, and it had descended under this Act without having been alienated.

(4) In default of such person, the property shall descend as if the female were not a restricted owner.

When female taking property under sections 37 and 38 takes as restricted owner.

39. When property, having descended to a female as restricted owner, subsequently descends to another female under section 37, sub-section (1), or section 38, sub-section (3), that female shall take it as restricted owner.

Widows taking together as restricted owners to have a right of survivorship.

40. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, when two or more widows of a deceased Khojá take his property under this Act as restricted owners,—

(1) there shall be as between them a right of survivorship in respect of that property;

(2) the proviso to section 29 shall not apply to any lease of or any right to, over or in respect of the property, or any part or share thereof, granted or created by one or more of them without the consent in writing of the other or others of them then surviving;

(3) section 31 and section 32 shall not apply to any transfer made by one or more of them without the consent in writing of the other or others of them then surviving;

Effect of re-marriage of widow claiming or holding as restricted owner.

41. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, a widow marrying again after her husband's death shall not be entitled to take as restricted owner his property or any property of any of his lineal descendants which has descended to them from him; and a widow taking any such property as restricted owner under the foregoing sections and subsequently marrying again shall, for the purpose of applying sections 28, 29, 31, 38 and 40, to that property, be deemed to have died. [Bo. Bill, & 34 Act XV of 1856, s. 2.]

CHAPTER VI.

OF WILLS OF KHOJÁS.

Extension of portions of Act X of 1865 with certain modifications to wills of Khojás.

42. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the portions of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, with the modifications shown in that schedule, shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section 331 of that Act, apply to all wills made by a Khojá, whether male or female, dying on or after the first day of January eighteen hundred and eighty-five; and [Bo. Bill, 4, 5 & 6. X of 1865.

in the portions of the Act so applying all words defined in section 3 of the Act shall, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to have the same meaning as that section has attached to them respectively;

Provided that—

(a) For the purpose of the portions of the Act so applying, no person to whom the Indian Majority Act, 1875, applies shall be deemed to have attained his majority before the time specified in this behalf in that Act. IX of 1875.

(b) A bequest by a Khojá in favour of any person who has not come into existence at the death of the testator, or in favour of a class of persons any one of whom has not come into existence at that time, shall be void.

(c) When a bequest is void under clause (b), any bequest contained in the same will and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior bequest shall also be void.

Bequest of property to woman without power to transfer or charge.

43. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing sections, a Khojá may bequeath property to or for the benefit of a woman so that she shall not have power to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein. [Act IV of 1882, s. 10.]

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 48-51.)

CHAPTER VII.

OF MAINTENANCE AND MARRIAGE AND FUNERAL EXPENSES.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 34 & 43.]

Maintenance and funeral expenses payable out of intestate's property.

44. (1) The amount requisite for the maintenance of the following persons and the amount of their necessary funeral expenses shall, if they do not possess or leave means sufficient for the purpose, be payable out of any property of a deceased male Khojá in respect of which he has died intestate.

(2) The persons referred to are—

(a) the widow or widows of the deceased Khojá and the widows of his legitimate lineal male descendants, provided they have not married again;

(b) every daughter and sister (whether legitimate or not) of the deceased Khojá, and every legitimate daughter of his son, grandson or great-grandson, except when she has been married and her husband is living;

(c) the father, mother, grandfather and grandmother of the deceased Khojá; and

[Bo. Bill, s. 44.]

Marriage expenses payable out of intestate's property.

45. The expenses of the first or only marriage of every daughter (whether legitimate or not) of a deceased male Khojá, and of every legitimate daughter of his deceased son, grandson or great-grandson, if not otherwise sufficiently provided for, shall be payable out of any of his property in respect of which he has died intestate.

Maintenance and funeral expenses payable out of property of testator.

46. If a male Khojá dies leaving a legitimate lineal male descendant who has not attained his majority, or a daughter who is unmarried or a widow, and having disposed of his property by will in such a manner as to leave that descendant, daughter or widow without sufficient means for the purpose, the amount requisite for the maintenance, of the descendant during his minority, or of the daughter while she remains unmarried or of the widow until her death or re-marriage (as the case may be) shall be payable out of the testator's property; and if the descendant dies before he attains his majority or the daughter dies unmarried or the widow dies without re-marrying, his or her necessary funeral expenses shall be payable out of that property.

Recovery of sums claimable under sections 44, 45 and 46.

47. Any sum claimable for maintenance or marriage expenses or funeral expenses under section 44, section 45 or section 46 out of any property of a deceased male Khojá shall be recoverable as if it was due under a contract made by the Khojá in his lifetime and he had died leaving only that property:

Provided that—

first, the property shall be applied to the payment of debts due by the deceased before being applied to the payment of sums so claimable;

secondly, no decree shall be passed for arrears of any allowance on account of maintenance unless the amount of the allowance has been fixed by agreement or by order of a Court; and

thirdly, when a suit is instituted for the purpose of having any such allowance fixed against a person taking the property by intestate succession, and that person is able and willing to maintain or provide for the maintenance of the person by or on whose behalf the suit is instituted, and gives security to the satisfaction of the Court for his so doing, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dismiss the suit.

CHAPTER VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

[Bo. Bill, s. 42. Act X of 1865, s. 28.]

Property when to go to the Crown.

48. When a Khojá dies intestate in respect of any of his property, and there is no person entitled to take that property under the foregoing sections, it shall go to the Crown.

Females succeeding under this Act to take as males, except in certain cases.

49. Except as otherwise provided by this Act—

(2) a female taking property under any testamentary disposition under this Act shall have the same interest in it, and the same powers in respect of it, as a male taking under a like disposition.

[Bo. Bill, s. 35. Act XV of 1856, s. 3.]

Guardianship of children where widow re-marries.

50. If a widow of a deceased Khojá, not having been appointed by his will to be guardian for his children, marries again, she shall not be entitled as of right to be appointed guardian of the children by a Court under any law for the time being in force relating to the appointment of guardians, and, when she has before her re-marriage been so appointed, a Court having jurisdiction to appoint a guardian for the children may in its discretion remove her from the guardianship.

Property transferable by gift made in contemplation of death.

51. A Khojá may dispose, by gift made in contemplation of death, of any moveable property which he could dispose of by will.

When gift said to be made in contemplation of death.

A gift is said to be made in contemplation of death where a person who is ill and expects to die shortly of his illness delivers to another the possession of any moveable property to keep as a gift in case the donor shall die of that illness.

Such gift resumable.

Such a gift may be resumed by the giver.

When it fails.

It does not take effect if he recovers from the illness during which it was made, nor if he survives the person to whom it was made.

a bill of exchange endorsed in blank:

certain mortgage-deeds.

A dies of the illness during which he delivered these articles.

B is entitled to—the watch:

the debt secured by C's bond:

the bank-note:

the promissory note of the Government of India:

the bill of exchange:

the money secured by the mortgage-deeds.

(b.) A being ill, and in expectation of death, delivers to B the key of a trunk, or the key of a warehouse in which goods of bulk belonging to A are deposited, with the intention of giving him the control over the contents of the trunk, or over the deposited goods, and desires him to keep them in case of A's death. A dies of the illness during which he delivered these articles. B is entitled to the trunk and its contents, or to A's goods of bulk in the warehouse.

(c.) A being ill and in expectation of death, puts aside certain articles in separate parcels, and marks upon the parcels respectively the names of B and C. The parcels are not delivered during the life of A. A dies of the illness during which he set aside the parcels. B and C are not entitled to the contents of the parcels.

SCHEDULE.

(See Section 42.)

PORTIONS OF THE INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT (X OF 1865) MODIFIED FOR APPLICATION TO WILLS MADE BY KHOJÁS.

Note.—Modifications are shewn in italics; omissions by asterisks.

PART VII.

Of Wills and Codicils.

Persons capable of making wills.

46. Every person of sound mind and not a minor may dispose of his property by will.

Explanation 1.—A married woman may dispose by will of any property which she could alienate by her own act during her life.

Explanation 2.—Persons who are deaf, or dumb, or blind are not thereby incapacitated for making a will if they are able to know what they do by it.

Explanation 3.—One who is ordinarily insane may make a will during an interval in which he is of sound mind.

Explanation 4.—No person can make a will while he is in such a state of mind, whether arising from drunkenness, or from illness, or from any other cause, that he does not know what he is doing.

Illustrations.

(a.) A can perceive what is going on in his immediate neighbourhood, and can answer familiar questions, but has not a competent understanding as to the nature of his property, or the persons who are of kindred to him, or in whose favour it would be proper that he should make his will. A cannot make a valid will.

(b.) A executes an instrument purporting to be his will, but he does not understand the nature of the instrument nor the effect of its provisions. This instrument is not a valid will.

(c.) A, being very feeble and debilitated, but capable of exercising a judgment as to the proper mode of disposing of his property, makes a will. This is a valid will.

Testamentary guardian.

47. A father, whatever his age may be, may by will appoint a guardian or guardians for his child during minority.

Will obtained by fraud, coercion or importunity.

Illustrations.

(a.) A falsely and knowingly represents to the testator that the testator's only child is dead, or that he has done some undutiful act, and thereby induces the testator to make a will in his, A's, favour; such will has been obtained by fraud and is invalid.

(b.) A by fraud and deception prevails upon the testator to bequeath a legacy to him. The bequest is void.

(c.) A, being a prisoner by lawful authority, makes his will. The will is not invalid by reason of the imprisonment.

(d.) A threatens to shoot B, or to burn his house, or to cause him to be arrested on a criminal charge, unless he makes a bequest in favour of C. B in consequence makes a bequest in favour of A. The bequest is void, the making of it having been caused by coercion.

(e.) A being of sufficient intellect, if undisturbed by the influence of others, to make a will, yet being so much under the control of B that he is not a free agent, makes a will dictated by B. It appears that he would not have executed the will but for fear of B. The will is invalid.

(f.) A, being in so feeble a state of health as to be unable to resist importunity, is pressed by B to make a will of a certain purport, and does so merely to purchase peace, and in submission to B. The will is invalid.

(g.) A being in such a state of health as to be capable of exercising his own judgment and volition, B uses urgent intercession and persuasion with him to induce him to make a will of a certain purport. A, in consequence of the intercession and persuasion, but in the free exercise of his judgment and volition, makes his will in the manner recommended by B. The will is not rendered invalid by the intercession and persuasion of B.

(h.) A, with a view to obtaining a legacy from B, pays him attention and flatters him, and thereby produces in him a capricious partiality to A. B, in consequence of such attention and flattery, makes his will, by which he leaves a legacy to A. The bequest is not rendered invalid by the attention and flattery of A.

Will may be revoked or altered.

49. A will is liable to be revoked or altered by the maker of it at any time when he is competent to dispose of his property by will.

PART VIII.

Of the Execution of Unprivileged Wills.

Execution of unprivileged wills.

50. Every testator, not being a soldier employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or a mariner at sea, must execute his will according to the following rules:—

First.—The testator shall sign or shall affix his mark to the will, or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction.

Second.—The signature or mark of the testator, or the signature of the person signing for him, shall be so placed that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a will.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

Third.—The will shall be attested by two or more witnesses, each of whom must have seen the testator sign or affix his mark to the will, or have seen some other person sign the will in the presence and by the direction of the testator, or have received from the testator a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person; and each of the witnesses must sign or affix his mark to the will in the presence of the testator, but it shall not be necessary that more than one witness be present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary.

Incorporation of papers by reference.

51. If a testator, in a will or codicil duly attested, refers to any other document then actually written, as expressing any part of his intentions, such document shall be considered as forming a part of the will or codicil in which it is referred to.

PART IX.

Of Privileged Wills.

Privileged wills.

52. Any soldier being employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or any mariner being at sea, may, if he has completed the age of eighteen years, dispose of his property by a will made as is mentioned in the fifty-third section. Such wills are called privileged wills.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, the surgeon of a regiment, is actually employed in an expedition. He is a soldier actually employed in an expedition, and can make a privileged will.

(b.) A is at sea in a merchant-ship, of which he is the purser. He is a mariner, and being at sea can make a privileged will.

(c.) A, a soldier serving in the field against insurgents, is a soldier engaged in actual warfare, and as such can make a privileged will.

(d.) A, a mariner of a ship in the course of a voyage, is temporarily on shore, while she is lying in harbour. He is, in the sense of the words used in this clause, a mariner at sea, and can make a privileged will.

(e.) A, an admiral who commands a naval force, but who lives on shore, and only occasionally goes on board his ship, is not considered as at sea, and cannot make a privileged will.

(f.) A, a mariner serving on a military expedition, but not being at sea, is considered as a soldier, and can make a privileged will.

Mode of making, and rules for executing, privileged wills.

53. Privileged wills may be in writing, or may be made by word of mouth.

The execution of them shall be governed by the following rules :—

First.—The will may be written wholly by the testator, with his own hand. In such case it need not be signed nor attested.

Second.—It may be written wholly or in part by another person, and signed by the testator. In such case it need not be attested.

Third.—If the instrument purporting to be a will is written wholly or in part by another person, and is not signed by the testator, it shall be considered to be his will, if it be shown that it was written by the testator's directions, or that he recognized it as his will.

If it appear on the face of the instrument that the execution of it in the manner intended by him was not completed, the instrument shall not by reason of that circumstance be invalid, provided that his non-execution of it can be reasonably ascribed to some cause other than the abandonment of the testamentary intentions expressed in the instrument.

Fourth.—If the soldier or mariner shall have written instructions for the preparation of his will, but shall have died before it could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will.

Fifth.—If the soldier or mariner shall, in the presence of two witnesses, have given verbal instructions for the preparation of his will, and they shall have been reduced into writing in his lifetime, but he shall have died before the instrument could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will, although they may not have been reduced into writing in his presence, nor read over to him.

Sixth.—Such soldier or mariner as aforesaid may make a will by word of mouth by declaring his intentions before two witnesses present at the same time.

Seventh.—A will made by word of mouth shall be null at the expiration of one month after the testator shall have ceased to be entitled to make a privileged will.

PART X.

Of the Attestation, Revocation, Alteration and Revival of Wills.

* * * * * * * * *

Witness not disqualified by interest or by being executor.

55. No person, by reason of interest in, or of his being an executor of, a will, is disqualified as a witness to prove the execution of the will or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof.

* * * * * * * * *

Revocation of unprivileged will or codicil.

57. No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, shall be revoked otherwise than * * * * * by another will or codicil, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which an unprivileged will is hereinbefore required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Illustrations.

(a.) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards A makes another unprivileged will which purports to revoke the first. This is a revocation.

(b.) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards, A being entitled to make a privileged will, makes a privileged will which purports to revoke his unprivileged will. This is a revocation.

Effect of obliteration, interlineation or alteration in unprivileged will.

58. No obliteration, interlineation or other alteration made in any unprivileged will after the execution thereof shall have any effect, except so far as the words or meaning of the will shall have been thereby rendered illegible or undiscernible, unless such alteration shall be executed in like manner as hereinbefore is required for the execution of the will; save that the will,

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

as so altered, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses be made in the margin or on some other part of the will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of or opposite to a memorandum referring to such alteration, and written at the end or some other part of the will.

Revocation of privileged will or codicil.

59. A privileged will or codicil may be revoked by the testator, by an unprivileged will or codicil, or by any act expressing an intention to revoke it, and accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Explanation.—In order to the revocation of a privileged will or codicil by an act accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, it is not necessary that the testator should at the time of doing that act be in a situation which entitles him to make a privileged will.

Revival of unprivileged will.

60. No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked, shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and showing an intention to revive the same;

Extent of revival of will or codicil partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked.

and when any will or codicil which shall be partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked shall be revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary shall be shown by the will or codicil.

PART XI.

Of the Construction of Wills.

Wording of will.

Enquiries to determine questions as to object or subject of will.

62. For the purpose of determining questions as to what person or what property is denoted by any words used in a will a Court must inquire into every material fact relating to the persons who claim to be interested under such will, the property which is claimed as the subject of disposition, the circumstances of the testator and of his family, and into every fact a knowledge of which may conduce to the right application of the words which the testator has used.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, by his will, bequeaths 1,000 rupees to his eldest son or to his youngest grandchild, or to his cousin Mary. A Court may make inquiry in order to ascertain to what person the description in the will applies.

(b.) A, by his will, leaves to B "his estate called Black Acre." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what is the subject-matter of the bequest; that is to say, what estate of the testator's is called Black Acre.

(c.) A, by his will, leaves to B "the estate which he purchased of C." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what estate the testator purchased of C.

Misnomer or misdescription of object.

63. Where the words used in the will to designate or describe a legatee, or a class of legatees, sufficiently show what is meant, an error in the name or description shall not prevent the legacy from taking effect.

A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother, named John, who has no son named Thomas, but has a second son whose name is William. William shall have the legacy.

(b.) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, whose first son is named Thomas, and whose second son is named William. Thomas shall have the legacy.

(c.) The testator bequeaths his property "to A and B, the legitimate children of C." C has no legitimate child, but has two illegitimate children, A and B. The bequest to A and B takes effect, although they are illegitimate.

(d.) The testator gives his residuary estate to be divided among "his seven children," and proceeding to enumerate them, mentions six names only. This omission shall not prevent the seventh child from taking a share with the others.

(e.) The testator, having six grand-children, makes a bequest to "his six grand-children," and proceeding to mention them by their Christian names, mentions one twice over, omitting another altogether. The one whose name is not mentioned shall take a share with the others.

(f.) The testator bequeaths "1,000 rupees to each of the three children of A." At the date of the will A has four children. Each of these four children shall, if he survives the testator, receive a legacy of 1,000 rupees.

When words may be supplied.

64. Where any word material to the full expression of the meaning has been omitted, it may be supplied by the context.

Illustration.

The testator gives a legacy of "five hundred" to his daughter A, and a legacy of "five hundred rupees" to his daughter B. A shall take a legacy of five hundred rupees.

Rejection of erroneous particulars in description of object.

65. If the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous and the bequest shall take effect.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, but had no marsh-lands in the occupation of X. The words "in the occupation of X" shall be rejected as erroneous, and the marsh-lands of the testator lying in L shall pass by the bequest.

(b.) The testator bequeaths to A "his zamíndárí of Rámpúr." He had an estate at Rámpúr, but it was a talúq and not a zamíndárí. The talúq passes by this bequest.

When part of description may not be rejected as erroneous.

66. If the will mentions several circumstances as descriptive of the thing which the testator intends to bequeath, and there is any property of his in respect of which all those circumstances exist, the bequest shall be considered as limited to such property, and it shall not be lawful to reject any part of the description as erroneous because the testator had other property to which such part of the description does not apply.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

Explanation.—In judging whether a case falls within the meaning of this section, any words which would be liable to rejection under the sixty-fifth section are to be considered as struck out of the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The bequest shall be considered as limited to such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X.

(b.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X, comprising 1,000 bighás of land." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The measurement is wholly inapplicable to the marsh-lands of either class, or to the whole taken together. The measurement shall be considered as struck out of the will, and such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X shall alone pass by the bequest.

67. Where the words of the will are unambiguous, but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications one only of which can have been intended by the testator, extrinsic evidence may be taken to show which of these applications was intended.

Extrinsic evidence admissible in case of latent ambiguity.

Illustrations.

(a.) A man, having two cousins of the name of Mary, bequeaths a sum of money to "his cousin Mary." It appears that there are two persons each answering the description in the will. That description, therefore, admits of two applications, only one of which can have been intended by the testator. Evidence is admissible to show which of the two applications was intended.

(b.) A. by his will, leaves to B "his estate called Sultánpur Khurd." It turns out that he had two estates called Sultánpur Khurd. Evidence is admissible to show which estate was intended.

68. Where there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the will, no extrinsic evidence as to the intentions of the testator shall be admitted.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible in cases of patent ambiguity or deficiency.

Illustrations.

(a.) A man has an aunt Caroline and a cousin Mary, and has no aunt of the name of Mary. By his will he bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "his aunt Caroline" and 1,000 rupees to "his cousin Mary," and afterwards bequeaths 2,000 rupees to "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." There is no person to whom the description given in the will can apply, and evidence is not admissible to show who was meant by "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." The bequest is therefore void for uncertainty under the seventy-sixth section.

(b.) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to , leaving a blank for the name of the legatee. Evidence is not admissible to show what name the testator intended to insert.

(c.) A bequeaths to B rupees or "his estate of ." Evidence is not admissible to show what sum or what estate the testator intended to insert.

69. The meaning of any clause in a will is to be collected from the entire instrument, and all its parts are to be construed with reference to each other; and for this purpose a codicil is to be considered as part of the will.

Meaning of clause to be collected from entire will.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator gives to B a specific fund or property at the date of A, and by a subsequent clause gives the whole of his property to A. The effect of the several clauses taken together is to vest the specific fund or property in A for life and after his decease in B; it appearing from the bequest to B that the testator meant to use in a restricted sense the words in which he describes what he gives to A.

(b.) Where a testator, having an estate one part of which is called Black Acre, bequeaths the whole of his estate to A, and in another part of his will bequeaths Black Acre to B, the latter bequest is to be read as an exception out of the first, as if he had said, "I give Black Acre to B and all the rest of my estate to A."

70. General words may be understood in a restricted sense where it may be collected from the will that the testator meant to use them in a restricted sense; and words may be understood in a wider sense than that which they usually bear, where it may be collected from the other words of the will that the testator meant to use them in such wider sense.

When words may be understood in restricted sense and when in sense wider than usual.

Illustrations.

(a.) A testator gives to A "his farm in the occupation of B," and to C "all his marsh-lands in L." Part of the farm in the occupation of B consists of marsh-lands in L, and the testator also has other marsh-lands in L. The general words, "all his marsh-lands in L," are restricted by the gift to A. A takes the whole of the farm in the occupation of B, including the portion of the farm which consists of marsh-lands in L.

(b.) The testator (a sailor on ship-board) bequeathed to his mother his gold ring, buttons and chest of clothes, and to his friend A (a shipmate) his red box, clasp-knife and all things not before bequeathed. The testator's share in a house does not pass to A under this bequest.

(c.) A, by his will, bequeathed to B all his household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, pictures and all other goods of whatever kind; and afterwards bequeathed to B a specified part of his property. Under the first bequest, B is entitled only to such articles of the testator's as are of the same nature with the articles therein enumerated.

71. Where a clause is susceptible of two meanings, according to one of which it has some effect, and according to the other it can have none, the former is to be preferred.

Which of two possible constructions preferred.

72. No part of a will is to be rejected as destitute of meaning if it is possible to put a reasonable construction upon it.

No part rejected, if it can be reasonably construed.

73. If the same words occur in different parts of the same will, they must be taken to have been used everywhere in the same sense, unless there appears an intention to the contrary.

Interpretation of words repeated in different parts of will.

74. The intention of the testator is not to be set aside because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but effect is to be given to it as far as possible.

Testator's intention to be effectuated as far as possible.

* * * * * *

75. Where two clauses or gifts in a will are irreconcileable, so that they cannot possibly stand together, the last shall prevail.

The last of two inconsistent clauses prevails.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator by the first clause of his will leaves his estate of Rs. to A," and by the last clause of his will leaves it "to B and not to A." B shall have it.

(b.) If a man at the commencement of his will gives his house to A, and at the close of it directs that his house shall be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of B, the latter disposition shall prevail.

76. A will or bequest not expressive of any definite intention is void for uncertainty.

Will or bequest void for uncertainty.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Illustration.

If a testator says—"I bequeath goods to A"; or "I bequeath to A"; or "I leave to A all the goods mentioned in a schedule," and no schedule is found; or "I bequeath 'money,' 'wheat,' 'oil,'" or the like, without saying how much, this is void.

77. The description contained in a will, of property the subject of gift, shall, unless a contrary intention appear by the will, be deemed to refer to and comprise the property answering that description at the death of the testator.

Words describing subject refer to property answering description at testator's death.

* * * * * *

82. Where property is bequeathed to any person, he is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless it appears from the will that only a restricted interest was intended for him.

Bequest without words of limitation.

83. Where property is bequeathed to a person with a bequest in the alternative to another person or to a class of persons, if a contrary intention does not appear by the will, the legatee first named shall be entitled to the legacy, if he be alive at the time when it takes effect; but if he be then dead, the person or class of persons named in the second branch of the alternative shall take the legacy.

Bequest in alternative.

Illustrations.

(b.) A bequest is made to A or to B. A dies after the date of the will, and before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(c.) A bequest is made to A or to B. A is dead at the date of the will. The legacy goes to B.

(d.) Property is bequeathed to A or his heirs. A survives the testator. A takes the property absolutely.

(e.) Property is bequeathed to A or his nearest of kin. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. Upon the death of the testator, the bequest to A's nearest of kin takes effect.

* * * * * *

84. Where property is bequeathed to a person, and words are added which describe a class of persons, but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless a contrary intention appears by the will.

Effect of words describing a class added to bequest to a person.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequest is made—

to A and his children,
to A and his children by his present wife,
to A and his heirs,
to A and the heirs of his body,
to A and the heirs male of his body,
to A and the heirs female of his body,
to A and his issue,
to A and his family,
to A and his descendants,
to A and his representatives,
to A and his personal representatives,
to A, his executors and administators.

In each of these cases, A takes the whole interest which the testator had in the property.

(b.) A bequest is made to A and his brothers. A and his brothers are jointly entitled to the legacy.

* * * * * *

85. Where a bequest is made to a class of persons under a general description only, no one to whom the words of the description are not in their ordinary sense applicable shall take the legacy.

Bequest to class of persons under general description only.

* * * * * *

88. Where a will purports to make two bequests to the same person, and a question arises whether the testator intended to make the second bequest instead of or in addition to the first, if there is nothing in the will to show what he intended, the following rules shall prevail in determining the construction to be put upon the will:—

Rules of construction where will purports to make two bequests to same person.

First.—If the same specific thing is bequeathed twice to the same legatee in the same will, or in the will and again in a codicil, he is entitled to receive that specific thing only.

Second.—Where one and the same will or one and the same codicil purports to make, in two places, a bequest to the same person of the same quantity or amount of anything, he shall be entitled to one such legacy only.

Third.—Where two legacies of unequal amount are given to the same person in the same will, or in the same codicil, the legatee is entitled to both.

Fourth.—Where two legacies, whether equal or unequal in amount, are given to the same legatee, one by a will and the other by a codicil, or each by a different codicil, the legatee is entitled to both legacies.

Explanation.—In the four last rules, the word "will" does not include a codicil.

Illustrations.

(a.) A having ten shares, and no more, in the Bank of Bengal, made his will, which contains near its commencement the words "I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." After other bequests, the will concludes with the words "and I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." B is entitled simply to receive A's ten shares in the Bank of Bengal.

(b.) A having one diamond-ring, which was given him by B, bequeathed to C the diamond-ring which was given him by B. A afterwards made a codicil to his will, and thereby, after giving other legacies, he bequeathed to C the diamond-ring which was given him by B. C can claim nothing except the diamond-ring which was given to A by B.

(c.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees, and afterwards, in the same will, repeats the bequest in the same words. B is entitled to one legacy of 5,000 rupees only.

(d.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees, and afterwards, by the same will, bequeaths to B the sum of 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to 11,000 rupees.

(e.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees, and by a codicil to the will he bequeaths to him 5,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees.

(f.) A, by one codicil to his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees, and by another codicil, bequeaths to him 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 rupees.

(g.) A, by his will, bequeaths "500 rupees to B because she was his nurse," and in another part of the will bequeaths 500 rupees to B "because she went to England with his children." B is entitled to receive 1,000 rupees.

(h.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also, in another part of the will, an annuity of 400 rupees. B is entitled to both legacies.

(i.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also bequeaths to him the sum of 5,000 rupees if he shall attain the age of 18. B is entitled absolutely to one sum of 5,000 rupees, and take a contingent interest in another sum of 5,000 rupees.

89. A residuary legatee may be constituted by any words that show an intention on the part of the testator that the person designated shall take the surplus or residue of his property.

Constitution of residuary legatee.

(a.) A makes her will, consisting of several testamentary papers, in one of which are contained the following words:—"I think there will be something left, after all funeral expenses, &c., to give to B, now at school, towards equipping him to any profession he may hereafter be appointed to." B is constituted residuary legatee.

(b.) A makes his will, with the following passage at the end of it:—"I believe there will be found sufficient in my banker's hands to defray and discharge my debts, which I hereby desire B to do, and keep the residue for her own use and pleasure." B is constituted the residuary legatee.

(c.) A bequeaths all his property to B, except certain stocks and funds, which he bequeaths to C. B is the residuary legatee.

90. Under a residuary bequest, the legatee is entitled to all property belonging to the testator at the time of his death, of which he has not made any other testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

Property to which residuary legatee entitled.

91. If a legacy be given in general terms, without specifying the time when it is to be paid, the legatee has a vested interest in it from the day of the death of the testator, and, if he dies without having received it, it shall pass to his representatives.

Time of vesting of legacy in general terms.

92. If the legatee does not survive the testator, the legacy cannot take effect, but shall lapse and form part of the residue of the testator's property, unless it appear by the will that the testator intended that it should go to some other person.

In what case legacy lapses.

In order to entitle the representatives of the legatee to receive the legacy, it must be proved that he survived the testator.

Illustrations.

(a) The testator bequeaths to B "500 rupees which B owes him." B dies before the testator; the legacy lapses.

(b.) A bequest is made to A and his children. A dies before the testator or happens to be dead when the will is made. The legacy to A and his children lapses.

(c.) A legacy is given to A, and in case of his dying before the testator, to B. A dies before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(d.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. B survives the testator. The bequest to B takes effect.

(e.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A on his completing his eighteenth year, and in case he should die before he completes his eighteenth year, to B. A completes his eighteenth year, and dies in the lifetime of the testator. The legacy to A lapses, and the bequest to B does not take effect.

(f.) The testator and the legatee perished in the same shipwreck. There is no evidence to show which died first. The legacy will lapse.

93. If a legacy be given to two persons jointly, and one of them die before the testator, the other legatee takes the whole.

Legacy does not lapse if one of two joint legatees die before testator.

Illustration.

The legacy is simply to A and B. A dies before the testator. B takes the legacy.

94. But where a legacy is given to legatees in words which show that the testator intended to give them distinct shares of it, then if any legatee die before the testator, so much of the legacy as was intended for him shall fall into the residue of the testator's property.

Effect of words showing testator's intention to give distinct shares.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed to A, B and C, to be equally divided among them. A dies before the testator. B and C shall only take so much as they would have had if A had survived the testator.

95. Where the share that lapses is a part of the general residue bequeathed by the will, that share shall go as undisposed of.

When lapsed share goes as undisposed of.

Illustration.

The testator bequeaths the residue of his estate to A, B and C, to be equally divided between them. A dies before the testator. His one-third of the residue goes as undisposed of.

96. Where a bequest shall have been made to any son or other legitimate lineal male descendant of the testator, and the legatee shall die in the lifetime of the testator, but any legitimate lineal male descendant of his shall survive the testator, the bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

When bequest to testator's lineal descendant does not lapse on his death in testator's lifetime.

Illustration.

A makes his will, by which he bequeaths a sum of money to his son B for his own absolute use and benefit. B dies before A, leaving a son C who survives A, and having made his will whereby he bequeaths all his property to his widow D. The money goes to D.

97. Where a bequest is made to one person for the benefit of another, the legacy does not lapse by the death, in the testator's lifetime, of the person to whom the bequest is made.

Bequest to A for benefit of B does not lapse by A's death.

98. Where a bequest is made simply to a described class of persons, the thing bequeathed shall go only to such as shall be alive at the testator's death.

Survivorship in case of bequest to described class.

(a.) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "the children of B" without saying when it is to be distributed among them. B had died previous to the date of the will, leaving three children, C, D and E. E died after the date of the will, but for the death of A. C and D survive A. The legacy shall belong to C and D, to the exclusion of the representatives of E.

(b.) A bequeaths a legacy to the children of B. At the time of the testator's death, B has no chidren. The bequest is void.

* * * * * * *

PART XII.

OF VOID BEQUESTS.

99. Where a bequest is made to a person by a particular description, and there is no person in existence at the testator's death who answers the description, the bequest is void.

Bequest to person by particular description, who is not in existence at testator's death.

* * * * * *

101. No bequest is valid whereby the vesting of the thing bequeathed may be delayed beyond the lifetime of one or more persons living at the testator's decease.

Rule against perpetuity.

* * * * * *

102. If a bequest is made to a class of persons, with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the rules contained in the last preceding section, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Bequest to a class, some of whom may come under rules in section 101.

* * * * * *

Bequest to take effect on failure of bequest void under section 101 or 102.

* * * * * *

104. A direction to accumulate the income arising from any property shall be void; and the property shall be disposed of as if no accumulation had been directed.

Effect of direction for accumulation.

Exception.—Where the property is immoveable, or where accumulation is directed to be made from the death of the testator, the direction shall be valid in respect only of the income arising from the property within one year next following the testator's death;

and at the end of the year such property and income shall be disposed of respectively, as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

Illustrations.

(a.) The will directs that the sum of 10,000 rupees shall be invested in Government-securities, and the income accumulated for 20 years, and that the principal, together with the accumulations, shall then be divided between A, B and C. A, B and C are entitled to receive the sum of 10,000 rupees at the end of the year from the testator's death.

(b.) The will directs that 10,000 rupees shall be invested and the income accumulated until A shall marry, and shall then be paid to him. A is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(c.) The will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultánpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall be then paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator, A has an eldest son living, named B. B shall receive at the end of one year from the testator's death the rents which have accrued during the year, together with any interest which may have been made by investing them.

* * * * *

(e.) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, to be paid to him when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs the interest to be accumulated till he shall arrive at that age. At A's death the legacy becomes vested in B; and so much of the interest as is not required for his maintenance and education is accumulated, not by reason of the direction contained in the will, but in consequence of B's minority.

PART XIII.

OF THE VESTING OF LEGACIES.

106. Where by the terms of a bequest the legatee is not entitled to immediate possession of the thing bequeathed, a right to receive it at the proper time shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, become vested in the legatee on the testator's death, and shall pass to the legatee's representatives if he dies before that time and without having received the legacy.

Date of vesting of legacy when payment or possession postponed.

And in such cases the legacy is from the testator's death said to be vested in interest.

Explanation.—An intention that a legacy to any person shall not become vested in interest in him is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the payment or possession of the thing bequeathed is postponed, or whereby a prior interest therein is bequeathed to some other person, or whereby the income arising from the fund bequeathed is directed to be accumulated until the time of payment arrives, or from a provision that, if a particular event shall happen, the legacy shall go over to another person.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.

(b.) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.

(c.) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.

(d.) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18, and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.

(e.) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.

(f.) A fund is bequeathed to A, B and C in equal shares, to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18 respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator, the shares vest in interest in A, B and C, subject to be devested in case A, B and C shall all die under 18, and upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject, to his representatives.

107. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall happen does not vest until that event happens.

Date of vesting when legacy contingent upon specified uncertain event.

A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen does not vest until the happening of that event becomes impossible.

In either case, until the condition has been fulfilled, the interest of the legatee is called contingent.

Exception.—Where a fund is bequeathed to any person upon his attaining a particular age, and the will also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from the fund before he reaches that age, or directs the income, or so much of it as may be necessary, to be applied for his benefit, the bequest of the fund is not contingent.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B and C shall all die under the age of 18. D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B and C all die under 18, or one of them attains that age.

(b.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A "in case he shall attain the age of 18," or, "when he shall attain the age of 18." A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by his attaining that age.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall then be living; but if B shall not be then living, to C. A, B and C survive the testator. B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other shall have happened.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(d.) An estate is bequeathed as in the case last supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18, or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that, if she shall not attain 18, or marry under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A attains the age of 18. A becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy, although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.

(f) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by A's marrying.

(g.) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of the Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of the Act.

(h.) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay 500 rupees to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid 500 rupees to B.

(i.) A leases his farm of Sultánpur Khurd to B, if B shall convey his own farm of Sultánpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the latter farm to C.

(j.) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death. A's interest in the legacy is contingent, until the condition shall be fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence, within that period, of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.

(k.) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.

(l.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a competent part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.

(m.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum, out of another fund, shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

Vesting of interest in bequest to such members of a class as shall have attained particular age.

108. Where a bequest is made only to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age, a person who has not attained that age cannot have a vested interest in the legacy.

PART XIV.

OF ONEROUS BEQUESTS.

Onerous bequest.

109. Where a bequest imposes an obligation on the legatee, he can take nothing by it unless he accepts it fully.

Illustration.

A having shares in (X), a prosperous joint stock company, and also shares in (Y), a joint stock company in difficulties, in respect of which shares heavy calls are expected to be made, bequeaths to B all his shares in joint stock companies. B refuses to accept the shares in (Y). He forfeits the shares in (X).

One of two separate and independent bequests to same person may be accepted, and other refused.

110. Where a will contains two separate and independent bequests to the same person, the legatee is at liberty to accept one of them and refuse the other, although the former may be beneficial and the latter onerous.

Illustration.

A having a lease for a term of years of a house at a rent which he and his representatives are bound to pay during the term, and which is higher than the house can be let for, bequeaths to B the lease and a sum of money. B refuses to accept the lease. He shall not by this refusal forfeit the money.

PART XV.

OF CONTINGENT BEQUESTS.

Bequest contingent upon specified uncertain event, no time being mentioned for its occurrence.

111. Where a legacy is given if a specified uncertain event shall happen, and no time is mentioned in the will for the occurrence of that event, the legacy cannot take effect unless such event happens before the period when the fund bequeathed is payable or distributable.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death, to B. If A survives the testator, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death without children, to B. If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18, and in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.

(d.) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life and after his death to B, and, "in case of B's death without children," to C. The words "in case of B's death without children" are to be understood as meaning in case B shall die without children during the lifetime of A.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and, "in case of B's death," to C. The words "in case of B's death" are to be considered as meaning "in case B shall die in the lifetime of A."

Bequest to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period not specified.

112. Where a bequest is made to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period but the exact period is not specified, the legacy shall go to such of them as shall be alive at the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appear by the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) Property is bequeathed to A and B, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. If both A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.

(b.) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the life of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C.

* * * * *

(d.) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, with a direction that, in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

PART XVI.

OF CONDITIONAL BEQUESTS.

Bequest upon impossible condition.

113. A bequest upon an impossible condition is void.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall walk one hundred miles in an hour. The bequest is void.

(b.) A bequeaths 500 rupees to B on condition that he shall marry A's daughter. A's daughter was dead at the date of the will. The bequest is void.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

114. A bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void.

Bequest upon illegal or immoral condition.

Illustrations.

115. Where a will imposes a condition to be fulfilled before the legatee can take a vested interest in the thing bequeathed, the condition shall be considered to have been fulfilled if it has been substantially complied with.

Fulfilment of condition precedent to vesting of legacy.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C, D and E. A marries with the written consent of B. C is present at the marriage. D sends a present to A previous to the marriage. E has been personally informed by A of his intentions, and has made no objection. A has fulfilled the condition.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. D dies. A marries with the consent of B and C. A has fulfilled the condition.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries in the lifetime of B, C and D, with the consent of B and C only. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(d.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A obtains the unconditional assent of B, C and D to his marriage with E. Afterwards B, C and D capriciously retract their consent. A marries E. A has fulfilled the condition.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries without the consent of B, C and D, but obtains their consent after the marriage. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(f.) A makes his will, whereby he bequeaths a sum of money to B if B shall marry with the consent of A's executors. B marries during the lifetime of A, and A afterwards expresses his approbation of the marriage. A dies. The bequest to B takes effect.

(g.) A legacy is bequeathed to A if he executes a certain document within a time specified in the will. The document is executed by A within a reasonable time, but not within the time specified in the will. A has not performed the condition, and is not entitled to receive the legacy.

116. Where there is a bequest to one person and a bequest of the same thing to another, if the prior bequest shall fail, the second bequest shall take effect upon the failure of the prior bequest, although the failure may not have occurred in the manner contemplated by the testator.

Bequest to A and on failure of prior bequest, to B.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths a sum of money to his own children surviving him, and if they all die under 18, to B. A dies without having ever had a child. The bequest to B takes effect.

(b.) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, on condition that he shall execute a certain document within three months after A's death, and if he should neglect to do so, to C. B dies in the testator's lifetime. The bequest to C takes effect.

117. Where the will shows an intention that the second bequest shall take effect only in the event of the first bequest failing in a particular manner, the second bequest shall not take effect unless the prior bequest fails in that particular manner.

When second bequest not to take effect on failure of first.

Illustration.

A makes a bequest to his wife, but in case she should die in his lifetime, bequeaths to B that which he had bequeathed to her. A and his wife perish together, under circumstances which make it impossible to prove that she died before him. The bequest to B does not take effect.

118. A bequest may be made to any person with the condition superadded that in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, the thing bequeathed shall go to another person; or, that in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen, the thing bequeathed shall go over to another person.

In each case the ulterior bequest is subject to the rules contained in sections 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 116, 117.

Bequest over, conditional upon happening or not happening of specified uncertain event.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A, to be paid to him at the age of 18, and if he shall die before he attains that age, to B. A takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be devested and to go to B in case A shall die under 18.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A with a proviso that, if A shall dispute the competency of the testator to make a will, the estate shall go to B. A disputes the competency of the testator to make a will. The estate goes to B.

* * * * *

(d.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A and B, and if either should die during the life of C, then to the survivor living at the death of C. A and B die before C. The gift over cannot take effect, but the representative of A takes one-half of the money and the representative of B takes the other half.

(e.) A bequeaths to B the interest of a fund for life, and directs the fund to be divided, at her death, equally among her three children, or such of them as shall be living at her death. All the children of B die in B's lifetime. The bequest over cannot take effect, but the interests of the children pass to their representatives.

119. An ulterior bequest of the kind contemplated by the last preceding section cannot take effect unless the condition is strictly fulfilled.

Condition must be strictly fulfilled.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, C and D, the legacy shall go to E. D dies. Even if A marries without the consent of B and C, the gift to E does not take effect.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries with the consent of B. He afterwards becomes a widower and marries again without the consent of B. The bequest to C does not take effect.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, to be paid at 18, or marriage, with a proviso that, if A dies under 18, or marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries under 18, without the consent of B. The bequest to C takes effect.

120. If the ulterior bequest be not valid, the original bequest is not affected by it.

Original bequest not affected by invalidity of second.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life, with a condition superadded that if he shall not on a given day walk 100 miles in an hour, the estate shall go to B. The condition being void, A retains his estate as if no condition had been inserted in the will.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A for her life, and if she do not desert her husband, to B. A is entitled to the estate during her life as if no condition had been inserted in the will.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and, if he marries, to the oldest son of B for life. B, at the date of the testator's death, had not had a son. The bequest over is void under section 92, and A is entitled to the estate during his life.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

121. A bequest may be made with the condition superadded that it shall cease to have effect in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, or in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen.

Bequest conditioned that it shall cease to have effect in case specified uncertain event shall happen or not happen.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life, with a proviso that, in case he shall cut down a certain wood, the bequest shall cease to have any effect. A cuts down the wood; he loses his life-interest in the estate.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A, provided that, if he marries under the age of 25 without the consent of the executors named in the will, the estate shall cease to belong to him. A marries under 25 without the consent of the executors. The estate ceases to belong to him.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A, provided that, if he shall not go to England within three years after the testator's death, his interest in the estate shall cease. A does not go to England within the time prescribed. His interest in the estate ceases.

(d.) An estate is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if she becomes a nun, she shall cease to have any interest in the estate. A becomes a nun. She loses her interest under the will.

(e.) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall be then living, with a proviso that, if B shall become a nun, the bequest to her shall cease to have any effect. B becomes a nun in the lifetime of A. She thereby loses her contingent interest in the fund.

122. In order that a condition that a bequest shall cease to have effect may be valid, it is necessary that the event to which it relates be one which could legally constitute the condition of a bequest as contemplated by the one hundred and seventh section.

Such condition must not be invalid under section 107.

123. Where a bequest is made with a condition superadded that, unless the legatee shall perform a certain act, the subject-matter of the bequest shall go to another person, or the bequest shall cease to have effect, but no time is specified for the performance of the act, if the legatee takes any step which renders impossible or indefinitely postpones the performance of the act required, the legacy shall go as if the legatee had died without performing such act.

Result of legatee rendering impossible or indefinitely postponing act for which no time specified and on non-performance of which subject-matter to go over.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequest is made to A with a proviso that, unless he enters the army, the legacy shall go over to B. A takes holy orders, and thereby renders it impossible that he should fulfil the condition. B is entitled to receive the legacy.

(b.) A bequest is made to A with a proviso that it shall cease to have any effect if he does not marry B's daughter. A marries a stranger, and thereby indefinitely postpones the fulfilment of the condition. The bequest ceases to have effect.

124. Where the will requires an act to be performed by the legatee within a specified time, either as a condition to be fulfilled before the legacy is enjoyed or as a condition upon the non-fulfilment of which the subject-matter of the bequest is to go over to another person, or the bequest is to cease to have effect, the act must be performed within the time specified, unless the performance of it be prevented by fraud, in which case such further time shall be allowed as shall be requisite to make up for the delay caused by such fraud.

Performance of condition, precedent or subsequent, within specified time.

Further time in case of fraud.

PART XVII.

Of Bequests with directions as to application or enjoyment.

125. Where a fund is bequeathed absolutely to or for the benefit of any person, but the will contains a direction that it shall be applied or enjoyed in a particular manner, the legatee shall be entitled to receive the fund as if the will had contained no such direction.

Direction that funds be employed in particular manner following absolute bequest of same to or for benefit of any person.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed towards purchasing a country-residence for A, or to purchase an annuity for A, or to purchase a commission in the army for A, or to place A in any business. A chooses to receive the legacy in money. He is entitled to do so.

126. Where a testator absolutely bequeaths a fund, so as to sever it from his own estate, but directs that the mode of enjoyment of it by the legatee shall be restricted so as to secure a specified benefit for the legatee; if that benefit cannot be obtained for the legatee, the fund belongs to him as if the will had contained no such direction.

Direction that mode of enjoyment of absolute bequest is to be restricted, to secure specified benefit for legatee.

* * * * * *

Bequest of fund for certain purposes, some of which cannot be fulfilled.

* * * * * *

PART XVIII.

Of Bequests to an Executor.

128. If a legacy is bequeathed to a person who is named an executor of the will, he shall not take the legacy unless he proves the will or otherwise manifests an intention to act as executor.

Legatee named as executor cannot take unless he shows intention to act as executor.

Illustration.

A legacy is given to A, who is named an executor. A orders the funeral according to the directions contained in the will, and dies a few days after the testator, without having proved the will. A has manifested an intention to act as executor.

PART XIX.

Of Specific Legacies.

129. Where a testator bequeaths to any person a specified part of his property, which is distinguished from all other parts of his property, the legacy is said to be specific.

Specific legacy defined.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B—

"the diamond-ring presented to him by C:"

"his gold chain:"

"a certain bale of wool:"

"a certain piece of cloth:"

"all his household-goods, which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in M Street, in Calcutta, at the time of his death:"

"the sum of 1,000 rupees in a certain chest:"

"the debt which B owes him:"

"all his bills, bonds and securities belonging to him lying in his lodgings in Calcutta:"

"all his furniture in his house in Calcutta:"

"all his goods on board a certain ship then lying in the river Hughly:"

"2,000 rupees which he has in the hands of C:"

"the money due to him on the bond of D:"

"his mortgage on the Rámpur factory:"

"one-half of the money owing to him on his mortgage of Rámpur factory:"

"1,000 rupees being part of a debt due to him from C:"

"his capital stock of 1,000*l.* in East India stock:"

"his promissory notes of the Government of India for 10,000 rupees in their 4 per cent. loan:"

"all such sums of money as his executors may, after his death, receive in respect of the debt due to him from the insolvent firm of D and Company:"

"all the wine which he may have in his cellar at the time of his death:"

"such of his horses as B may select:"

"all his shares in the Bank of Bengal:"

"all the shares in the Bank of Bengal which he may possess at the time of his death:"

"all the money which he has in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India:"

"all the Government-securities he shall be entitled to at the time of his decease."

Each of these legacies is specific.

(b.) A having Government promissory notes for 10,000 rupees, bequeaths to his executors "Government promissory notes for 10,000 rupees in trust to sell" for the benefit of B.

The legacy is specific.

(c.) A having property at Benares, and also in other places, bequeaths to B all his property at Benares.

The legacy is specific.

(d.) A bequeaths to B—

his house in Calcutta:

his zamíndárí of Rámpur:

his taluq of Rámnagar:

his lease of the indigo-factory of Salkya:

an annuity of 500 rupees out of the rents of his zamíndárí of W.

A directs his zamíndárí of X to be sold, and the proceeds to be invested for the benefit of B.

Each of these bequests is specific.

(e.) A by his will charges his zamíndárí of Y with an annuity of 1,000 rupees to C during his life, and subject to this charge he bequeaths the zamíndárí to D. Each of these bequests is specific.

(f.) A bequeaths a sum of money—

to buy a house in Calcutta for B:

to buy an estate in zila Faridpur for B:

to buy a diamond-ring for B:

to buy a horse for B:

to be invested in shares in the Bank of Bengal for B:

to be invested in Government-securities for B.

A bequeaths to B—

"a diamond-ring:"

"a horse:"

"10,000 rupees worth of Government securities:"

"an annuity of 500 rupees:"

"2,000 rupees, to be paid in cash:"

"so much money as will produce 5,000 rupees 4 per cent. Government-securities."

These bequests are not specific.

(g.) A, having property in England and property in India, bequeaths a legacy to B, and directs that it shall be paid out of the property which he may leave in India. He also bequeaths a legacy to C, and directs that it shall be paid out of the property which he may leave in England.

No one of these legacies is specific.

Bequest of sum certain where stocks, &c., in which invested are described.

130. Where a sum certain is bequeathed, the legacy is not specific merely because the stocks, funds or securities in which it is invested are described in the will.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"10,000 rupees of his funded property:"

"10,000 rupees of his property now invested in shares of the East Indian Railway Company:"

"10,000 rupees at present secured by mortgage of Rámpur factory."

No one of these legacies is specific.

Bequest of stock where testator had, at date of will, equal or greater amount of stock of same kind.

131. Where a bequest is made in general terms of a certain amount of any kind of stock, the legacy is not specific merely because the testator was, at the date of his will, possessed of stock of the specified kind, to an equal or greater amount than the amount bequeathed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees 5 per cent. Government securities. A had at the date of the will five per cent. Government securities for 5,000 rupees.

The legacy is not specific.

Bequest of money where not payable until part of testator's property disposed of in certain way.

132. A money-legacy is not specific merely because the will directs its payment to be postponed until some part of the property of the testator shall have been reduced to a certain form, or remitted to a certain place.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B 10,000 rupees, and directs that this legacy shall be paid as soon as A's property in India shall be realized in England.

The legacy is not specific.

When enumerated articles not deemed specifically bequeathed.

133. Where a will contains a bequest of the residue of the testator's property along with an enumeration of some items of property not previously bequeathed, the articles enumerated shall not be deemed to be specifically bequeathed.

* * * * * *

Where deficiency of assets to pay legacies, specific legacy not to abate with general legacies.

136. If there be a deficiency of assets to pay legacies, a specific legacy is not liable to abate with the general legacies.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

PART XX.

Of Demonstrative Legacies.

137. Where a testator bequeaths a certain sum of money, or a certain quantity of any other commodity, and refers to a particular fund or stock so as to constitute the same the primary fund or stock out of which payment is to be made, the legacy is said to be demonstrative.

Demonstrative legacy defined.

Explanation.—The distinction between a specific legacy and a demonstrative legacy consists in this, that—where specified property is given to the legatee, the legacy is specific;

where the legacy is directed to be paid out of specified property, it is demonstrative.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, being part of a debt due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. The legacy to B is specific; the legacy to C is demonstrative.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"ten bushels of the corn which shall grow in his field of Greenacre:"

"80 chests of the indigo which shall be made at his factory of Rámpur:"

"10,000 rupees out of his five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India:"

an annuity of 500 rupees "from his funded property:"

"1,000 rupees out of the sum of 2,000 rupees due to him by C."

A bequeaths to B an annuity, and directs it to be paid out of the rents arising from his taluq of Rámnagar.

A bequeaths to B—

"10,000 rupees out of his estate at Rámnagar," or charges it on his estate at Rámnagar:

"10,000 rupees, being his share of the capital embarked in a certain business."

Each of these bequests is demonstrative.

138. Where a portion of a fund is specifically bequeathed and a legacy is directed to be paid out of the same fund, the portion specifically bequeathed shall first be paid to the legatee, and the demonstrative legacy shall be paid out of the residue of the fund, and, so far as the residue shall be deficient, out of the general assets of the testator.

Order of payment when legacy directed to be paid out of fund the subject of specific legacy.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, being part of a debt due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. The debt due to A from W is only 1,500 rupees; of these 1,500 rupees, 1,000 rupees belong to B, and 500 rupees are to be paid to C. C is also to receive 500 rupees out of the general assets of the testator.

PART XXI.

Of Ademption of Legacies.

139. If anything which has been specifically bequeathed does not belong to the testator at the time of his death, or has been converted into property of a different kind, the legacy is adeemed; that is, it cannot take effect by reason of the subject-matter having been withdrawn from the operation of the will.

Ademption explained.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B—

"the diamond-ring presented to him by C."

"his gold chain:"

"a certain bale of wool:"

"a certain piece of cloth:"

"all his household-goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in M Street, in Calcutta, at the time of his death."

A, in his lifetime,

sells or gives away the ring;
converts the chain into a cup:
converts the wool into cloth:
makes the cloth into a garment:
takes another house into which he removes all his goods

Each of these legacies is adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"the sum of 1,000 rupees in a certain chest:"

"all the horses in his stable."

At the death of A, no money is found in the chest, and no horses in the stable.

The legacies are adeemed.

(c.) A bequeaths to B certain bales of goods. A takes the goods with him on a voyage. The ship and goods are lost at sea, and A is drowned.

The legacy is adeemed.

140. A demonstrative legacy is not adeemed by reason that the property on which it is charged by the will does not exist at the time of the death of the testator, or has been converted into property of a different kind; but it shall in such case be paid out of the general assets of the testator.

Non-ademption of demonstrative legacy.

141. Where the thing specifically bequeathed is the right to receive something of value from a third party, and the testator himself receives it, the bequest is adeemed.

Ademption of specific bequest of right to receive something from third party.

"the debt which C owes him:"

"2,000 rupees which he has in the hands of D:"

"the money due to him on the bond of E:"

"his mortgage on the Rámpur factory."

All these debts are extinguished in A's lifetime, some with and some without his consent.

All the legacies are adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"his interest in certain policies of life-assurance."

A in his lifetime receives the amount of the policies. The legacy is adeemed.

142. The receipt by the testator of a part of an entire thing specifically bequeathed shall operate as an ademption of the legacy to the extent of the sum received.

Ademption pro tanto by testator's receipt of part of entire thing specifically bequeathed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B "the debt due to him by C." The debt amounts to 10,000 rupees. C pays to A 5,000 rupees, the one-half of the debt. The legacy is revoked by ademption, so far as regards the 5,000 rupees received by A.

143. If a portion of an entire fund or stock be specifically bequeathed, the receipt by the testator of a portion of the fund or stock shall operate as an ademption only to the extent of the amount so received; and the residue of the fund or stock shall be applicable to the discharge of the specific legacy.

Ademption pro tanto by testator's receipt of portion of entire fund of which portion has been specifically bequeathed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B one-half of the sum of 10,000 rupees due to him from W. A in his lifetime receives 6,000 rupees, part of the 10,000 rupees. The 4,000 rupees which are due from W to A at the time of his death belong to B under the specific bequest.

Order of payment where portion of fund specifically bequeathed to one legatee, and legacy charged on same fund to another, and testator having received portion of that fund, remainder insufficient to pay both legacies.

144. Where a portion of a fund is specifically bequeathed to one legatee, and a legacy charged on the same fund is bequeathed to another legatee, if the testator receives a portion of that fund, and the remainder of the fund is insufficient to pay both the specific and the demonstrative legacy, the specific legacy shall be paid first, and the residue (if any) of the fund shall be applied so far as it will extend in payment of the demonstrative legacy, and the rest of the demonstrative legacy shall be paid out of the general assets of the testator.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, part of the debt of 2,000 rupees due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. A afterwards receives 500 rupees, part of that debt, and dies leaving only 1,500 rupees due to him from W. Of these 1,500 rupees, 1,000 rupees belong to B, and 500 rupees are to be paid to C. C is also to receive 500 rupees out of the general assets of the testator.

Ademption where stock, specifically bequeathed, does not exist at testator's death.

145. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed does not exist at the testator's death, the legacy is ademed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"his capital stock of 1,000*l.* in East India Stock:"

"his promissory notes of the Government of India for 10,000 rupees in their 4 per cent. loan."

A sells the stock and the notes.

The legacies are ademed.

Ademption pro tanto where stock, specifically bequeathed, exists in part only at testator's death.

146. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed does only in part exist at the testator's death, the legacy is ademed so far as regards that part of the stock which has ceased to exist.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"his 10,000 rupees in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India."

A sells one-half of his 10,000 rupees in the loan in question.

One-half of the legacy is ademed.

Non-ademption of specific bequest of goods described as connected with certain place, by reason of removal.

147. A specific bequest of goods under a description connecting them with a certain place is not ademed by reason that they have been removed from such place from any temporary cause, or by fraud or without the knowledge or sanction of the testator.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B "all his household goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in Calcutta at the time of his death." The goods are removed from the house to save them from fire. A dies before they are brought back.

A bequeaths to B "all his household goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in Calcutta at the time of his death." During A's absence upon a journey, the whole of the goods are removed from the house. A dies without having sanctioned their removal.

Neither of these legacies is ademed.

When removal of thing bequeathed does not constitute ademption.

148. The removal of the thing bequeathed from the place in which it is stated in the will to be situated does not constitute an ademption where the place is only referred to in order to complete the description of what the testator meant to bequeath.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B all the bills, bonds and other securities for money belonging to him then lying in his lodgings in Calcutta. At the time of his death these effects had been removed from his lodgings in Calcutta.

A bequeaths to B all his furniture then in his house in Calcutta. The testator has a house at Calcutta and another at Chinsurah, in which he lives alternately, being possessed of one set of furniture only, which he removes with himself to each house. At the time of his death the furniture is in the house at Chinsurah.

A bequeaths to B all his goods on board a certain ship then lying in the river Hugli. The goods are removed by A's directions to a warehouse, in which they remain at the time of A's death.

No one of these legacies is revoked by ademption.

When thing bequeathed is a valuable to be received by testator from third person, and testator himself, or his representative, receives it.

149. Where the thing bequeathed is not the right to receive something of value from a third person, but the money or other commodity which shall be received from the third person by the testator himself or by his representatives, the receipt of such sum of money or other commodity by the testator shall not constitute an ademption;

but if he mixes it up with the general mass of his property, the legacy is ademed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B whatever sum may be received from his claim on C. A receives the whole of his claim on C and sets it apart from the general mass of his property. The legacy is not ademed.

Change by operation of law of subject of specific bequest between date of will and testator's death.

150. Where a thing specifically bequeathed undergoes a change between the date of the will and the testator's death, and the change takes place by operation of law or in the course of execution of the provisions of any legal instrument under which the thing bequeathed was held, the legacy is not ademed by reason of such change.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B "all the money which he has in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India."

The securities for the 5½ per cent. loan are converted during A's lifetime into 5 per cent. stock.

A's bequeaths to B the sum of 2,000*l.*, invested in consols in the names of trustees for A.

The sum of 2,000*l.* is transferred by the trustees into A's own name.

A bequeaths to B the sum of 10,000 rupees in promissory notes of the Government of India which he has power under his marriage-settlement to dispose of by will. Afterwards in A's lifetime, the fund is converted into consols by virtue of an authority contained in the settlement.

No one of these legacies has been ademed.

151. Where a thing specifically bequeathed undergoes a change between the date of the will and the testator's death, and the change takes place without the knowledge or sanction of the testator, the legacy is not adeemed.

Change of subject without testator's knowledge.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B "all his 3 per cent. consols." The consols are, without A's knowledge, sold by his agent, and the proceeds converted into East India stock. This legacy is not adeemed.

152. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed is lent to a third party on condition that it shall be replaced, and it is replaced accordingly, the legacy is not adeemed.

Stock specifically bequeathed, lent to third party on condition that it be replaced.

153. Where stock specifically bequeathed is sold, and an equal quantity of the same stock is afterwards purchased and belongs to the testator at his death, the legacy is not adeemed.

Stock specifically bequeathed, sold but replaced and belonging to testator at his death.

PART XXII.

Of the Payment of Liabilities in respect of the subject of a Bequest.

154. Where property specifically bequeathed is subject at the death of the testator to any pledge, lien or incumbrance, created by the testator himself or by any person under whom he claims, then, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, the legatee, if he accepts the bequest, shall accept it subject to such pledge or incumbrance, and shall (as between himself and the testator's estate) be liable to make good the amount of such pledge or incumbrance.

Non-liability of executor to exonerate specific legatees.

A contrary intention shall not be inferred from any direction which the will may contain for the payment of the testator's debts generally.

Explanation.—A periodical payment in the nature of land-revenue or in the nature of rent is not such an incumbrance as is contemplated by this section.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B the diamond-ring given him by C. At A's death the ring is held in pawn by D, to whom it has been pledged by A. It is the duty of A's executors, if the state of the testator's assets will allow them, to allow B to redeem the ring.

(b.) A bequeaths to B a zamíndárí which at A's death is subject to a mortgage for 10,000 rupees, and the whole of the principal sum, together with interest to the amount of 1,000 rupees, is due at A's death. B, if he accepts the bequest, accepts it subject to this charge, and is liable, as between himself and A's estate, to pay the sum of 11,000 rupees thus due.

155. Where anything is to be done to complete the testator's title to the thing bequeathed, it is to be done at the cost of the testator's estate.

Completion of testator's title to things bequeathed to be at cost of his estate.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, having contracted in general terms for the purchase of a piece of land at a certain price, bequeaths it to B, and dies before he has paid the purchase-money. The purchase-money must be made good out of A's assets.

(b.) A having contracted for the purchase of a piece of land for a certain sum of money, one-half of which is to be paid down, and the other half secured by mortgage of the land, bequeaths it to B, and dies before he has paid or secured any part of the purchase-money. One-half of the purchase-money must be paid out of A's assets.

156. Where there is a bequest of any interest in immoveable property, in respect of which payment in the nature of land-revenue or in the nature of rent has to be made periodically, the estate of the testator shall (as between such estate and the legatee) make good such payments or a proportion of them up to the day of his death.

Exoneration of legatee's immoveable property for which land-revenue or rent payable periodically.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B a house, in respect of which 365 rupees are payable annually by way of rent. A pays his rent at the usual time, and dies 25 days after. A's estate shall make good 25 rupees in respect of the rent.

157. In the absence of any direction in the will where there is a specific bequest of stock in a joint stock company, if any call or other payment is due from the testator at the time of his death in respect of such stock, such call or payment shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by such estate;

Exoneration of specific legatee's stock in joint stock company.

but if any call or other payment shall, after the testator's death become due in respect of such stock, the same shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by the legatee if he accept the bequest.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeathed to B his shares in a certain railway. At A's death there was due from him the sum of 5*l.* in respect of each share, being the amount of a call which had been duly made, and the sum of 5*s.* in respect of each share, being the amount of interest which had accrued due in respect of the call. These payments must be borne by A's estate.

(b.) A has agreed to take 50 shares in an intended joint stock company, and has contracted to pay up 5*l.* in respect of each share, which sum must be paid before his title to the shares can be completed. A bequeaths these shares to B. The estate of A must make good the payments which were necessary to complete A's title.

(c.) A bequeaths to B his shares in a certain railway. B accepts the legacy. After A's death, a call is made in respect of the shares. B must pay the call.

(d.) A bequeaths to B his shares in a joint stock company. B accepts the bequest. Afterwards the affairs of the company are wound up and each shareholder is called upon for contribution. The amount of the contribution must be borne by the legatee.

(e.) A is the owner of ten shares in a railway company. At a meeting held during his lifetime a call is made of 3*l.* per share payable by three instalments. A bequeaths his shares to B, and dies between the day fixed for the payment of the first and the day fixed for the payment of the second instalment and without having paid the first instalment. A's estate must pay the first instalment, and B, if he accepts the legacy, must pay the remaining instalments.

PART XXIII.

Of Bequests of Things described in general terms.

158. If there be a bequest of something described in general terms, the executor must purchase for the legatee what may reasonably be considered to answer the description.

Bequest of thing described in general terms.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B a pair of carriage-horses, or a diamond-ring. The executor must provide the legatee with such articles, if the state of the assets will allow it.

(b.) A bequeaths to B "his pair of carriage-horses." A had no carriage-horses at the time of his death. The legacy fails.

PART XXIV.

Of Bequests of the Interest or Produce of a Fund.

Bequest of interest or produce of fund.

159. Where the interest or produce of a fund is bequeathed to any person, and the will affords no indication of an intention that the enjoyment of the bequest should be of limited duration, the principal as well as the interest shall belong to the legatee.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B the interest of his five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India. There is no other clause in the will affecting those securities. B is entitled to A's five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India.

(b.) A bequeaths the interest of his 5½ per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India to B for his life, and after his death to C. B is entitled to the interest of the notes during his life and C is entitled to the notes upon B's death.

(c.) A bequeaths to B the rents of his lands at X. B is entitled to the lands.

PART XXV.

Of Bequests of Annuities.

Annuity created by will payable for life only, unless contrary intention appears by will.

160. Where an annuity is created by will, the legatee is entitled to receive it for his life only unless a contrary intention appears by the will. And this rule shall not be varied by the circumstance that the annuity is directed to be paid out of the property generally, or that a sum of money is bequeathed to be invested in the purchase of it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees a year. B is entitled during his life to receive the annual sum of 500 rupees.

(b.) A bequeaths to B the sum of 500 rupees monthly. B is entitled during his life to receive the sum of 500 rupees every month.

(c.) A bequeaths an annuity of 500 rupees to B for life, and on B's death to C. B is entitled to an annuity of 500 rupees during his life. C, if he survives B, is entitled to an annuity of 500 rupees from B's death until his own death.

Period of vesting where will directs that annuity be provided out of proceeds of property, or out of property generally or where money bequeathed to be invested in purchase of annuity.

161. Where the will directs that an annuity shall be provided for any person out of the proceeds of property, or out of property generally, or where money is bequeathed to be invested in the purchase of any annuity for any person, on the testator's death the legacy vests in interest in the legatee, and he is entitled at his option to have an annuity purchased for him or to receive the money appropriated for that purpose by the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A by his will directs that his executors shall out of his property purchase an annuity of 1,000 rupees for B. B is entitled at his option to have an annuity of 1,000 rupees for his life purchased for him, or to receive such a sum as will be sufficient for the purchase of such an annuity.

(b.) A bequeaths a fund to B for his life, and directs that after his death it shall be laid out in the purchase of an annuity for C. B and C survive the testators. C dies in B's lifetime. On B's death the fund belongs to the representative of C.

Abatement of annuity.

162. Where an annuity is bequeathed, but the assets of the testator are not sufficient to pay all the legacies given by the will, the annuity shall abate in the same proportion as the other pecuniary legacies given by the will.

Where gift of annuity and residuary gift, whole annuity to be first satisfied.

163. Where there is a gift of an annuity and a residuary gift, the whole of the annuity is to be satisfied before any part of the residue is paid to the residuary legatee, and, if necessary, the capital of the testator's estate shall be applied for that purpose.

PART XXVI.

Of Legacies to Creditors and Portioners.

Creditor primâ facie entitled to legacy as well as debt.

164. Where a debtor bequeaths a legacy to his creditor, and it does not appear from the will that the legacy is meant as a satisfaction of the debt, the creditor shall be entitled to the legacy as well as to the amount of the debt.

Child primâ facie entitled to legacy as well as portion.

Illustration.

A, by articles entered into in contemplation of his marriage with B, covenanted that he would pay to each of the daughters of the intended marriage a portion of 20,000 rupees on her marriage. This covenant having been broken, A bequeaths 20,000 rupees to each of the married daughters of himself and B. The legatees are entitled to the benefit of this bequest in addition to their portions.

No ademption by subsequent provision for legatee.

166. No bequest shall be wholly or partially adeemed by a subsequent provision made by settlement or otherwise for the legatee.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths 20,000 rupees to his son B. He afterwards gives to B the sum of 20,000 rupees. The legacy is not thereby adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths 40,000 rupees to B, his orphan-niece, whom he had brought up from her infancy. Afterwards on the occasion of B's marriage, A settles upon her the sum of 30,000 rupees. The legacy is not thereby diminished.

PART XXVII.

Of Election.

Circumstances in which election takes place.

167. Where a man, by his will, professes to dispose of something which he has no right to dispose of, the person to whom the thing belongs shall elect either to confirm such disposition or to dissent from it, and in the latter case he shall give up any benefits which may have been provided for him by the will.

Devolution of interest relinquished by owner.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

169. This rule will apply whether the testator does or does not believe that which he professes to dispose of by his will to be his own.

Testator's belief as to his ownership immaterial.

Illustrations.

(a.) The farm of Sultánpur was the property of C. A bequeathed it to B, giving a legacy of 1,000 rupees to C. C has elected to retain his farm of Sultánpur, which is worth 800 rupees. C forfeits his legacy of 1,000 rupees, of which 800 rupees goes to B, and the remaining 200 rupees falls into the residuary bequest, or devolves according to the rules of intestate succession, as the case may be.

(b.) A bequeaths an estate to B in case B's elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. A also bequeaths to C a jewel, which belongs to B. B must elect to give up the jewel, or to lose the estate.

(c.) A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, and to C an estate which will, under a settlement, belong to B if his elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. B must elect to give up the estate, or to lose the legacy.

(d.) A, a person of the age of 18 domiciled in British India, but owning real property in England, to which C is heir-at-law, bequeaths a legacy to C, and, subject thereto, devises and bequeaths to B "all his property, whatsoever and wheresoever," and dies under 21. The real property in England does not pass by the will. C may claim his legacy without giving up the real property in England.

170. A bequest for a man's benefit is, for the purpose of election, the same thing as a bequest made to himself.

Bequest for man's benefit how regarded for purpose of election.

Illustration.

The farm of Sultánpur Khurd being the property of B, A bequeathed it to C, and bequeathed another farm called Sultánpur Buzurg to his own executors, with a direction that it should be sold, and the proceeds applied in payment of B's debts. B must elect whether he will abide by the will, or keep his farm of Sultánpur Khurd in opposition to it.

171. A person taking no benefit directly under the will, but deriving a benefit under it indirectly, is not put to his election.

Person deriving benefit indirectly not put to election.

Illustration.

The lands of Sultánpur are settled upon C for life, and after his death upon D, his only child. A bequeaths the lands of Sultánpur to B, and 1,000 rupees to C. C dies intestate, shortly after the testator, and without having made any election. D takes out administration to C, and as administrator elects on behalf of C's estate to take under the will. In that capacity he receives the legacy of 1,000 rupees, and accounts to B for the rents of the lands of Sultánpur which accrued after the death of the testator and before the death of C. In his individual character he retains the lands of Sultánpur in opposition to the will.

172. A person who in his individual capacity takes a benefit under the will may in another character elect to take in opposition to the will.

Person taking in individual capacity under will may in other character elect to take in opposition.

Illustration.

The estate of Sultánpur is settled upon A for life, and after his death upon B. A leaves the estate of Sultánpur to D, and 2,000 rupees to B, and 1,000 rupees to C, who is B's only child. B dies intestate, shortly after the testator, without having made an election. C takes out administration to B, and as administrator elects to keep the estate of Sultánpur in opposition to the will, and to relinquish the legacy of 2,000 rupees. C may do this, and yet claim his legacy of 1,000 rupees under the will.

Exception to the six last Rules.—Where a particular gift is expressed in the will to be in lieu of something belonging to the legatee, which is also in terms disposed of by the will, if the legatee claims that thing, he must relinquish the particular gift, but he is not bound to relinquish any other benefit given to him by the will.

Illustration.

Under A's marriage-settlement his wife is entitled, if she survives him, to the enjoyment of the estate of Sultánpur during her life.

A by his will bequeaths to his wife an annuity of 200*l.* during her life, in lieu of her interest in the estate of Sultánpur, which estate he bequeaths to his son. He also gives his wife a legacy of 1,000*l.* The widow elects to take what she is entitled to under the settlement. She is bound to relinquish the annuity, but not the legacy of 1,000*l.*

173. Acceptance of a benefit given by the will constitutes an election by the legatee to take under the will, if he has knowledge of his right to elect, and of those circumstances which would influence the judgment of a reasonable man in making an election, or if he waives inquiry into the circumstances.

When acceptance of benefit given by will constitutes election to take under will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A is owner of an estate called Sultánpur Khurd, and has a life-interest in another estate called Sultánpur Buzurg, to which, upon his death, his son B will be absolutely entitled. The will of A gives the estate of Sultánpur Khurd to B, and the estate of Sultánpur Buzurg to C. B, in ignorance of his own right to the estate of Sultánpur Buzurg, allows C to take possession of it, and enters into possession of the estate of Sultánpur Khurd. B has not confirmed the bequest of Sultánpur Buzurg to C.

(b.) B, the eldest son of A, is the possessor of an estate called Sultánpur. A bequeaths Sultánpur to C, and to B the residue of A's property. B, having been informed by A's executors that the residue will amount to 5,000 rupees allows C to take possession of Sultánpur. He afterwards discovers that the residue does not amount to more than 500 rupees. B has not confirmed the bequest of the estate of Sultánpur to C.

174. Such knowledge or waiver of inquiry shall, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be presumed if the legatee has enjoyed for two years the benefits provided for him by the will without doing any act to express dissent.

Presumption arising from enjoyment by legatee for two years.

175. Such knowledge or waiver of inquiry may be inferred from any act of the legatee which renders it impossible to place the persons interested in the subject-matter of the bequest in the same condition as if such act had not been done.

Confirmation of bequest by act of legatee.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B an estate to which C is entitled and to C a coal mine. C takes possession of the mine, and exhausts it. He has thereby confirmed the bequest of the estate to B.

176. If the legatee shall not, within one year after the death of the testator, signify to the testator's representatives his intention to confirm or to dissent from the will, the representatives shall, upon the expiration of that period, require him to make his election; and if he does not comply with such requisition within a reasonable time after he has received it, he shall be deemed to have elected to confirm the will.

When testator's representatives may call upon legatee to elect.

Effect of non-compliance.

177. In case of disability the election shall be postponed until the disability ceases, or until the election shall be made by some competent authority.

Postponement of election in case of disability.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Khojás are members of a sect which was originally Hindu but was converted to Muhammadanism about 400 years ago. They still, however, as has been more than once held by the highest Court in the Bombay Presidency, retain their former law to such an extent in matters connected with property and succession that it is to be presumed to apply to them until the contrary is shown. This state of things has at times given rise to great difficulties in litigation between Khojás.

2. In the case of Hirbai v. Gorbai, 12 Bom. High Court Rep, 294, which appears to have occupied the Lower Court for twenty-four sitting days and the Appellate Court for four days, Sir Michael Westropp, C. J., after describing the state of the law, observed as follows :—

"It is, however, evident that the Khojás are not as firmly bound in matters of succession and inheritance by the Hindu law as Muhammadans proper are by the Muhammadan law and the Hindus by the Hindu law, and hence it is that it would not be reasonable to require such stringent proof of a custom of inheritance amongst them differing from ordinary Hindu law as from a Hindu.

"Now, it is manifest that such a state of the law must greatly encourage litigation, and we cannot help thinking that it would be most desirable that the Government should take steps, as was done in the case of the Pársís, to ascertain the views of the majority of the community on the subject of succession, and should then pass an enactment giving effect to those views. Unanimity, of course, could not be expected, but the rules which were found generally to prevail might be made law ; and though the religious differences existing among members of the Khojá caste might create some difficulty, it would not, we think, be insuperable."

3. The Government of Bombay, acting upon this suggestion, appointed about the end of the year 1878 a Commission consisting of four gentlemen taken from the Shia division of the Khojás, which acknowledged His Highness the late Ágha Khán as its spiritual superior, one taken from the Sunni division, and Mr. Spencer, Acting First Judge of the Court of Small Causes, with the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Melvill, of the Bombay High Court, as president.

The Commission took the greatest pains to inform themselves of the customs and views of both divisions of the Khojá sect in the Presidency of Bombay and elsewhere, and after much consideration and discussion agreed upon a draft Bill, subject to a dissent on a few specific points which was signed by His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh, son of His Highness the late Ágha Khán, and Mr. Dhurrumsey Poonjabhoy but not by Mr. Jairajbhoy Peerboy and Mr. Rahimtula Syanee, the two other Shia members of the Commission. That draft, having been submitted to the Government of Bombay by the president on the 23rd of December, 1879, and approved of by that Government, was forwarded to the Government of India, and forms the basis of the present Bill.

4. It will be convenient to refer to the provisions of the present Bill as nearly as possible in their order, noticing in their proper place the few points in regard to which His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh and Mr. Dhurrumsey Poonjabhoy differed from the majority of the Commission, and the points of substantive importance in which the present Bill deviates from the draft framed by the Commission.

5. The first provision calling for notice is section 2, which defines the application of the Act—a matter which was not clearly provided for in the Bill prepared by the Commission. The main enactment of the section is that succession to the property, whether moveable or immoveable, in British India of a Khojá dying on or after the first day of January, 1885, shall be regulated by the rules contained in the Act wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. So far as regards immoveable property, this provision coincides with section 5 of the Indian Succession Act, but, as regards moveable property, it involves an important deviation from that section, inasmuch as it applies the Act to all successions to such property though the deceased person may have been domiciled outside British India at the time of his death.

As the rule, which makes the law of the domicile of a deceased person regulate the succession to his moveable property, is not merely the rule of the Indian Succession Act but has obtained very general acceptance elsewhere, it seems desirable to state the reasons which have led the Government of India to think that it is not suitable to the Khojá community.

6. The choice as regards succession to moveable property appears to lie between the law of the domicile of the deceased and the law of the situs of the assets. The objections urged against the latter in Western countries are chiefly that a man's moveables are apt to be scattered over many jurisdictions each having a readily ascertainable law of its own, and that accordingly, if the law of the situs is made applicable to them, his estate will be broken up into many fragments, all governed by different laws; that a man's moveables may change their place; that the most important class of them, goods employed in commerce, are constantly changing their place; and that accordingly, if the law of the situs is applied, it will be impossible for him to foresee the particular law under which they will fall upon his death; and lastly, that the rule of the law of the situs does not clearly provide for that portion of the assets which consists of debts or other obligations existing in favour of the deceased. To avoid these difficulties it has been generally agreed to adopt the law of the domicile of the deceased for the whole of his moveable estate. Various attempts have been made to rest this rule on some á priori principle; but it would seem to have had its actual origin in mere considerations of convenience.

7. Looking to the arguments by which it is supported, and to the peculiar circumstances of the Khojá community, it is questionable, to say the least, whether such a rule would meet the requirements of their case. The places beyond the limits of British India, as, for example, Kutch, the Persian Gulf and Zanzibar, in which any considerable number of Khojás is to be found have no law such as can properly be called a territorial law of succession. The tribunals in such places, in so far as they make any rational attempt to apply a law at all, would apply the personal law of the parties, and that in the case of Khojás is ex hypothesi altogether unsettled and unascertainable. There is thus in the case of Khojás domiciled out of British India practically speaking no law of the situs of the foreign assets to conflict with the law which would apply to the British Indian assets, and no law of the domicile to which recourse could be had; and, therefore, to give the law of the domicile a preference over the Indian law would be simply to substitute a congeries of indefinite and half-established customs for a law, to the application of which there could be no reasonable objection.

It may be added that, in the absence of a law of the domicile, the case is very analogous to those cases in which it is impossible to fix the domicile of the deceased, and the solution which Lord Alvanley appears to have suggested in a case of this latter class was to fall back, as is proposed in this case, on the law of the situs of the property; in other words, to put moveables on the same footing as immoveables.

8. If this solution is adopted, and the Indian law is applied to all moveables left by a deceased Khojá in British India, without regard to his domicile, and if, moreover, the same rule is applied, as it naturally would be, in cases arising in Consular jurisdictions in the Persian Gulf, Zanzibar and elsewhere, this further advantage will probably in time be gained, that the law in British India will come to be adopted as a personal law applicable to Khojás in all foreign States in this part of the world.

9. The above remarks apply equally to intestate and to testamentary succession. A question might indeed be raised as to whether a testamentary disposition made beyond the limits of British India should as regards its form be made absolutely subject to British Indian law; but, seeing that the effect of taking any other course would certainly be to admit oral dispositions, it seems clear that the risk of failures of justice will be on the whole less by subjecting completely to our law all dispositions, wherever made, of moveable property in British India.

10. In connection with the definitions it is convenient to notice one of the few important questions on which any difference of opinion has arisen, namely, the question as to the status to be assigned to a woman who is not a Khojá but who is legally married to a Khojá according to the rules of the Muhammadan law, and to her children by him.

The Khojás of the Sunni Jamát, though apparently unwilling to go so far as to recognize any other than a Khojá widow as entitled to inherit from her husband, proposed that the sons of a Khojá by a wife who is not a Khojá should have some share in the inheritance. To this the Khojás of the Shia Jamát would not agree, and the Commission ultimately adopted as a compromise the plan of assigning to the offspring of the marriages in question a status nominally intermediate between those of legitimacy and illegitimacy and giving them in the definition-clauses the designation of "alien sons", but allowing them nothing more than illegitimate sons in the later sections of their Bill. It is stated that the Khojás as a rule are very exclusive and rarely take wives from outside their own community, and so long as this state of things continues the mode in which this point is dealt with is not of great practical moment; but there is an important principle involved, against which even the compromise adopted by the Commission appears to the Government of India to offend. The exclusion of the non-Khojá wife from inheritance and the degradation of her sons to a position altogether lower than that of the legitimate son involves a view as to restrictions on marriage which, even though it may have obtained acceptance with a majority of the Khojá sect, and though the Government has no desire to interfere with it, it is manifestly undesirable to have affirmed by the legislature. The present Bill will accordingly be found to contain no reference either in its definition-clauses or elsewhere to the so-called "alien son." It defines "son" to be a legitimate son and leaves "widow" undefined, and then proceeds to declare the rights of sons and widows, trusting to the Courts to decide, as they will on principles lying outside the law of succession, who are legally entitled to the status of sons and widows.

11. Chapter II of the Bill deals with "succession to the undivided property of a male Khojá dying intestate," and in the previous chapter "undivided property" has been defined as meaning "a share in property belonging to an undivided family." The Bill prepared by the Commission purported to define the phrase "undivided family," but the definition proposed has on inquiry been found to be unsafe. The undivided family among the Khojás appears to come into existence chiefly in connection with trade, and would seem to be an institution of a peculiar nature, somewhat resembling the undivided family among the Hindus; but, on the other hand, it is clear, from the rules laid down in certain sections of the Bill prepared by the Commission, and from the papers submitted with that Bill, that it differs in important respects from the Hindu undivided family. What exactly it is, and when property is to be regarded as its undivided property, it is difficult to ascertain from the papers before the Government of India; but, judging from the analogous case in Hindu law, it would seem that these are matters which it would be almost hopeless to attempt to define in an Act of the legislature; nor does it appear to be necessary to define them in a Succession Act. It may well be assumed that a fundamental distinction which goes to the root of the family constitution, and which is not confined in its operation to matters of succession, but applies also inter vivos, is established outside this Bill. For these reasons, it has been thought best to make no attempt to define "undivided family" or "undivided property" in the present Bill.

12. It will be observed, on comparing Chapters II and III, that the only peculiarity connected with the intestate succession to undivided property is (section 6) that, in default of legitimate lineal male descendants of the intestate within the fourth degree, the property is equally divided among all the male members of the undivided family living at his death.

13. Chapter III of the Bill treats of "succession to the separate property of a male Khojá dying intestate," and the order of succession marked out in sections 7 to 20 will be found to be based on that of the Hindu law.

The subjoined statement has been prepared by the Hon'ble Mr. Melvill, the President of the Commission, with a view to showing at a glance the extent to which the two differ—

Order of succession according to Hindu law.	Order of succession for Khojás proposed by the Bill.
1. Sons.	1. Sons.
2. Grandsons.	2. Grandsons.
3. Great-grandsons.	3. Great-grandsons.
4. Widow.	4. Great-great-grandsons.
5. Daughters.	5. Father.
6. Daughters' sons.	6. Mother.
7. Mother.	7. Widow.
8. Father.	8. Daughters.
9. Brothers.	9. Daughters' sons. }
10. Half-brothers.	10. Brothers. }
11. Brothers' sons.	11. Sons' daughters.
12. Half-brothers' sons.	12. Brothers' sons.
13. Grandmother.	13. Half-brothers.
14. Sister (under the Mayukha).	14. Half-brothers' sons.
15. Grandfather.	15. Grandfather.
16. More distant relatives.	16. Grandmother.
	17. Paternal uncle.
	18. Sister.
	19. More distant relatives.

"It will be seen," Mr. Melvill observes, "that the only very noticeable point of difference is that among the Khojás the father and mother are elevated to a rank in the order of succession superior to that of the widow. This precedence of the mother has been judicially settled in the case of Hirbai v. *Gorbai, already referred to; and although the Khojá members of the Commission were not unanimously in favour of the view taken in that case, they all agreed that, having once been judicially determined, the rule should not be disturbed."

* Reported 12 Bom. H. C. Rep., 294.

14. Section 20 of the present Bill differs in one important particular from the corresponding section (29) of the Bill prepared by the Commission.

The latter admitted to the succession only those of the "more distant relatives" of the intestate who were on the father's side, and confined it to such of them as are within the seventh degree of kindred. On failure of this limited class of distant kindred, section 42 gave the property "to the Jamát of that sect of the Khojás to which the intestate belonged at the time of his death, to be held and applied according to the customs of the said Jamát." Even this did not satisfy the two dissenting members of the Commission and some of the other adherents of His Highness the late Aghá Khán, who, as Imám, was the person chiefly interested in the succession of the Jamát. They contended that the Jamát should come in immediately after the nearer relations.

15. Apart from this fundamental objection in point of principle, there appear to be practical objections to the proposal as formulated by the Commission. The Jamát is said to be an assembly in council of all the adult male members of the Khojá community of the place, and it is not unlikely that doubts would arise, in connection with matters of religious belief, residence, attendance at the Jamát, and so forth, as to the particular Jamát (if any) to which the deceased person belonged. Similar doubts might also arise as to who were the other persons actually belonging to the Jamát to which the deceased belonged, so as to take the property. There might further be doubts as to how the property of a deceased intestate Khojá is to be held, and the objects to which it is to be applied. It is true that the section proposed by the Commission says that the property is to be held and applied "according to the customs of the said Jamát." But from a judgment of Sir J. Arnould in the case marginally noted, it would appear that there are no customs to look to. Though a Jamát collects large sums of money through its officers, it only does so on behalf of the Imám; the money collected is passed on to him; and if the Jamát wants any portion of it, even for the expenses of its Jamát-kháná (the council-hall or guildhall of the community), it can procure it only as a grant from the Imám. It appears to be absolutely in the discretion of the Imám to spend the money as he pleases, and as a matter of fact he spends a large portion of it, or at least is said by Sir J. Arnould to have done so at the time the judgment was delivered, on his own private purposes. Indeed, in a set of draft rules of succession for Shia Khojás submitted by His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh the succession of the Jamát is treated as the same thing with the succession of the Imám. The Jamát, therefore, does not seem to have any property or control over property, and it is not clear how there can be any custom governing the application of property by it. It has been argued that no such difficulties as those suggested ordinarily arise at present, but it would be clearly impossible to put the succession of the Jamát on a legislative basis without defining its conditions and incidents, and it would be equally impossible to place the property at the absolute disposal of any individual in whatever degree of veneration he might be held.

Dayá Muhammad and others versus H. H. Aghá Khán and others (page 328 of the Bombay High Court Reports, Vol. XII).

16. For these reasons section 20 of the present Bill extends the succession to relatives of the intestate both on the father's and on the mother's side without limit of degree, and it may be added that section 48 applies the ordinary rule, which makes the Crown the ultimate heir, in the rare case in which an owner of property may die intestate and leave no person entitled to succeed under the previous sections.

17. Section 21 is one of the leading sections of the Bill. It provides in effect that, when a female inherits under any of the foregoing sections, she shall, if certain near male relatives are living and are thus postponed to her, take the property only as "restricted owner"—a position to be presently explained at length. With this section should be read section 49, from which it will be seen that in other cases she takes the same interest in the property and has the same powers in respect of it as if she were a male.

18. Chapter IV treats of succession to the absolute property of a female Khojá dying intestate, that is to say, the succession to such of her property as belongs to her otherwise than as restricted owner. The provisions of this chapter call for no remark. Mr. Melvill states that they differ from the Hindu law but that they are approved by all classes of the Khojás, and are not, he thinks, open to any objection. The particulars in which they deviate from the Hindu law or the reasons for the deviations are not explained. They have been accepted by the Government of India as settled by the Commission, such details only being filled in after consultation with the local authorities as seemed necessary to give effect to what is understood to be the intention of those who framed them.

19. Chapter V, which treats of "property which a female takes as restricted owner and the further succession to the same," calls for more detailed notice.

It applies not only in the ordinary case of property taken by a female as restricted owner under Chapter III (supra, paragraph 17), but also in cases where she may take a similar interest in property under section 23 (2), section 24 (1), section 27 and section 39.

Its provisions are merely a development, with the requisite amplifications and with the addition of the necessary machinery, of the corresponding provisions of the Bill framed by the Commission. It has been settled in consultation with the local authorities and with a view to giving effect to what are understood to be the views of the Commission; but, having regard to the novelty and complication of the subject, it is not unlikely that when subjected to criticism it will be found susceptible of improvement in many particulars.

The limited estate taken by a Khojá female under this Bill resembles the estate taken by a Hindu widow, but there are many important differences between them. Mr. Melvill observes that the Khojá female estate is the more restricted of the two, but on this point he says the Khojás hold very strong views which he is of opinion must be respected.

20. In proceeding to notice the details of the chapter, the first point calling for attention is the phrase "restricted owner." It has been chosen merely on the ground that it is new and connotes nothing, and it is not unlikely that some more appropriate phrase may be suggested. The phrase "life-estate" and its correlative "reversion," used in the Bombay Bill, are not only open to the objection that ordinarily lies against all terms imported from another legal system, but further, as has been constantly observed of them in the case of the Hindu widow's estate, they suggest an altogether false analogy. The position, if it is necessary to illustrate it by reference to English law, is rather like that of a fee-simple estate subject to an executory devise.

21. As regards the attempt made in the Bill to define the estate, it will be observed that section 28 enacts that the female shall be absolutely entitled to the use of, and the income accruing from, the property during her life, and, except as otherwise provided by the Act, shall have all the other rights and powers of an absolute owner.

An objection has been taken to this on the ground that money saved by a widow from the income of the property should not belong to her absolutely but should go to her husband's heirs.

This contention is not based on any alleged actual practice, but is put forward merely as a "necessary consequence of the invariable custom" which limits the widow's interest in the corpus of her husband's property to the time during which she remains unmarried.

Now, not only is it not a necessary consequence of the custom in question, but it is, as admitted by the objectors themselves, in a certain sense illogical; for why should a person who has absolute power to dispose of the income as it comes in, in whatever way she pleases, be restricted from dealing with her savings from it?

Again, the only effect of adopting the proposed suggestion would, as the objectors themselves admit, generally be that the widow would squander the income as it came in; and, in the rare cases in which she allowed some of it to accumulate, the probability is that litigation would result from the difficulty of identifying the fund and separating it from the rest of her property. For these reasons the section has been allowed to stand.

22. Section 30 defines the obligations of the restricted owner as regards—

(a) the preservation of the substance of the property for those who are to come after her; and

As regards "waste," it stands on a footing altogether peculiar in the case of the Hindu widow; and clause (a) of this section has been drawn with a view to placing it on a somewhat similar footing in the case of the restricted owner.

23. As regards the powers of alienation, in the limitations on which the restricted nature of the estate chiefly consists, the only powers of alienation for any time beyond the life of the restricted owner allowed to her by the Bill, besides a limited power of leasing conferred by section 29, are those specified in section 31, which runs as follows:—

Restricted owner's power of transfer.

"31. A female taking property as restricted owner shall have power to transfer the same, so that the transfer may have effect beyond her life, when, the income being insufficient, such transfer is necessary in order to raise money for any of the following purposes, namely:—

"(a) to discharge any of the obligations imposed by section 30;*

* Viz., obligations to preserve the substance of the property and protect the title.

"(b) to discharge the debts of the absolute owner from whom the property descended;

"(c) to provide for the maintenance of any persons entitled under this Act to have their maintenance provided for out of the property, for the payment of any marriage expenses or funeral expenses payable under this Act out of the property, and for the performance of any ordinary family ceremonies; and

"(d) to support herself where she has no other sufficient means of support."

24. It has been urged by the two dissenting members of the Commission and by some other adherents of His Highness the Imám that a mother taking a restricted estate should have larger powers of alienation and that she or a widow taking a like estate should be empowered to alienate for religious objects; that is, as explained in the set of draft rules submitted by His Highness Aghá Alí Sháh, to give the property to the Imám; but, upon considering the arguments adduced and consulting the local authorities, the Government of India have determined to uphold the decision of the majority of the Commission, which is against the concession of any such powers.

25. In order to avoid as far as possible the great difficulties which arise in the case of a Hindu widow exceeding her power of alienation, an alienation in excess of the power has (section 29 of the Bill) been made absolutely void for any period beyond the restricted owner's life, except where the purchaser takes for consideration and without notice of the ownership being restricted. This, no doubt, standing alone, would place too great difficulties in the way of alienation; but sufficient relief will probably be afforded by the power to apply to a Court for sanction, which is given by section 32. It may be objected that it is undesirable to force people to resort to a Court in such matters; but the case is one of a choice of evils, and it is probably better that they should resort to the Court in every case where there is any room for doubt than run the risk of being involved in troublesome and expensive litigation later on.

A Court dealing with a application under section 32 is empowered (section 33) to accord its sanction to the transfer subject to the condition that the money thereby raised shall be paid into Court or to trustees appointed by the Court, and to give such further directions as it may think fit with a view to ensuring that the money shall be applied to the purpose for which it is raised, or that any balance that is not so applied shall be secured for the benefit of those entitled after the restricted owner.

26. It will be observed that no provision is made in the draft for alienation with the consent of the so-called "reversioners." This matter is one which gives rise to great difficulties in the case of the Hindu widow, and it seems impossible, having regard to the system of succession established by the Bill, to provide for it in any satisfactory manner. If provision had only to be made to meet the case of "reversioners" who claim under section 37 (1) and section 38 (3) by descent from the last absolute owner, the matter would be much simpler than in the case of the Hindu widow, inasmuch as these "reversioners" would always be known living persons or persons who would claim through them; but there are, besides these, the "reversioners" mentioned in section 38 (1) and (2), and it is thus impossible to fix upon any person whose consent would be sufficient.

27. Further, even if we were, as has been suggested, to waive this objection, and accept the consent of a merely presumptive "reversioner," there is another difficulty, namely, that the presumptive "reversioner" might (see section 39 of the Bill) be another restricted owner, possibly an old woman on the verge of the grave, whose prospect of succeeding would be extremely small. There might be several such persons intervening between the restricted owner and the first person who would take as absolute owner. We could hardly rest satisfied with anything short of the consent of this last person and all the intervening ones, and thus we should be landed in a considerable complication, leading in many cases to no very satisfactory result, inasmuch as the interest of the first person who would take as absolute owner, and to whose consent we would chiefly look, would often be of a remotely contingent nature. It is, of course, on economical grounds desirable to provide a means of freeing the property from the limited ownership, but the advantage would be dearly purchased if the basis of the purchaser's title were to be complicated in this way.

28. As regards the sale of property in execution of a decree against a restricted owner, it will be seen that the effect of section 34 of the Bill is that a person lending money for any of the purposes mentioned in section 31 can sell in execution nothing more than the so-called "life-interest" of the restricted owner, unless his loan is secured by a mortgage. The position of the restricted owner as regards anything beyond her so-called life-interest is, in fact, in this particular, somewhat similar to that of an English executor with power to charge the real estate. If it were otherwise, there might arise, in cases of execution for unsecured debts, the same difficult questions which the preceding sections are intended to shut out in cases of voluntary alienation.

29. It will be observed that, by sections 37 (2) and 38 (4) of the Bill the Crown is postponed to the general heirs of the restricted owner. This appears to be right, though it is gathered from the case of The Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Venkata Narrainapah (8 Moo. I. A. 529),—this precise point was not there decided,—that it is otherwise in the case of a Hindu woman's estate.

30. Sections 35 and 36 in effect provide that the restricted owner shall represent the property in judicial proceedings and compromises of disputes and for the purposes of laws of limitation and prescription, so as to bind those who take after her.

31. Sections 37 to 39, which regulate the devolution of property after the death of the restricted owner, have been drawn with a view to carry out what is understood to be the intentions of the Commission.

Their main provisions are that—

(b) when the restricted owner has been married, the property shall on her death go to certain of her descendants, and if there are no such descendants shall devolve as just stated.

32. From section 39 it will be seen, as already observed, that property may devolve upon two or more restricted owners in succession. This is to be regretted, but it seems to be an essential part of the scheme.

33. Section 40 regulates the legal relations arising where two or more widows of a deceased Khojá take his property together as restricted owners, and provides that there shall be a right of survivorship between them.

34. Section 41 provides that a widow marrying again after her husband's death shall not be entitled to take as restricted owner his property or any property of any of his lineal descendants which has descended to them from him, and that, if a widow taking any such property as restricted owner subsequently marries again, she shall be deemed for the purposes of certain sections of the chapter to have died. One effect of this latter provision is that the restricted ownership of the widow ceases on her re-marriage.

35. Coming now to Chapter VI, relating to the wills of Khojás, it will be observed that all matters connected with probate and letters of administration are in the case of Khojás, as in the case of other persons not subject to the Indian Succession Act, left to be dealt with under the Probate and Administration Act, 1881. The result of this is that the matters remaining to be provided for under this chapter are in the main the same as those which are provided for by the Hindu Wills Act, 1870, as amended by the Act just mentioned; and, as a matter of fact, the specification of the sections of the Indian Succession Act made applicable to the wills of Khojás by this chapter is based on the specification contained in the Hindu Wills Act as cut down by the Probate and Administration Act, 1881. There are, however, some important differences between the two which call for explanation here.

36. The most important of these differences is connected with the limitation on the powers of testamentary disposition. The specification of the sections of the Indian Succession Act applicable to Hindus, &c., contained in the Hindu Wills Act comprises several sections which either confer, or assume the existence of, a power of disposition in favour of unborn persons, but the Act contains a proviso to the effect that nothing therein contained shall authorize any Hindu, &c., to create in property any interest which he could not previously have created, and the Calcutta High Court have held in the recent case of Alangamonjori Dabee v. Sonamoni Dabee (I. L. R. 8 Cal. 637) that the effect of that proviso is to cut down the power of disposition, which the sections in question confer or assume to exist, to the limits imposed on a testator by the Hindu law, that is to say, as held in the well-known Tagore case, to a mere power of disposition in favour of persons who are either in fact or in contemplation of law in existence at the death of the testator.

If, on the other hand, it was observed, it should appear that the rule prohibiting dispositions in favour of unborn persons had, as a matter of fact, been recognised and observed among the Khojás, or if, there being no recognized rule or established practice either way, it should be considered that the powers of disposition allowed by the Succession Act were larger than were needed for the requirements of Khojás, it would probably be desirable to limit the power of disposition in some such way as it is limited by the Hindu law as interpreted in the Tagore case. The system of intestate succession established by the Bill was in certain respects a complicated one; and if to this were to be added a power of making complicated dispositions by will, it was to be feared that we should bring about, in regard to the property of this wealthy and important sect, a state of things which it was desirable if possible to avoid.

any attempt had hitherto been made among them to create by will an interest in favour of an unborn person; that there was thus a tabula rasa; and that it was quite open to the legislature to legislate on the subject as it thought best without any fear of violating an existing custom or of running counter to any prejudice or desire of the Khojá community.

This being so, the Government of India have come to the conclusion that it is undesirable to confer on Khojás any power of testamentary disposition in favour of persons not in existence at the time of the testator's death; and accordingly all portions of the Indian Succession Act which confer, or assume the existence of, such a power have, as far as practicable, been omitted, a proviso at the same time being inserted to the effect that a bequest by a Khojá in favour of any person who has not come into existence at the death of the testator shall be void.

40. The remaining differences between this Bill and the Hindu Wills Act as regards the provisions of the Indian Succession Act applied by them are of less importance.

It may, however, be stated that the following additional provisions of the Succession Act have been made applicable, namely:—

(a) section 47, giving a father power to appoint a guardian by will—a power the existence of which was assumed by the Commission;

(b) sections 52 and 53, relating to privileged wills;

(c) section 84, which provides that, when property is bequeathed to a person and words are added which describe a class of persons but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole of the interest of the testator therein unless a contrary intention appears by the will;

It should be added that section 187 of the Indian Succession Act, which provides that no right as executor or legatee can be established until a grant of probate or letters of administration is obtained, has been omitted for reasons similar to those which led to its being ultimately omitted from the Probate and Administration Act, 1881; and that sections 134 and 135, determining whether property bequeathed to two or more persons in succession should when its value is liable to decrease be retained in its original form, have been omitted, as it seems safer in this country to lay down no hard-and-fast rules on the subject.

41. The only other point calling for notice in connection with this chapter is that section 43, following the proviso to section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act, confers a power of bequeathing property to or for the benefit of a woman, so that she shall not have power to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein. The existence of such a power appears to have been assumed in the Bill prepared by the Commission.

42. Chapter VII, relating to maintenance and marriage and funeral expenses, calls for little notice. There was some obscurity about the corresponding provisions of the Bill prepared by the Commission, and this chapter has now been settled in accordance with what is understood from the local authorities to have been the original intention. It is believed that the only change of a substantive nature made here is in section 46, where provision has been made for the maintenance, &c., of a daughter while she remains unmarried. The chapter, however, will probably be found open to further amendment when it has been more fully considered.

43. Section 47, which provides for the recovery of sums due under this chapter, has been drawn with a view to precluding, as far as possible, the difficulties which have arisen under the Hindu law in regard to claims for maintenance, and in particular as to how far a person having a right to maintenance is entitled to follow the property of the deceased. As regards this last point, it has been thought best to place the claim for maintenance, &c., on the footing of a debt, postponing it, however, to debts proper. This will not absolutely remove all difficulty, but, by bringing the case within an existing class, it will avoid the creation of a new difficulty.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 9th JULY 1884.

GENERAL REMARKS.—In the Madras Presidency rain fell in all districts during the past week, but more is still wanted in several places, more especially in Bellary and Madura. In Mysore and Coorg the rainfall is still insufficient; in the former province more rain is urgently needed for young plants. Almost all districts of the Bombay Presidency report slight rain during the week, but more rain is much wanted generally throughout the Presidency for the kharif sowings. In the Berars and Hyderabad the fall has again been light, and also throughout the Central India and Rajputana States. Heavy rain continues in all districts of the Central Provinces, and a break would be beneficial in the southern districts where sowings are impeded. Rain has been general, though somewhat light, in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and in the greater part of the Punjab. In British Burma the rainfall is nearly up to the average, and good falls are reported from the Assam districts. In Bengal the rainfall has been general, but insufficient for transplanting operations.

The report of the Meteorological Department, dated the 10th instant, shows a cessation of rain in Northern India, but heavier falls on the west coast and over the Dekkan and also in Burma.

Harvesting is still in progress in Madras, and the condition of standing crops is generally fair. Ploughing and sowing for the kharif continue throughout the country, but are backwards in parts of Bombay, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, and Punjab for want of rain. Cotton plants are above ground in the Berars and cotton sowing is in progress in Nagpur. In Assam and Bengal the prospects of the standing crops are good, but more rain is wanted for transplanting operations in the latter province. In Assam the prospects of tea are improving.

Cholera and small-pox are abating in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and Punjab, and the public health is generally good.

Prices are generally stationary.

No. 293 (Surveys), dated Simla 11th July 1884.

The following Rules are published for general information :—

Rules for the admission of apprentices in the Mathematical Instrument, Photographic, and Lithographic and Engraving Offices of the Survey of India Department, Calcutta.

With the sanction of the Government of India, a certain number of European and Eurasian apprentices will be entertained in the above offices to be trained in the different branches of instrument-making, of Photography, and of Lithography and Engraving.

In the Mathematical Instrument Office, the number of appointments will be 3; in the Photographic Office, 4; in the Lithographic Office, 2; and in the Engraving Office, 4.

Applicants selected for employment will be entertained under the following conditions :—

I.—They must not be less than 14 nor more than 16 years of age. In special circumstances the Surveyor General will exercise his discretion as to the limit of ages.

II.—They must be able to read and write well, and have a fair knowledge of simple arithmetic; for the Photographic Office any knowledge of chemistry or photography, and for the Lithographic Office a knowledge of drawing, will be a recommendation.

III.—They will be required to serve as apprentices for a period of five years.

IV.—The rates of pay will be as follows :—

1st year	...	...	...	...	Rs.	10	per mensem.
2nd „	...	...	...	...	„	15
3rd „	...	...	...	...	„	20
4th „	...	...	...	...	„	30
5th „	...	...	...	...	„	40

V.—The above-mentioned increments will only have effect if the apprentice's conduct be in every way good, and his progress, in the particular trade he may be in training for, satisfactory.

VI.—From the pay for the first three years 10 per cent. will be deducted and paid into the Government Savings Bank to be held as a security that the apprentice will conduct himself properly and serve out his full time. The aggregate amount with the accrued interest will be forfeited if the apprentice leave the service without permission of the Surveyor General being first obtained, or if he misconduct himself so seriously as to entail his dismissal. Should, however, the apprentice serve the full five years and conduct himself to the satisfaction of Government, he will receive the total amount so deducted with the interest accruing upon it.

VII.—Each apprentice on being entertained shall sign such form of indenture as Government may require him to sign as security for the due performance of his obligations. The form of indenture is under preparation.

VIII.—In addition to the rates of pay specified above, apprentices will not be entitled to any other allowances for clothing, board, or lodging, nor does the Government guarantee them permanent employment at the end of their apprenticeship or at any time.

IX.—Apprentices must abide by the standing orders of any of the offices of the Survey of India in which they may be under training, and must duly observe the hours of attendance and working. They will be liable to discharge at the discretion of the Surveyor General, should they not make sufficient and satisfactory progress in the particular trade they are in training for, or be guilty of any misconduct. Absence without leave will render them liable to loss of pay, and if constantly repeated, to discharge and the forfeiture of any sums that may have accrued to them under Rule VI.

X.—Applicants should in the first instance address themselves to the Assistant Surveyors General in charge of the above offices, their applications being accompanied by any testimonials as to their character and qualifications they may be able to obtain. The names of selected candidates will be submitted to the Surveyor General for approval.

XI.—Before final appointment selected candidates will have to serve three months on probation. If after this period they appear likely to be useful, they will be taken on the strength of the office as apprentices under the foregoing rules, and their pay and service will count from the date of their commencing their probation. Probationers whose work is unsatisfactory will not receive pay for the time of their probation, and may be discharged at any time within the three months at the discretion of the Assistant Surveyor General in charge of the office in which they may be serving.

No. 90 Met.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, Revenue and Agricultural Department (Meteorology),—dated Simla, the 11th July 1884.

Summary of the Weather Reports for June 1884.

During the past month the weather has been variable. In the first half of the month the humidity of the atmosphere was much below the average at nearly every station in India, and during the first 10 days the only rain of any importance was in Assam, Bengal, and Burma. On the 12th, however, moderate rain fell on the Malabar coast, and by the 16th had extended northward as far as Bombay, where 1¾ inches of rain fell during a slight south-south-east gale. On the 19th rain became pretty general throughout the country, the only exceptions being portions of Bundelkund and the North-Western Provinces, Sind, and Central India. On the 20th over 3 inches of rain fell at Bombay. On the 22nd, however, the rainfall on the west coast was checked and the break spread gradually from the west coast to a very large part of India. Towards the close of the month precipitation was slight in most places and had almost entirely ceased in Gujarat, Central India, Rajputana, and on the plains of the Punjab and North-Western Provinces. Rain continued, however, in the Central Provinces and Lower Bengal; and whereas a decided deficiency was shown by most places, the rainfall of these two provinces was slightly in excess of the average.

The rain of the 10th or 11th was unaccompanied by any general increase of moisture in the atmosphere; but about the 17th and 18th the humidity rose suddenly and in many places continued excessive; in others, and more particularly in the Peninsula, the air again became dry towards the close of the month. At stations on the Bombay and Malabar coasts there were about 8, at Poona 4, and at Sholapur 2 days only on which the humidity was above the average of June.

An abnormal distribution of pressure existed during the greater part of the month in the shoulder of high barometer, which extended northward over Central India and Rajputana, and this was accompanied by an unusual northerly component in the winds of North-Western India; but along the west coast where the rainfall deficiency was greatest (amounting to 17 inches at Cochin), the mean distribution of pressure was not very different from the average.

The variations of temperature have been somewhat irregular. The means of the whole month show an excess of 2° or 3° in Sind, the Berars, Central India, some stations in the Central Provinces, and over the Peninsula generally, but in Northern India the mean temperature was below the average. In the earlier part of the period the maximum temperatures at the Upper India stations were high, ranging from 110° to 118°; but about the middle of the month, coincidently with the setting in of more general rain, there was a fall lasting for several days. Towards the close of the month, however, the thermometer in some places again rose above 110°. The highest recorded reading in the shade, which was also the highest of the season, was 122° at Jacobabad on the 9th.

The following table summarises the rainfall returns under the divisions adopted in the weather resumés previously issued :—

Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat; the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January, 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow :—

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

SCHEDULE.—ACTS REPEALED.

A Bill to amend the Law relating to Courts in the Panjáb.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the law relating to Courts in the Panjáb; and whereas the Secretary of State for India in Council has given his previous sanction to the passing of this Act; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Panjáb Courts' Act, 1884.

Short title.

(2) It extends to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of the Panjáb; and Local extent.

(3) It shall come into force on the first day of October, 1884.

Commencement.

2. On and from that day the Acts mentioned in the schedule hereto annexed shall be repealed to the extent specified in the third column thereof.

Repeal of Acts.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context—

Definitions.

(1) "Assistant Judge" includes a Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge.

(2) "Assistant Commissioner" includes Extra Assistant Commissioner.

(3) "Revenue Court" means the Court of a Financial Commissioner, of a Commissioner, of a Deputy Commissioner, of an Assistant Commissioner or of a Tahsíldár exercising jurisdiction in suits of any of the classes mentioned in section 48.

(4) "Interlocutory order" means an order not having the force of a decree under the Civil Procedure Code or any other enactment, nor being a judgment, order to give security, order of acquittal or order under the Code of Criminal Procedure for the disposal of property or the proceeds thereof, passed or made by a Criminal Court.

(Chapter II.—Of the Constitution of the Courts.—Sections 4-16.)

CHAPTER II.

OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE COURTS.

Grades of Courts.

4. Besides the Courts established under any other law for the time being in force, there shall be the following grades of Courts (namely) :—

(1) the Chief Court;
(2) the Divisional Court;
(3) the Court of the Assistant Judge;
(4) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class;
(5) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the second class;
(6) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the third class;
(7) the Court of the Subordinate Judge of the fourth class.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 5.]

Constitution of Chief Court and appointment and tenure of Judges.

5. The Chief Court shall consist of three or more Judges who shall be appointed by the Governor General in Council, and shall hold their offices during his pleasure, and of whom one at least shall always be a barrister of not less than five years' standing.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 6.]

Rank and precedence of Judges of Chief Court.

6. The Judges of the Chief Court shall have rank and precedence according to the seniority of their appointments as such Judges:

Provided that a Judge permanently appointed shall be deemed senior to an officiating Judge.

Constitution of Divisional Courts.

7. (1) Each Divisional Court shall consist of two or more Judges who shall be appointed by the Local Government, and may be transferred, suspended or removed by the Local Government.

(2) The Commissioner of a Division may be appointed Judge of a Divisional Court, in addition to his other duties.

Seniority of Judges of a Divisional Court.

8. (1) When the Commissioner of a Division is one of the Judges of a Divisional Court, he shall be deemed the Senior Judge of the Court.

(2) The seniority of the other Judges shall be regulated by the seniority of their appointments as Judges of a Divisional Court:

Provided that a Judge permanently appointed shall be deemed senior to an officiating Judge.

Appointment of Assistant Judges and Subordinate Judges.

9. (1) The Assistant Judges and the Subordinate Judges of the first class shall be appointed, and may be transferred, suspended or removed, by the Local Government.

(2) The Subordinate Judges of the second, third and fourth classes shall be appointed, and may be transferred, suspended or removed, by the Chief Court, subject to the control of the Local Government, and to rules which the Local Government is hereby empowered to make as to the qualifications of persons to be appointed to the office of Subordinate Judge.

(3) The present Munsifs shall be deemed to have been duly appointed, and shall be, Subordinate Judges under this Act, and their classification as Subordinate Judges of the second, third or fourth class shall be determined by the Chief Court.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 7.]

Certain powers to be exercised ex officio.

10. Every person appointed under this Act to be or to act as Judge of a Divisional Court, Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge shall, within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court to which he may, from time to time, be posted, have the powers of a Judge of a Divisional Court, of the Court of an Assistant Judge, or of the Court of a Subordinate Judge of the fourth class, as the case may be.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 8.]

Deputy Commissioners, Assistant Commissioners, Subordinate Judges, Tahsíldárs and Náib Tahsíldárs may be invested with powers.

11. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, confer upon any Deputy Commissioner or Assistant Commissioner the powers of an Assistant Judge, or upon any Assistant Commissioner the powers of a Subordinate Judge of any class, or upon any Subordinate Judge not being an Assistant Commissioner the powers of a Subordinate Judge of the second or of the third class, or upon any Tahsíldár or Náib Tahsíldár the powers of a Subordinate Judge of the third or of the fourth class, and may withdraw any powers so conferred.

(2) Any officer invested with powers under this section may exercise such powers in any district or sub-division of a district to which he may, from time to time, be posted.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 9.]

Any person may be invested with certain powers.

12. The Local Government may, from time to time, confer upon any person all or any of the powers of a Court of any of the five grades last mentioned in section 4, and may withdraw any powers so conferred.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 10.]

Exercise of such powers by benches.

13. (1) The Local Government may direct any three or more persons invested with powers of the same description under section 12 to sit together as a bench; and those powers shall, while such direction remains in force, be exercised by the bench so constituted, and not otherwise.

(2) The decision of the majority of the members of a bench constituted under this section shall be deemed to be the decision of the bench.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 11.]

Persons and benches exercising such powers to be deemed Courts of corresponding grades.

14. Except for the purpose of exercising control over any other Court, any person or any bench exercising the powers of a Court of any grade under section 12 or section 13 shall be deemed to be a Court of such grade for all the purposes of this Act.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 12.]

Such powers where and in what cases to be exercised.

15. Any person or bench invested under section 11, section 12 or section 13 with the powers of a Court of any grade shall exercise such powers and discharge the functions of such Court within such local limits and in such classes of cases as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 13.]

Power to alter local limits of jurisdiction.

16. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, fix the local limits of the jurisdiction of any Court of any of the six grades last mentioned in section 4.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

(Chapter III.—Of the Jurisdiction and Powers of the Chief Court.—Sections 17-24.)

CHAPTER III.

OF THE JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF THE CHIEF COURT.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 14.]

17. The Chief Court shall be deemed, for the purposes of all enactments for the time being in force, to be the highest Civil Court of appeal in the territories to which this Act extends.

Civil appeals from subordinate Courts.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 15; Cf. Crim. Pro. Code, ss. 4 (i) and 266.]

18. The Chief Court shall be the highest Court of criminal appeal or revision in the said territories, and shall have power, as a Court of original jurisdiction, to try European British subjects committed to it for trial.

Criminal, appellate and revisional jurisdiction.

Power to try European British subjects.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 16; Civil Pro. Code, s. 23.]

Power to withdraw and try, or to transfer, suits.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 17.]

20. Except as otherwise provided by any law for the time being in force, an appeal shall lie from any decree or order passed or made by the Chief Court—

Appeals from original jurisdiction of Chief Court.

(a) in exercise of the original jurisdiction conferred by section 19; or

(b) in exercise of any other original jurisdiction of a civil nature to which the Chief Court may by rule extend this section:

Provided that such appeal shall lie only in the cases and in manner following (that is to say):—

(c) when such decree or order is made by a single Judge, an appeal shall lie, either to a bench consisting of two other Judges, or to the full bench, as the Court may, by general rule or special order, from time to time, direct;

(d) when such decree or order is made by a bench of Judges not being the full bench, and such Judges differ in opinion, the appeal shall lie from such decree or order to the full bench.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 19, extended to Divisional Courts.]

21. (1) Except as by this Act or by any other enactment for the time being in force otherwise provided, the Chief Court may make rules to provide in such manner as it thinks fit for the exercise by one or more of its Judges of any powers conferred on it, and for the exercise by one or more of the Judges of a Divisional Court of any of the powers conferred on that Court, by this Act, or by any other enactment for the time being in force:

Delegation of powers to its members.

Provided that no order not being an interlocutory order, and no decree, sentence or decision of any Court, shall be reversed by any Judge of the Chief Court or of a Divisional Court sitting alone.

Proviso.

(2) When the Chief Court consists of more than three Judges, it may make rules declaring what number of Judges, not being less than three, shall constitute a full bench of the Court, and may by these rules prescribe the mode of determining what Judges shall sit as a full bench, when a full bench sitting becomes necessary.

(3) The Chief Court may, from time to time, delegate to one of its Judges the power of determining, subject to any rules made under this section, what Judge in each case shall sit alone and what Judges of the Court shall constitute any bench of Judges. [See 24 & 25 Vic., cap. 104, s. 14.]

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 20.]

22. When there is a difference of opinion among the Judges composing any bench of the Chief Court on any question arising before such Judges in the exercise by them of any powers conferred on such Court by this Act, or by any other enactment for the time being in force, such question shall, except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force, be decided as follows, that is to say:

Rule of decision when Judges differ.

If the number of such Judges concurring in one opinion upon such question is larger than the number holding any other opinion upon such question, the decision shall be in accordance with the opinion of such larger number.

If the numbers of such Judges holding two or more opinions on such question are equal, the following rules shall be observed, that is to say:—

(a) if such bench is the full bench, or is exercising any original jurisdiction to which section 20 applies or is extended, the decision upon such question shall be in accordance with such one of these opinions as is held by the Judge who has precedence under section 6;

(b) in other cases the bench before which such question has arisen shall refer the same to the full bench, and the full bench shall decide the same in accordance with the rules hereinbefore contained, and the case in which such question has arisen shall be disposed of by the bench referring such question in accordance with the decision of the full bench thereon.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 21.]

23. (1) Any single Judge of the Chief Court or any bench of Judges of such Court (not being the full bench) exercising any powers conferred on the Chief Court by this Act or by any other enactment for the time being in force may refer for the decision of the full bench any question of law or custom having the force of law, or the construction of any document, or the admissibility of any evidence arising before such Judge or bench of Judges.

Power to refer question to full bench.

(2) Any Judge or bench making a reference on any question in any case under this section shall dispose of such case in accordance with the decision of the full bench on such question.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 22.]

24. (1) The Chief Court may, from time to time, appoint a Registrar and Deputy Registrar and such other ministerial officers as may be necessary for the administration of justice by such Court, and for the exercise and performance of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on it by this Act.

Power to appoint ministerial officers.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

(Chapter IV.—Of the Jurisdiction and Powers of the Subordinate Courts.—Section 34.)

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 23.] 25. The officers so appointed shall exercise such powers and discharge such duties of a ministerial nature as the Chief Court may, from time to time, direct.

Powers and duties of such officers.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 24.] 26. Any such officer may be suspended or dismissed from his office by order of the Chief Court:

Suspension and dismissal of such officers.

Provided that neither the Registrar nor the Deputy Registrar shall be dismissed without the previous sanction of the Local Government.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 25.] 27. The general superintendence and control over all Courts of the six grades last mentioned in section 4, and over all Courts of Small Causes, shall be vested in, and such Courts shall be subordinate to, the Chief Court.

Superintendence and control of subordinate Courts.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 26.] 28. (1) The Chief Court may, from time to time, make rules—

Power to make rules as to petition-writers.

(a) declaring what persons shall be permitted to practise as petition-writers in the Courts of the Panjáb;

(b) regulating the conduct of persons so practising.

(2) Whoever breaks any rule made under this section and having the force of law shall be liable, on conviction before a Magistrate, to a fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 27; see also Criminal Procedure Code, s. 553, and Civil Procedure Code, s. 652.] 29. The Chief Court may, from time to time,—

Power to make rules as to other matters.

(a) make rules consistent with this Act conferring and imposing on the ministerial officers of the Courts subject to its superintendence such powers and duties of a ministerial nature as it thinks fit, and regulating the mode in which powers and duties so conferred and imposed shall be exercised and performed;

(b) make rules consistent with this Act to determine in what cases pleaders practising in such Courts shall be permitted to address such Courts in English;

(c) prescribe forms for seals to be used by such Courts;

(d) prescribe forms for such books, entries, statistics and accounts as it thinks necessary to be kept, made or compiled in such Courts or submitted to any authority;

(e) make rules consistent with this Act providing for the inspection of such Courts and the supervision of the working thereof;

(f) make such rules consistent with this Act, institute such enquiries and submit such recommendations to the Local Government as it may think fit, with a view to promoting the efficiency of the judicial and ministerial officers of such Courts and maintaining proper discipline among such officers.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 28.] 30. (1) The Chief Court shall keep such registers, books and accounts as may be necessary for the transaction of the business of the Court, and shall submit to the Local Government such of the same registers, books and accounts, and statements of the work done in the Court, as may, from time to time, be required by the said Government.

Registers, books, accounts and statements to be kept and furnished by Chief Court.

(2) The Chief Court shall also comply with such requisitions as may, from time to time, be made by the Governor General in Council, or by the Local Government, for certified copies of, or extracts from, the records of the Courts.

31. (1) The Chief Court, when sitting as a Court of civil judicature, shall take evidence and record judgments and orders in such manner as it, by rule, from time to time, directs, and may, from time to time, frame forms for any proceeding in that Court in the exercise of its civil jurisdiction.

[Sec. 29, Act XVII of 1877, and ss. 638 and 639, Civ. Pro Code.]

Chief Court to take evidence and record judgments according to its own rules, and to frame forms for proceedings.

(2) The following provisions of the Civil Procedure Code shall not apply to the Chief Court in the exercise of its original civil jurisdiction, namely, sections 119, 182 to 185 (both inclusive), 187, 189 to 191 (both inclusive), 192 (so far as it relates to the manner of taking evidence), 198, 200 to 204 (both inclusive), and so much of section 109 as relates to the making of a memorandum; XIV of 1882.

And sections 571 to 573 (both inclusive), 554 (so far as it relates to the time of dating and signing judgment) and 579 shall not apply to the Chief Court in the exercise of its appellate jurisdiction.

32. (1) Any non-judicial or quasi-judicial act which the Civil Procedure Code requires to be done by a Judge, and any act which may be done by a Commissioner appointed to examine and adjust accounts under section 394 of that Code, may be done by the Registrar of the Court, or by such other officer of the Court as the Court may direct to do such act.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 29.] XIV of 1882

Non-judicial acts may be done by Registrar.

(2) The Chief Court may, from time to time, by rule, declare what shall be deemed to be non-judicial and quasi-judicial acts within the meaning of this section.

33. When any appeal, reference or case heard in the exercise of revisional jurisdiction has been heard by a bench consisting of two or more Judges, a judgment or dissent written by any member of the bench, but not pronounced, may be delivered by any other member of that bench.

[New. Cf. 199, Civ. Pro Code.]

Delivery of judgment in the absence of Judge who recorded it.

CHAPTER IV.

OF THE JURISDICTION AND POWERS OF THE SUBORDINATE COURTS.

34. Subject to the general superintendence and control of the Chief Court—

[Sec. 30, Act XVII of 1877]

Controlling powers of Divisional Court and of Assistant Judges.

every Divisional Court shall control (a) the Courts of all Assistant Judges or officers invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge within its division, and (b) the Courts controlled by the Assistant Judges or Deputy Commissioners invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge within its division;

and, subject to the control of the Divisional Court—

every Assistant Judge and every Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge shall control (a) all Courts of the four grades last mentioned in section 4, and all Courts of Small Causes, and (b) all Courts of persons other than the Deputy Commissioner of a district invested under section 11 or section 12 with the powers of an Assistant Judge within the area subject to his jurisdiction.

Principal Court of original jurisdiction.

35. Except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force, the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Court or principal civil Court of original jurisdiction in its division:

Provided that the Local Government may empower any Assistant Judge or any Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of an Assistant Judge to exercise all or any of the powers of a District Court within the area subject to his jurisdiction.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 32.]

36. Except as otherwise provided by any enactment for the time being in force—

No pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of Divisional Court or of Assistant Judge.

(1) the Divisional Court, and (2) the Court of the Assistant Judge, shall have jurisdiction for the adjudication of original civil suits without limit as regards the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suits; and Pecuniary limits of jurisdiction of other Courts.

each of the Courts mentioned in the first column of the subjoined table shall have jurisdiction for the adjudication of civil suits when the amount or value of the subject-matter of such suits does not exceed the limit prescribed for such Court in the second column of the table:—

COURT.	Limit of jurisdiction.
	Rs.
(a)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the first class.	5,000
(b)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the second class.	1,000
(c)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the third class.	500
(d)—The Court of the Subordinate Judge of the fourth class.	100

[Section 33, Act XVII of 1877.]

37. (1) Any Divisional Court or any Assistant Judge, or Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of Assistant Judge, may exercise, as regards the Courts under its or his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by section 19 on the Chief Court.

Powers of Divisional Court and of Court of Assistant Judge.

(2) The Court trying any suit withdrawn under this section from a Court of Small Causes shall, for the purposes of such suit, be deemed to be a Court of Small Causes.

(3) The Local Government may, from time to time, confer upon any Assistant Commissioner the powers of an Assistant Judge under this section, and withdraw the same.

[Section 34, Act XVII of 1877; XIV of 1882.]

38. Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, every Divisional Court, Assistant Judge or Deputy Commissioner invested with the powers of Assistant Judge may, by written order, direct that any civil business cognizable by it or his Court and the Courts under its or his control (including the execution of decrees) shall be distributed among such Courts in such manner as it or he thinks fit:

Power to distribute business.

Provided that no direction issued under this section shall empower any Court to exercise any jurisdiction in any suit of which the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds its proper jurisdiction:

Provided also that no such direction shall be inconsistent with any direction or notification issued by the Local Government under section 15 or 16.

[Section 35 Act XVII of 1877.]

39. (1) The ministerial officers of the Divisional Court and of the Courts of Assistant Judges and Courts of Small Causes shall be appointed, and may be suspended and dismissed, by the Judges of those Courts respectively, whose orders in such matters shall, in the case of a Divisional Court, be final, and in the case of any other Court be subject to the general control of the Divisional Court.

Ministerial officers of subordinate Courts.

(2) The ministerial officers of all Courts controlled by an Assistant Judge, other than a Court of Small Causes, shall be appointed, and may be suspended and dismissed, by the Assistant Judge, subject to the general control of the Divisional Court.

(3) Every appointment under this section shall be subject to such rules as the Local Government, from time to time, prescribes in this behalf.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 36.]

40. (1) The Judge or presiding officer of every Court under the control of an Assistant Judge may fine, in an amount not exceeding one month's salary, any of the ministerial officers of such Court who is guilty of misconduct or neglect in the performance of the duties of his office.

Power to fine ministerial officers.

(2) The Assistant Judge, subject to the general control of the Divisional Court, may, on appeal or otherwise, reverse or modify any such order made by any such Judge or officer, other than a Judge of a Court of Small Causes; and may of his own motion fine up to the amount of one month's salary any ministerial officer of any Court under his control other than a Court of Small Causes.

(3) Any Divisional Court or Assistant Judge, and the Judge of any Court of Small Causes, may fine any ministerial officer of his Court in an amount not exceeding one month's salary.

[New. Cf. Act VI of 1871, s. 29, and Act XIII of 1879, s. 24.]

41. The Local Government may invest, within such local limits as it, from time to time, fixes, any Assistant Judge or Subordinate Judge of the first class with the jurisdiction of a Judge of a Court of Small Causes for the trial of suits cognizable by such Courts up to the amount of five hundred rupees, and any Subordinate Judge of the second or third class with similar jurisdiction up to the amount of fifty rupees; and may, whenever it thinks fit, withdraw the jurisdiction so conferred.

Power to invest with Small Cause Court jurisdiction.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.
(Chapter V.—Of Appellate Jurisdiction in Civil Cases.—Sections 42-47.)
(Chapter VI.—Of Revenue Courts.—Section 48.)

CHAPTER V.

OF APPELLATE JURISDICTION IN CIVIL CASES.

First appeals to whom to lie.

42. (1) Appeals from the decrees and orders of a Court of any of the three grades last mentioned in section 4 in suits of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, and in suits of any other class which the Chief Court, with the sanction of the Local Government, may, from time to time, determine to place on the same footing, shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, and the value or amount of the subject-matter of the suit does not exceed five hundred rupees, lie to the Court of the Assistant Judge.

(2) Appeals from the decrees and orders of the Court of the Assistant Judge in original suits, when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds five thousand rupees, and appeals from the decrees and orders of the Divisional Court in original suits, shall, when such appeals are allowed by law, lie to the Chief Court.

(3) Appeals from decrees and orders in original suits not hereinbefore provided for shall, when such appeal is allowed by law, lie to the Divisional Court.

Further appeal to lie to the Chief Court on the certificate of the Divisional Court that the case is a fit one for further appeal.

43. When two Judges of a Divisional Court are unable to concur in a judgment varying or reversing the decree or order appealed against, or when some question of law or custom, or of general interest, is involved, the Judges may, if they regard the case as of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal, or if, when the certificate is applied for, one of the Judges who passed the decree is no longer attached to the Court, the remaining Judge may, if he regards the case as of sufficient importance to justify a further appeal, grant a certificate to any party to the appeal that the case is a fit one for a further appeal; and on such certificate being granted a further appeal shall lie to the Chief Court from the decree or order of the Divisional Court on any ground which would be a good ground of appeal if the decree or order had been passed in an original suit:

Provided that no further appeal shall lie in any suit of the nature cognizable in Courts of Small Causes, or other suit placed on the same footing under section 42 when the amount or value of the subject-matter of the original suit does not exceed five hundred rupees.

Appellate decision of Assistant Judge or Divisional Court otherwise final.

XIV of 1882.

44. Subject to the provisions of section 43, and of the Code of Civil Procedure, sections 595 and 622, the decision of the Court of the Assistant Judge or of the Divisional Court passed in appeal shall be final.

[Cf. Act XIII of 1879, s. 22.]

Appeals from decrees, &c., passed before Act comes into force.

45. For the purposes of sections 42 and 23, all decrees, orders and decisions passed before the date on which this Act comes into force shall be deemed—

(a) if passed by a Commissioner or Additional Commissioner, or by the Civil Judge of Peshawar, to have been passed by the Divisional Court;

(b) if passed by a Deputy Commissioner or other officer invested with the appellate jurisdiction of a Deputy Commissioner, to have been passed by an Assistant Judge;

(c) if passed by an Assistant Commissioner with full powers, to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge of the first class;

(d) if passed by an Assistant Commissioner not invested with full powers or with the appellate powers of a Deputy Commissioner, or by an Honorary Civil Judge, or by a Tahsíldár or Náib Tahsíldár, to have been passed by a Subordinate Judge of the second, third or fourth class:

Provided that—

(1) no right of appeal which has accrued under the existing law shall be taken away, and no certificate shall be required for a further appeal;

(2) if the amount or value of the subject-matter of the suit exceeds five thousand rupees, the appeal, if any is allowed by law, shall lie to the Chief Court; but in other cases in which the appeal now lies to the Commissioner's Court, the appeal shall lie to the Divisional Court.

Period of limitation.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 40.]

46. (1) The period of limitation for an appeal under section 41 or section 42 shall run from the date of the decree, order or decision appealed against, and shall be as follows, that is to say:—

(a) when such appeal lies to the Court of the Assistant Judge or to the Divisional Court—sixty days;

(2) In computing such periods of sixty and ninety days, and in all respects not herein specified, the limitation of such appeals shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

XV of 1877.

Power to withdraw and try or to transfer appeal.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 41.]

47. The Chief Court, the Divisional Court or the Court of an Assistant Judge may, on the application of any of the parties, after giving notice to the parties and hearing such of them as desire to be heard, or of its own motion, without giving such notice, withdraw any civil appeal pending in any Court under its superintendence or control, and try such appeal itself, or transfer the same for trial to any other Court under its superintendence or control and of a grade equal or superior to that of the Court from which such appeal is withdrawn.

CHAPTER VI.

OF REVENUE COURTS.

Certain classes of suits cognizable by Revenue Courts only.

48. Suits of any of the following classes instituted on and after the first day of October, 1884, shall be heard and determined in Revenue Courts and not otherwise:

(a) suits by tenants to establish a claim to a right of occupancy under Chapter II of the Panjáb Tenancy Act, 1868;

XXVIII of 1868.

(b) suits by landlords under section 6 of the same Act to prove that a tenant presumed to have a right of occupancy under that section has no such right;

(c) suits for enhancement or abatement of rent under Chapter III of the same Act;

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.
(Chapter VI.—Of Revenue Courts.—Sections 49-55.)

(d) suits for ejectment of a tenant under Chapter IV of the same Act;

(e) suits under section 25 of the same Act to contest liability to be ejected when notice of ejectment has been served;

(f) suits under section 40 of the same Act to determine the amount or value of the compensation to be paid or the terms of a lease to be granted to a tenant under section 39 of the same Act, or both;

(g) suits for arrears of rent on account of land, or on account of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, fisheries or the like;

(h) suits for the recovery of any over-payment of rent;

(i) suits by lambardárs for arrears of land-revenue, payable through them by the co-sharers, or for village-expenses or other dues for which the co-sharers may be responsible to the lambardár;

(j) suits by co-sharers for their share of the profits of an estate or part thereof after payment of the land-revenue and village-expenses, or for a settlement of accounts;

(k) suits by assignees of land-revenue for arrears of revenue due to them as such;

(l) suits by superior proprietors for arrears of revenue due to them as such; and

(m) suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act to recover possession of land assessed to the land-revenue or liable to be so assessed, or of which the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned. I of 1877.

49. If in any suit of any of the classes mentioned in clauses (a) to (l) of the last preceding section it appears that the parties are at issue on any question of proprietary title, or on the question of the existence of the relation of landlord and tenant between them, the Revenue Court shall not determine such question, but may either proceed to decide the case by passing a decree contingent upon the determination of such question by a Civil Court, giving such directions as it may think proper as to the party with whom it shall rest to institute a suit for the purpose, or, on the application of either party, may stay proceedings to enable the party applying to institute a suit for the purpose in a Civil Court; but the proceedings shall not be stayed under this section for more than three months unless such suit is in the meantime instituted; nor, when a decree has been passed contingent upon the determination of such question by a Civil Court, shall any execution be issued, property sold or person ejected or imprisoned thereunder until the receipt of a copy of the judgment of the Civil Court on the question, unless the decree has been passed against the party whose duty it is to sue and he fails to institute the suit for more than three months from the date of the decree.

Procedure when question of proprietary title or of existence of relation of landlord and tenant arises.

50. All Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs shall have power to try suits of the classes mentioned in section 48, clauses (g), (i), (k) and (l), when the amount or value of the claim does not exceed one hundred rupees; and the Local Government may invest Náib Tahsíldárs with the same powers.

Certain revenue powers of Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs to be exercised ex officio.

51. The Local Government may invest any Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár with power to try all suits of the classes mentioned in the same section, clauses (d) and (f) to (m), both inclusive.

Additional powers with which Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs may be invested.

52. The Deputy Commissioner shall have power to try suits of any of the classes mentioned in section 48, and the Local Government may specially invest any Assistant Commissioner with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner for the trial of suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of the same section.

Revenue powers of Deputy Commissioners and power to invest Assistant Commissioners therewith.

53. (1) The Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure of Revenue Courts in cases under this chapter for which a procedure is not prescribed thereby; and may, by any such rule, direct that any provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, with or without modification, to all or any classes of cases before Revenue Courts. [Cf. Act XVIII of 1881, s. 19.] XIV of 1882.

Procedure of Revenue Courts how to be regulated.

(2) Until such rules are made, Revenue Courts shall be guided in cases under this chapter by the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, section 2, Part I, except Chapters XVI and XX, Parts II, III and IV, Chapters XXXVII and XXXVIII, XLI, XLIII and XLIV, and Parts VIII and X, so far as applicable; and the Court of the Financial Commissioner shall, in respect of such cases, be deemed to be the High Court within the meaning of the said Code, and shall exercise, as regards the Courts under his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by sections 19 and 47 on the Chief Court; and the Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner shall respectively exercise, as regards the Courts under his control, the same powers of withdrawal, trial, disposal and transfer as are conferred by sections 37 and 47 upon a Divisional Court and an Assistant Judge. XIV of 1882.

54. Every Commissioner or Deputy Commissioner may, by written order, direct that any business cognizable under this chapter by his Court, and the Courts under his control (including the execution of decrees) shall be distributed among such Courts in such manner as he thinks fit:

Power to distribute business.

Provided that no direction issued under this section shall empower any Court to exercise any jurisdiction which it is not empowered to exercise under section 50, section 51 or section 52.

55. All decisions and orders (except decisions and orders in suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act) of Assistant Commissioners not invested with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner under section 52, and of Tahsíldárs, shall be appealable to the Deputy Commissioner, whose order thereon shall be final, unless when the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees, when a I of 1877.

(Chapter VI.—Of Revenue Courts.—Sections 56-64.)

Further appeal in certain cases.

further appeal shall lie to the Commissioner, or, in case the amount or value of the subject-matter exceeds five thousand rupees, to the Financial Commissioner.

Cases appealable to Commissioner or Financial Commissioner.

56. (1) All decisions and orders of Deputy Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners invested with the powers of a Deputy Commissioner in suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of section 48, and in other suits (except suits under section 9 of the Specific Relief Act) in which the value of the subject-matter exceeds one hundred rupees, shall be appealable to the Commissioner, or in case the amount or value exceeds five thousand rupees, to the Financial Commissioner.

I of 1877.

Other judgments to be final.

57. An appeal from the decisions of the Commissioner on appeals in suits of the classes mentioned in clauses (a), (b), (c) and (e) of section 48 shall lie to the Financial Commissioner, unless when the Commissioner dismisses the appeal. All other judgments and orders of the Commissioner on appeals shall be final, subject to revision by the Financial Commissioner.

Further appeal to Financial Commissioner in certain cases.

Other judgments of Commissioner to be final.

58. The Financial Commissioner may at any time call for any case which has come before any Commissioner or any Court subordinate to him, and pass such orders thereon consistent with the law applicable thereto as he thinks fit.

Revisional jurisdiction of Financial Commissioner.

59. (1) The period of limitation for an appeal under section 55, section 56 or section 57 shall run from the date of the decree, order for decision appealed against, and shall be as follows, that is to say :—

Limitation of appeals under this chapter.

(a) when such appeal lies to the Court of the Deputy Commissioner or of the Commissioner—sixty days ;

(2) In computing such periods of sixty and ninety days, and in all respects not herein specified, the limitation of such appeals shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.

XV of 1877.

60. Subject to the general superintendence and control of the Financial Commissioner, every Commissioner shall control the Revenue Courts of all Deputy Commissioners and the Revenue Courts controlled by Deputy Commissioners within his Division ; and subject to the control of the Commissioner, every Deputy Commissioner shall control the Revenue Courts of all Assistant Commissioners and Tahsíldárs and officers invested with the powers of Deputy Commissioner, Assistant Commissioner or Tahsíldár within his District.

61. Except for the purpose of exercising control over any other Revenue Court, any person exercising the powers of a Revenue Court of any grade under section 49 or section 51 shall be deemed to be a Court of such grade for all the purposes of this Act, and shall exercise such powers and discharge the functions of such Court within such local limits and in such classes of cases as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct.

Persons invested with powers under this chapter to be deemed to be Courts of corresponding grades, and where and in what cases to exercise their powers.

62. When more than one Financial Commissioner is appointed, the Local Government may, from time to time, make rules as to the distribution of revenue, judicial and other business between the persons so appointed ; and, until such rules are made, the Financial Commissioner who is senior in respect of his appointment as such may transfer such business as he thinks fit to the other Financial Commissioner for disposal, and may withdraw and himself dispose of any business so transferred and not disposed of.

Distribution of business between Financial Commissioners.

63. If either Financial Commissioner desires to obtain the opinion of the other upon any question arising in any appeal under this chapter pending before him, he may forward the record to the other Financial Commissioner with a statement of the question upon which he desires his opinion ; and the latter, after such examination and such hearing (if any) as he thinks fit, shall record his opinion upon the question referred to him ; and the Financial Commissioner who made the reference shall proceed to dispose of the appeal after considering the opinion so obtained.

Consultation between Financial Commissioners.

64. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in official Gazette, declare that a settlement of land-revenue is in progress in any local area, and invest any officer making or controlling such settlement, either by name or in virtue of his office, with all or any of the powers of any Court constituted under this Act for the purpose of trying all or any specified class of suits and appeals relating to land, or the rent, revenue or produce of such land, arising in such local area.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 49.]

Power to invest Settlement-officers with powers of Civil or Revenue Courts in certain cases.

(2) The publication of any notification under this section shall be conclusive evidence that a settlement of land-revenue is in progress in the local area to which the notification refers.

(3) The Local Government may cancel any such notification.

(4) While such notification continues in force, such powers shall be exercised by the officers so invested, and not otherwise :

Provided that the Local Government may, by order published in the official Gazette, direct that any jurisdiction with which any officer may have been invested by such notification shall be exercised solely by the Court by which such jurisdiction would have been exercised if such notification had not been published :

Provided also that any cases pending before any officer under such notification when it is cancelled may, notwithstanding such cancellation, be disposed of by him as if it continued in force, unless the Local Government directs (as it is hereby empowered to do) that such cases shall be transferred for disposal to the Court by which they would have been disposed of if such notification had not been published.

Explanation.—In this section "land" means land assessed to the land-revenue or whereof the land-revenue has been wholly or in part released, compounded for, redeemed or assigned, and all land the property of Government not within the site of any town or village.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 50.]

Power to alter subordination of Courts for purposes of section 64.

65. For the purposes of section 64 the Local Government may, notwithstanding anything in this Act, from time to time direct that any of the Courts mentioned in this Act (except the Chief Court) shall, in respect of any specified class of cases, be subordinate to, or subject to the control or superintendence of, any authority other than those specified in this Act.

CHAPTER VII.

MISCELLANEOUS AND SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 46; compare Act VI of 1871, s. 25; Act XVII of 1875, s. 19; and Act XIII of 1879, s. 23.]

Presiding Officer of Court not to try certain suits and appeals.

66. (1) Except with the consent of the parties, no presiding officer of any Court having jurisdiction under this Act shall try any suit or appeal to which he is a party or in which he is personally interested, or any appeal against a decree or order passed by himself, or shall adjudicate upon any proceeding connected with or arising out of such suit or appeal.

(2) When any such suit, appeal or proceeding comes before him, he shall forthwith transmit the record of the case to the Court to which he is immediately subordinate, with a report of the circumstances attending the reference.

(3) The superior Court shall thereupon dispose of the case in the manner prescribed by section 25 of the Code of Civil Procedure. XIV of 1882.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 47.]

Rules when to have force of law.

67. All rules made and forms prescribed under section 28 and section 29, clauses (a), (b), (d) and (e), shall be submitted for sanction to the Local Government, and, on receiving such sanction, shall be published in the official Gazette, and shall thereupon have the force of law.

[Act XVII of 1877, s. 48.]

Local Government may transfer power conferred by section 27 to a single Judge.

68. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, by notification in the official Gazette, appoint a single Judge of the Chief Court to exercise the power of superintendence conferred on such Court by section 27, and may cancel such notification.

(2) While such notification continues in force, such power shall be exercised by the Judge appointed thereby, and not otherwise.

Jurisdiction under Divorce Act.

69. For the purposes of the Indian Divorce Act, any Judge of the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Judge throughout the Division over which that Court has jurisdiction.

Vacations.

70. (1) Subject to such orders as may, from time to time, be issued by the Governor General in Council, and to the approval of the Local Government, the Chief Court shall prepare a list of days to be observed in each year as close holidays in the Civil Courts subordinate thereto.

(2) Such list shall be published in the official Gazette, and the said days shall be observed accordingly.

Pending proceedings.

71. (1) All cases or proceedings pending in any Civil Court on the first day of October, 1884, may be disposed of as if this Act had not been passed, unless the Chief Court directs (as it is hereby empowered to do) that such cases or proceedings shall be transferred for disposal to the Courts established under this Act which would have had jurisdiction if they had been in existence when such cases or proceedings were instituted.

(2) For the purposes of this section, all appeals in civil suits or proceedings pending on the said day shall—

(a) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Commissioners, Additional Commissioners or the Civil Judge of Peshawar be deemed to be appeals from the Divisional Court;

(b) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Deputy Commissioners or officers invested under section three of Act XIV of 1875 with the appellate powers of Deputy Commissioners, or with the full powers of an Assistant Commissioner, be deemed to be appeals from the Court of the Assistant Judge; and

(c) if preferred from the decrees, orders or decisions of Assistant Commissioners not invested with full powers, or with the appellate powers of Deputy Commissioners, or of Honorary Civil Judges not invested with the full powers of an Assistant Commissioner, or of Tahsíldárs or Náib Tahsíldárs, be deemed to be appeals from Subordinate Judges of the second, third or fourth class.

Explanation of sections 617 and 622, Civil Procedure Code.

72. For the purposes of sections 617 and 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, the decree of an Appellate Court subordinate to the Chief Court shall be deemed to be final when no certificate permitting a further appeal to the Chief Court under section 43 has been granted, and a case decided by an Appellate Court in which no such certificate has been granted shall be deemed to be a case in which no appeal lies to the Chief Court. XIV of 1882.

Amendment of the first schedule annexed to the Court-fees Act, 1870.

73. To the first schedule annexed to the Court-fees Act, 1870, the following shall be added :— VII of 1870.

NUMBER.		PROPER FEE.
3. Application to the Chief Court of the Panjáb for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure.	When the amount or value of the subject-matter in dispute does not exceed twenty-five rupees.	Two rupees.
	When such amount or value exceeds twenty-five rupees.	The fee leviable on memorandum of appeal.

The Panjáb Courts Bill, 1884.

74. If the Chief Court, on an application under section 622 of the Civil Procedure Code, on which a fee has been paid under the last preceding section, sets aside or modifies the decree or order of a subordinate Court, or remands the case for a fresh decision, it may grant to the applicant a certificate authorizing him to receive back from the Collector the full amount of fee paid on the application, or any smaller amount which, with regard to the circumstances of the case, it may think proper to order to be refunded.

Refund of fee paid on application for revision.

XIV of 1882.

75. All appointments made under sections 5 and 22 of Act XVII of 1877, directions given under section 23), rules and forms prescribed under sections 26 and 27, and notifications published, powers conferred and orders issued under section 49, of the same Act, shall, so far as may be, be deemed to have been respectively made, given, prescribed, published, conferred and issued under this Act.

Saving of certain appointments, rules and forms, notifications, powers and orders.

SCHEDULE.

ACTS REPEALED.

(See section 2.)

Number and year.	Title of Act.	Extent of repeal.
Act IV of 1869	The Indian Divorce Act.	So much of section 3 as defines "District Judge" in the Panjáb to mean the "Commissioner of a Division."
Act X of 1870	The Land Acquisition Act, 1870.	So much of section 3 as defines "Court" in the Panjáb to mean the "Commissioner of a Division."
Act XIV of 1875.	The Panjáb Judicial Administration Act, 1875.	So far as it relates to civil or criminal judicial powers.
Act XVII of 1877.	The Panjáb Courts' Act, 1877.	The whole.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

AN essential portion of the scheme for the reorganization of the civil administration in the Panjáb, which has recently received the sanction of the Secretary of State for India, is to be found in the improvement of the judicial agency and the reform of the appellate system. The arrangements proposed for this purpose render necessary very large changes in the law under which the Panjáb Courts are now constituted (the Panjáb Courts Act, 1877), and the most convenient mode of giving effect to them appears to be to repeal that Act and re-enact its provisions with the necessary additions and modifications. This it is proposed to do by the present Bill.

2. The changes in the law which it is intended to make will now be noticed.

3. Chapter II deals with the constitution of the Courts. The present law confers the civil judicial powers of the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court upon the executive officers of Government from the Commissioner down to the Tahsíldár, though Act XIV of 1875 enables the Local Government to confer the powers of a Deputy Commissioner or of a Tahsíldár upon other persons, and under that Act civil judicial powers have been conferred upon a number of officers known as Judicial Assistants and Munsifs, whose functions are mainly, though not always exclusively, judicial. Similarly, the Civil and Sessions Judge of Pesháwar and certain Additional Commissioners have been invested with the judicial powers of Commissioners under Act XVII of 1877. It is now proposed to relieve Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, as a rule, of civil judicial functions, though they will continue to exercise jurisdiction in certain classes of cases which will be transferred from the Civil to the Revenue Courts, and they may also be invested with civil judicial powers where the judicial work is so light as not to require the creation of special Courts. Commissioners will likewise be, as a rule, relieved of the functions as Sessions Judges which now devolve upon them, but this can be done under the Criminal Procedure Code, without special legislation.

4. Special designations which do not imply the exercise of executive functions are accordingly given to the Courts subordinate to the Chief Court (section 4).

5. With a view to strengthen the Courts of appeal in order to admit of greater finality being given to appellate decisions, it is proposed that the Court immediately subordinate to the Chief Court should ordinarily consist of two Judges, and that, while one of these Judges may be enabled by rule to exercise certain of the powers of the Court, a single Judge should not have power in the exercise of his appellate jurisdiction to reverse any order other than an interlocutory order passed by any Court.

6. Power is also taken (in section 7) to appoint the Commissioner of a Division to be one of the Judges of a Divisional Court in addition to his other duties, as it is in contemplation to establish one of the Divisional Courts at Derá Ismaíl Khán, and only one Judge will be available for that Court unless the Commissioner of the Deráját Division is appointed as one of the Judges.

7. The appointment of Assistant Judges and Subordinate Judges of the first class by the Local Government, and of Subordinate Judges of the second, third and fourth classes, corresponding to the present Munsifs, by the Chief Court, subject to rules to be made by the Local Government, is provided for by section 9. The Court of the Assistant Judge will replace the Court of the Deputy Commissioner or Judicial Assistant under the present law, and no provision has hitherto been made by law as to the authority by which Munsifs may be appointed or removed.

8. The other differences between Chapter II of the Bill and the corresponding chapter of Act XVII of 1877 follow upon those which have been already described.

9. The third chapter, which provides for the jurisdiction and powers of the Chief Court, only differs from the corresponding chapter of Act XVII of 1877 in that section 19, relating to the transfer of suits, is assimilated to section 25 of the Civil Procedure Code; section 21 is modified so as to enable the Chief Court to make rule for the exercise by one or more of the Judges of a Divisional Court of the powers of that Court, except as regards the reversal of decrees, sentences or decisions of any Court, to provide by rule for the constitution of a full bench of the Chief Court, and to delegate to one of its Judges the power of determining what Judges shall sit alone or as a bench of the Court, and power is also taken to enable a single Judge of the Chief Court or of a Divisional Court to reverse an interlocutory order; sections 31 and 32 replace the reference in section 29 of the present Act to sections 633 and 637 of the Civil Procedure Code, and add what is necessary of sections 638 and 639 of that Code; and section 33 provides for the delivery of the judgments of a bench of Judges by any Judge who was a member of that bench, in accordance with existing practice, and with the analogy of section 199 of the Civil Procedure Code.

10. Chapter IV relates to the jurisdiction and powers of Courts subordinate to the Chief Court. The Divisional Court is declared to be the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, but the Local Government is enabled to empower any Assistant Judge or Deputy Commissioner with the powers of an Assistant Judge to exercise any of the powers of a District Court, so as to obviate the inconvenience of unduly limiting the number of Courts which can exercise jurisdiction under certain laws, e. g., Acts XL of 1858, XXVII of 1860 and IX of 1861.

11. While the jurisdiction of the Divisional Court and of the Court of the Assistant Judge is unlimited as respects the value or amount in litigation, thus corresponding with the jurisdiction now exercised by Commissioners and Deputy Commissioners, that of the Subordinate Judge of the first class is limited to Rs. 5,000 instead of Rs. 10,000, which is the limit of the present jurisdiction of an Assistant Commissioner with full powers, and that of other Subordinate Judges may extend either to Rs. 100, to Rs. 500 or to Rs. 1,000.

12. In section 41 power is taken to invest Assistant Judges or Subordinate Judges with the jurisdiction of a Small Cause Court Judge for the trial of suits cognizable by a Small Cause Court within certain limits of value or amount.

13. The other changes in Chapter IV are those which are rendered necessary by the alterations of the law already described.

14. Chapter V relates to appellate jurisdiction in civil cases. It embodies the modifications proposed in the appellate system with the view of restricting the right of appeal so far as it is considered that the improved organization of the Courts will admit of this. The second appeals allowed by the Code of Civil Procedure, and the further appeals allowed by the present Panjáb Courts Act are abolished, and the decisions of appellate Courts are made final, except that the Judges of a Divisional Court are enabled, when they differ as to the judgment which should be passed, or when some question of law or custom or of general interest is involved, if they think the case of sufficient importance to justify further appeal, to grant a certificate permitting a further appeal to the Chief Court.

15. Appeals to Assistant Judges are confined to suits not above Rs. 500 in value, either of the Small Cause Court class or of any other class which the Chief Court, with the sanction of the Local Government, may determine to put upon the same footing, and appeals in suits above Rs. 5,000 in value, as well as appeals from decrees of the Divisional Court, will, when allowed by law, lie to the Chief Court, all other appeals allowed by law lying to the Divisional Court.

16. Section 47, relating to the transfer of appeals, has been modified to the same extent as section 19.

17. Chapter VI, which deals with Revenue Courts, is new, having been rendered necessary by the transfer of certain classes of suits enumerated in section 48 from the Civil to the Revenue Courts. It provides for the jurisdiction and powers of these Courts, for their procedure, for appeals from their decisions, for the revisional jurisdiction of the Financial Commissioner, and the controlling powers of the Financial Commissioner, Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner, respectively, for the transfer of suits and appeals, and for the distribution of business between Financial Commissioners when more than one such officer is appointed, the sanction which has been given by the Secretary of State to the appointment of a second Financial Commissioner rendering a provision of this nature necessary. Sections 64 and 65 correspond with sections 49 and 50 of the present Act, enabling the Local Government to confer judicial powers upon Settlement-officers, the only addition being that the officer may be so empowered either by name or in virtue of his office.

18. Chapter VII contains miscellaneous and supplementary provisions, some of which correspond with sections 46 to 48 of the present Act. Of the others, section 69 provides that any Judge of the Divisional Court shall be deemed to be the District Judge throughout its jurisdiction for the purposes of the Indian Divorce Act; section 70 provides for vacations; and section 71 for proceedings pending when this Bill becomes law; section 72 interprets certain expressions in sections 617 and 622 of the Civil Procedure Code so as to prevent doubt as to the cases in which the revisional jurisdiction of the Chief Court may be exercised; section 73 amends the Court-fees Act so that the fee leviable on a memorandum of appeal, when it exceeds the fee leviable on a petition to the Chief Court, may be charged on an application to it for the exercise of its revisional jurisdiction under section 622 of the Civil Procedure Code; and section 74 enables the Court in certain cases to grant a certificate authorizing the refund of the fee so charged.

SCHEDULE.—PORTIONS OF THE INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT (X OF 1865) MODIFIED FOR APPLICATION TO WILLS MADE BY KHOJÁS.

* Explanation of abbreviation used in the margin.

"Bo. Bill" refers to the draft Bill prepared by the Commission and received with the letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 216, dated 14th January, 1880.

A Bill to amend and define the law of Testamentary and Intestate Succession to Khojás.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and define the law applicable to testamentary and intestate succession to Khojás; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called the Khojá Succession Act, 1884; and it shall extend to the whole of British India.

Short title. Local extent.

2. Except as provided by any other law for the time being in force, succession to the property, whether moveable or immoveable, in British India of a Khojá dying on or after the first day of January eighteen hundred and eighty-five shall be regulated by the rules contained in this Act, wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. [Act X of 1865, s. 5.]

Application.

Explanation.—Property in British India includes obligations enforceable there.

3. (1) In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— [Bo. Bill, s. 3.]

Definitions.

"son" means a legitimate son, and does not include an adopted son:

"grandson" means a son's son:

"great-grandson" means a grandson's son:

"daughter" means a legitimate daughter:

"father" and "mother" do not include step-father and step-mother:

"grandfather" and "grandmother" do not include a father's step-father or step-mother:

"brother" and "sister" do not include step-brother and step-sister, nor half-brother and half-sister:

"half-brother" means son of the same father but by another wife:

"lineal male descendant," used with reference to any person, means a male descended from that person through males only: [New.]

"degree" means a degree of kindred computed according to the rules laid down in sections 21, 22 and 24 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, and the table of consanguinity thereto annexed: X of 1865.

"undivided property" means a share in the property belonging to an undivided family: [Home Dept. Office Memo. dated 12th August, 1882, para. 7.]

"restricted owner," used with reference to any property, means a female acquiring that property in the manner specified in section 21, section 23, sub-section (2), section 24, sub-section (1), section 27 and section 39. [New.]

(2) When it is provided in this Act that the members of any class shall take property and the shares which they are respectively to take therein are not specified, they shall take equal shares therein.

4. For the purposes of this Act there shall be no distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property, nor between moveable and immoveable property, nor between those born in the lifetime of a deceased owner of property and those who at the date of his death were only conceived in the womb, but who have been subsequently born alive. [Bo. Bill, s. 7.] [Act X of 1865, s. 23.]

No distinction between ancestral and self-acquired, nor between moveable and immoveable, property. Child in womb.

(Chapter II.—Of Succession to the Undivided Property of a Male Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 5-6.)

(Chapter III.—Of Succession to the Separate Property of a Male Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 7-20.)

CHAPTER II.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE UNDIVIDED PROPERTY OF A MALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 8-12.]

5. (1) When a male Khojá owning undivided property dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal male descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, every such descendant shall be entitled to a share in that property unless one of the persons through whom he is descended from the intestate is living.

Where there are lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

(2) When the sharers under sub-section (1) all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, their shares shall be equal.

[Act X of 1865, s. 33.]

(3) When the sharers under sub-section (1) do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as will correspond with the number of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to him at his decease, and of his lineal male descendants of the like degree of kindred who died before him, and through whom the other sharers are descended from him; and one such share shall be allotted to each of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at his decease; and one such share shall be allotted in respect of each such deceased male descendant; and the share allotted in respect of each such deceased male descendant shall be divided among the sharers descended through him, in such manner that the sons of any person shall always take that which their father would have been entitled to if he had survived the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, s. 13.]

6. In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the property of the intestate shall be divided equally among all the male members of his undivided family living at his death

Where there are no lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

CHAPTER III.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE SEPARATE PROPERTY OF A MALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, s. 16.]

7. When a male Khojá owning property, not being undivided property, dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal male descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, the property shall descend in the manner provided in section 5.

Where there are lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

[Bo. Bill, s. 17.]

8. In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the intestate's father shall succeed to the property.

In default of such lineal male descendants, property to belong to the intestate's father.

[Bo. Bill, s. 18.]

9. In default of the father, the intestate's mother shall succeed to the property.

In default of the father, to the mother.

[Bo. Bill, s. 19, see infra, s. 34.]

10. In default of the mother, the widow or widows of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of the mother, to the widows.

[Bo. Bill, s. 20.]

11. In default of widows, the daughters of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of widows, to the daughters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 21.]

12. (1) In default of daughters, the sons of daughters shall succeed to the property, the sons of each daughter taking an equal share:

In default of daughters, to daughters' sons and to brothers.

Provided that, if the intestate has left brothers surviving him, the daughters' sons shall succeed to a moiety of the property, the sons of each daughter taking an equal share, and the brothers shall take the other moiety.

(2) In default of daughters' sons, the brothers shall take the whole of the property.

[Bo. Bill, s. 22.]

13. In default of brothers, the daughters of the intestate's sons shall succeed to the property, the daughters of each son taking an equal share.

In default of brothers, to sons' daughters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 23.]

14. In default of sons' daughters, the sons of the intestate's brothers shall succeed to the property, the sons of each brother taking an equal share.

In default of sons' daughters, to brothers' sons.

[Bo. Bill, s. 24.]

15. In default of brothers' sons, the half-brothers of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of brothers' sons, to half-brothers.

[Bo. Bill, s. 25.]

16. In default of half-brothers, the sons of half-brothers shall succeed to the property, the sons of each half-brother taking an equal share.

In default of half-brothers, to half-brothers' sons.

[Bo. Bill, s. 26.]

17. In default of sons of half-brothers, the paternal grandfather shall succeed to the property; and in default of the paternal grandfather, the paternal grandmother shall succeed to it.

In default of half-brothers' sons, to the grandfather; and in default of the grandfather, to the grandmother.

[Bo. Bill, s. 27.]

18. In default of the paternal grandmother, the paternal uncles shall succeed to the property.

In default of the grandmother, to paternal uncles.

[Bo. Bill, s. 28.]

19. In default of paternal uncles, the sisters of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of paternal uncles, to sisters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 29.]

20. In default of sisters, the property shall belong to those of the intestate's relatives on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate; and, in default of relatives on the father's side, to those of the intestate's relatives on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate:

In default of sisters, to the nearest of kin.

Provided that no female relative shall be entitled to share in the property if there is a male relative standing on the same side in the same degree of kindred to the intestate.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter IV.—Of Succession to the Absolute Property of a Female Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 23-27.)

(Chapter V.—Of Property which a Female takes as Restricted Owner, and the further Succession to the same.—Section 28.)

[Bo. Bill, s. 33. Nec sec. 48, infra.]

When female takes as restricted owner under foregoing sections.

21. If, at the death of the intestate, any of the male heirs mentioned in sections 7 to 18 (both inclusive), or any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate, is living, a female succeeding under any of the foregoing sections shall take the property as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 30.]

Widow's right to retain possession of ornaments.

22. When a male Khojá dies intestate in respect of any ornaments belonging to him, and not being undivided property, which are in the possession of his wife with his consent, and the wife does not acquire the ownership, whether absolute or restricted, of the ornaments under this Act, she shall be entitled to retain possession of them until she dies or re-marries.

CHAPTER IV.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE ABSOLUTE PROPERTY OF A FEMALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, s. 38.]

Descent of unmarried female's absolute property.

23. (1) When an unmarried female Khojá owning property otherwise than as a restricted owner dies intestate in respect of that property, it shall belong to her brothers; in default of brothers, to her father; in default of the father, to her mother; in default of the mother, to the relatives of the intestate on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate; and, in default of such relatives, to the relatives on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 32 & 33.]

(2) If at the death of the intestate any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate is living, a female succeeding under this section, whether in preference to or together with that male relative, shall take the property as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 40.]

Descent of married female's absolute property.

24. (1) When a married female Khojá owning property otherwise than as restricted owner dies intestate in respect of that property, it shall belong to her sons and daughters; and the daughters shall take it as restricted owners.

[Bo. Bill, s. 32.]

(2) In default of sons and daughters, the property shall, except as provided in sub-section (3), belong to her husband.

(3) If the property has been given to the female on the occasion of her marriage separately from the "Dej" for her sole use and benefit by her parents or relatives, it shall, in default of sons and daughters, belong—

(a) to her father; and

(4) A female taking property under clause (b) of sub-section (3) shall not take it as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 37.]

Descent of absolute property of widow or divorced female leaving lineal descendants within the fourth degree.

25. (1) When a female Khojá, being a widow or divorced and owning property otherwise than as restricted owner, dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, every such descendant shall be entitled to a share of the property unless one of the persons through whom he is descended from the intestate is living.

(2) When the sharers under sub-section (1) all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, their shares shall be equal.

[Act X of 1865, s. 33.]

(3) When the sharers under sub-section (1) do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as may correspond with the number of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to her at her decease, and of lineal descendants of the like degree of kindred who died before her and through whom the other sharers are descended from her; and one such share shall be allotted to each of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at her decease; and one such share shall be allotted in respect of each such deceased descendant; and the share allotted in respect of each such deceased descendant shall be divided among the sharers descended through him, in such manner that the children of any person shall always take what that person would have been entitled to if he had survived the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, s. 37.]

Where there are no such lineal descendants.

26. (1) In default of the descendants mentioned in section 25, the property shall belong to the brothers of the intestate; in default of brothers, to her father; in default of the father, to her mother.

(2) In default of the mother, the property shall belong to the relatives of the intestate on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred, and, in default of such relatives, to the relatives of the intestate on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred.

[Bo. Bill, s. 32.]

When female taking under section 25 or 26 takes as restricted owner.

27. If, at the death of the intestate, any of the male heirs mentioned in section 25 and the first sub-section of section 26, or any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate, is living, a female succeeding under section 25 or section 26, whether in preference to or together with that heir or relative, shall take the property as restricted owner.

CHAPTER V.

OF PROPERTY WHICH A FEMALE TAKES AS RESTRICTED OWNER, AND THE FURTHER SUCCESSION TO THE SAME.

[Bo. Bill, s. 3; "life-estate," "stridhan."]

Nature of restricted ownership generally.

28. A female taking property as restricted owner shall be absolutely entitled to the use of, and the income accruing from, that property during her life, and, except as otherwise provided by this Act, shall have all the other rights and powers of an absolute owner in respect of that property.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter V.—Of Property which a Female takes as Restricted Owner, and the further Succession to the same.—Sections 29-36.)

[Bo. Bill, s. 3; "life-estate."]

29. Except as provided by section 31, no right to, over or in respect of property created by a restricted owner of that property shall have effect for any time beyond her life:

Powers of alienation limited.

[New.]

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect a lease granted at a fair rent for a term not exceeding twenty years, and without payment of any fine or premium, or a right created for consideration in favour of a person acting in good faith, and without notice of the ownership being restricted.

[Act II of 1882, s. 3.]

Explanation.—A person has notice of the ownership being restricted when he actually knows that it is restricted, or when, but for wilful abstention from enquiry or gross negligence, he would have known it, or when information of it is given to, or obtained by, his agent under the circumstances mentioned in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 229.

IX of 1872.

30. A female taking property as restricted owner shall be bound, so far as it is possible for her to do so without applying her other property for that purpose,—

Obligations of restricted owner.

(a) to preserve the substance of the property without any material alteration, deterioration or diminution except such as may be essential to the realization of the full income of it in a reasonable manner, and to deal with it in all respects as carefully as a person of ordinary prudence would deal with property which he hoped to transmit in good condition to his heirs; and

[Act II of 1882, s. 13.]

(b) to make such payments, institute, maintain and defend such suits and other proceedings, and take such other steps as, regard being had to the nature and amount or value of the property, may be reasonably requisite for the assertion and protection of the title thereto, for the protection of the interest of those who are to take it after her, or for the recovery of any portion of it which is not in her possession.

[Bo. Bill, s. 3; "life-estate."]

31. A female taking property as restricted owner shall have power to transfer the same, so that the transfer may have effect beyond her life when, the income being insufficient, such transfer is necessary in order to raise money for any of the following purposes, namely:—

Restricted owner's power of transfer.

(a) to discharge any of the obligations imposed by section 30;

(b) to discharge the debts of the absolute owner from whom the property descended;

(c) to provide for the maintenance of any persons entitled under this Act to have their maintenance provided for out of the property, for the payment of any marriage expenses or funeral expenses payable under this Act out of the property, and for the performance of any ordinary family ceremonies; and

(d) to support herself where she has no other sufficient means of support.

[Act II of 1882, s. 34.]

32. (1) A restricted owner of property may, without instituting a suit, apply by petition to a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction to sanction any transfer of that property which she proposes to make under section 31.

Power to apply to Court to sanction a transfer under section 31.

(2) The petition must state the names of all the persons interested in the application so far as they can be ascertained, and must be verified by the applicant or by some other competent person in the manner required by law for the verification of plaints; and, if it contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, that person shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860.

(3) A copy of the petition shall be served upon, and the hearing thereof may be attended by, such of the persons interested in the application as the Court thinks fit.

(4) A transfer made with the sanction of a Court obtained under this section shall be deemed to be warranted by section 31.

[New].

33. A Court dealing with an application under section 32 may, if it thinks fit, sanction the transfer proposed subject to the condition that the money raised by the transfer shall be paid into Court or to trustees appointed by the Court, and may give such further directions as it thinks fit with a view to ensuring that the money shall be applied to the purpose for which it is raised, or that any balance thereof which is not required for that purpose, shall be secured for the benefit of those who would take the property after the restricted owner.

Power to direct money raised to be paid into Court.

34. When property belonging to a female as restricted owner is sold in execution of a decree passed against her, the interest taken by the purchaser shall cease on her death,—

Effect of sale in execution against restricted owner.

except when, without any collusion between her and the plaintiff,—

(a) the decree is passed against her as representative of the absolute owner from whom the property descended; or

(b) the decree is one for sale passed on a mortgage made under section 31 so as to take effect beyond the life of the female.

35. A decision in any suit or other proceeding, or a compromise of any dispute, relating to the property to which the restricted owner is a party, shall, except where she acts in collusion with the party opposed to her, bind those who take the property after her under this Act in the same manner and to the same extent as if she were an absolute owner of the property.

Effect of decision or compromise to which the restricted owner is a party.

36. In any case in which, under any enactment for the time being in force, an owner of property would by lapse of time lose any right to, over or in respect of that property, or any means of enforcing any such right, or another person would by lapse of time acquire any right to, over or in respect of that property, any period which elapses during the continuance of the restricted ownership shall be reckoned as against those taking the property after the termination of that ownership in the same manner and to the same extent as if the restricted owner had been an absolute owner of the property and it had been taken by them as her heirs.

Effect of lapse of time during continuance of restricted ownership.

[Bo. Bill, s. 39.]

Further descent of property held by unmarried female as restricted owner.

37. (1) When property has descended to a female as restricted owner and she dies unmarried, it shall belong to the person to whom it would then have belonged if she had died before the absolute owner from whom it descended and it had descended under this Act without having been alienated.

(2) In default of such person, the property shall descend as if the female were not a restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 41.]

Further descent of restricted property of married or divorced female or widow.

38. (1) When property has descended to a female as restricted owner and she dies, being at the time of her death married, a widow or divorced from her husband, the property shall be divided among her legitimate lineal male descendants, not being more remote than the fourth degree, those nearest in degree of kindred to her excluding the more remote, and, when those nearest in degree are not her sons, the property being so divided amongst them that the sons of any person shall take the share which he would have taken if the fathers of all had survived the restricted owner.

(2) In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the property shall belong to the daughters of the deceased; in default of daughters, the property shall belong to the legitimate lineal male descendants of daughters, not being more remote from the deceased than the fourth degree, those nearest in degree excluding the more remote; the descendants of each daughter, when they take, taking an equal share, and when they are not sons of the daughters, that share being so divided among them that the sons of any person shall take what he would have taken if the fathers of all had survived the restricted owner.

(3) In default of legitimate lineal male descendants of daughters as aforesaid, the property shall belong to the person to whom it would then have belonged if the restricted owner had died before the absolute owner from whom it descended, and it had descended under this Act without having been alienated.

(4) In default of such person, the property shall descend as if the female were not a restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 32.]

When female taking property under sections 37 and 38 takes as restricted owner.

39. When property, having descended to a female as restricted owner, subsequently descends to another female under section 37, sub-section (1), or section 38, sub-section (3), that female shall take it as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 19.]

Widows taking together as restricted owners to have a right of survivorship.

40. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, when two or more widows of a deceased Khojá take his property under this Act as restricted owners,—

(1) there shall be as between them a right of survivorship in respect of that property;

(2) the proviso to section 29 shall not apply to any lease of or any right to, over or in respect of the property, or any part or share thereof, granted or created by one or more of them without the consent in writing of the other or others of them then surviving;

(4) section 35 shall not apply to any decision in any suit or proceeding or to any compromise unless all of them then surviving are parties to that suit, proceeding or compromise.

[Bo. Bill, s. 34; Act XV of 1856, s. 2.]

Effect of re-marriage of widow claiming or holding as restricted owner.

41. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, a widow marrying again after her husband's death shall not be entitled to take as restricted owner his property or any property of any of his lineal descendants which has descended to them from him; and a widow taking any such property as restricted owner under the foregoing sections and subsequently marrying again shall, for the purpose of applying sections 28, 29, 34, 38 and 40, to that property, be deemed to have died.

CHAPTER VI.

OF WILLS OF KHOJÁS.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 4, 5 & 6.] X of 1865.

Extension of portions of Act X of 1865 with certain modifications to wills of Khojás.

42. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the portions of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, with the modifications shown in that schedule, shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section 331 of that Act, apply to all wills made by a Khojá, whether male or female, dying on or after the first day of January eighteen hundred and eighty-five; and in the portions of the Act so applying all words defined in section 3 of the Act shall, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to have the same meaning as that section has attached to them respectively;

Provided that—

(a) For the purpose of the portions of the Act so applying, no person to whom the Indian Majority Act, 1875, applies shall be deemed to have attained his majority before the time specified in this behalf in that Act. IX of 1875.

(b) A bequest by a Khojá in favour of any person who has not come into existence at the death of the testator, or in favour of a class of persons any one of whom has not come into existence at that time, shall be void.

(c) When a bequest is void under clause (b), any bequest contained in the same will and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior bequest shall also be void.

[Act IV of 1882, s. 10.]

Bequest of property to woman without power to transfer or charge.

43. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing sections, a Khojá may bequeath property to or for the benefit of a woman so that she shall not have power to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter VII.—Of Maintenance and Marriage and Funeral Expenses.—Secs. 44-47.)

(Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 48-51.)

CHAPTER VII.

OF MAINTENANCE AND MARRIAGE AND FUNERAL EXPENSES.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 34 & 43.]

Maintenance and funeral expenses payable out of intestate's property.

44. (1) The amount requisite for the maintenance of the following persons and the amount of their necessary funeral expenses shall, if they do not possess or leave means sufficient for the purpose, be payable out of any property of a deceased male Khojá in respect of which he has died intestate.

(2) The persons referred to are—

(a) the widow or widows of the deceased Khojá and the widows of his legitimate lineal male descendants, provided they have not married again;

(b) every daughter and sister (whether legitimate or not) of the deceased Khojá, and every legitimate daughter of his son, grandson or great-grandson, except when she has been married and her husband is living;

(c) the father, mother, grandfather and grandmother of the deceased Khojá; and

[Bo. Bill, s. 44.]

Marriage expenses payable out of intestate's property.

45. The expenses of the first or only marriage of every daughter (whether legitimate or not) of a deceased male Khojá, and of every legitimate daughter of his deceased son, grandson or great-grandson, if not otherwise sufficiently provided for, shall be payable out of any of his property in respect of which he has died intestate.

[Bo. Bill, s. 45.]

Maintenance and funeral expenses payable out of property of testator.

46. If a male Khojá dies leaving a legitimate lineal male descendant who has not attained his majority, or a daughter who is unmarried or a widow, and having disposed of his property by will in such a manner as to leave that descendant, daughter or widow without sufficient means for the purpose, the amount requisite for the maintenance, of the descendant during his minority, or of the daughter while she remains unmarried or of the widow until her death or re-marriage (as the case may be) shall be payable out of the testator's property; and if the descendant dies before he attains his majority or the daughter dies unmarried or the widow dies without re-marrying, his or her necessary funeral expenses shall be payable out of that property.

[New.]

Recovery of sums claimable under sections 44, 45 and 46.

47. Any sum claimable for maintenance or marriage expenses or funeral expenses under section 44, section 45 or section 46 out of any property of a deceased male Khojá shall be recoverable as if it was due under a contract made by the Khojá in his lifetime and he had died leaving only that property:

Provided that—

first, the property shall be applied to the payment of debts due by the deceased before being applied to the payment of sums so claimable;

secondly, no decree shall be passed for arrears of any allowance on account of maintenance unless the amount of the allowance has been fixed by agreement or by order of a Court; and

thirdly, when a suit is instituted for the purpose of having any such allowance fixed against a person taking the property by intestate succession, and that person is able and willing to maintain or provide for the maintenance of the person by or on whose behalf the suit is instituted, and gives security to the satisfaction of the Court for his so doing, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dismiss the suit.

CHAPTER VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

[Bo. Bill, s. 42. Act X of 1865, s. 28.]

Property when to go to the Crown.

43. When a Khojá dies intestate in respect of any of his property, and there is no person entitled to take that property under the foregoing sections, it shall go to the Crown.

Females succeeding under this Act to take as males, except in certain cases.

49. Except as otherwise provided by this Act—

(2) a female taking property under any testamentary disposition under this Act shall have the same interest in it, and the same powers in respect of it, as a male taking under a like disposition.

[Bo. Bill, s. 3. Act XV of 1856, s. 3.]

Forfeiture of right of guardian where widow re-marries.

50. If a widow of a deceased Khojá, not having been appointed by his will to be guardian for his children, re-marries again, she shall not be entitled as of right to be appointed guardian of the children by a Court under any law for the time being in force relating to the appointment of guardians, and, when she has before her re-marriage been so appointed, a Court having jurisdiction to appoint a guardian for the children may in its discretion remove her from the guardianship.

Property transferable by gift made in contemplation of death.

51. A Khojá may dispose, by gift made in contemplation of death, of any moveable property which he could dispose of by will.

When gift said to be made in contemplation of death.

A gift is said to be made in contemplation of death where a person who is ill and expects to die shortly of his illness delivers to another the possession of any moveable property to keep as a gift in case the donor shall die of that illness.

Such gift resumable.

Such a gift may be resumed by the giver.

When it fails.

It does not take effect if he recovers from the illness during which it was made, nor if he survives the person to whom it was made.

(b.) A being ill, and in expectation of death, delivers to B the key of a trunk, or the key of a warehouse in which goods of bulk belonging to A are deposited, with the intention of giving him the control over the contents of the trunk, or over the deposited goods, and desires him to keep them in case of A's death. A dies of the illness during which he delivered these articles. B is entitled to the trunk and its contents, or to A's goods of bulk in the warehouse.

(c.) A being ill and in expectation of death, puts aside certain articles in separate parcels, and marks upon the parcels respectively the names of B and C. The parcels are not delivered during the life of A. A dies of the illness during which he set aside the parcels. B and C are not entitled to the contents of the parcels.

PORTIONS OF THE INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT (X OF 1865) MODIFIED FOR APPLICATION TO WILLS MADE BY KHOJÁS.

Note.—Modifications are shewn in italics; omissions by asterisks.

PART VII.

Of Wills and Codicils.

Persons capable of making wills.

46. Every person of sound mind and not a minor may dispose of his property by will.

Explanation 1.—A married woman may dispose by will of any property which she could alienate by her own act during her life.

Explanation 2.—Persons who are deaf, or dumb, or blind are not thereby incapacitated for making a will if they are able to know what they do by it.

Explanation 3.—One who is ordinarily insane may make a will during an interval in which he is of sound mind.

Explanation 4.—No person can make a will while he is in such a state of mind, whether arising from drunkenness, or from illness, or from any other cause, that he does not know what he is doing.

Illustrations.

(a.) A can perceive what is going on in his immediate neighbourhood, and can answer familiar questions, but has not a competent understanding as to the nature of his property, or the persons who are of kindred to him, or in whose favour it would be proper that he should make his will. A cannot make a valid will.

(b.) A executes an instrument purporting to be his will, but he does not understand the nature of the instrument nor the effect of its provisions. This instrument is not a valid will.

(c.) A, being very feeble and debilitated, but capable of exercising a judgment as to the proper mode of disposing of his property, makes a will. This is a valid will.

Testamentary guardian.

47. A father, whatever his age may be, may by will appoint a guardian or guardians for his child during minority.

Will obtained by fraud, coercion or importunity.

Illustrations.

(a.) A falsely and knowingly represents to the testator that the testator's only child is dead, or that he has done some undutiful act, and thereby induces the testator to make a will in his, A's, favour; such will has been obtained by fraud and is invalid.

(b.) A by fraud and deception prevails upon the testator to bequeath a legacy to him. The bequest is void.

(c.) A, being a prisoner by lawful authority, makes his will. The will is not invalid by reason of the imprisonment.

(d.) A threatens to shoot B, or to burn his house, or to cause him to be arrested on a criminal charge, unless he makes a bequest in favour of C. B in consequence makes a bequest in favour of C. The bequest is void, the making of it having been caused by coercion.

(e.) A being of sufficient intellect, if undisturbed by the influence of others, to make a will, yet being so much under the control of B that he is not a free agent, makes a will dictated by B. It appears that he would not have executed the will but for fear of B. The will is invalid.

(f.) A, being in so feeble a state of health as to be unable to resist importunity, is pressed by B to make a will of a certain purport, and does so merely to purchase peace, and in submission to B. The will is invalid.

(g.) A being in such a state of health as to be capable of exercising his own judgment and volition, B uses urgent intercession and persuasion with him to induce him to make a will of a certain purport. A, in consequence of the intercession and persuasion, but in the free exercise of his judgment and volition, makes his will in the manner recommended by B. The will is not rendered invalid by the intercession and persuasion of B.

(h.) A, with a view to obtaining a legacy from B, pays him attention and flatters him, and thereby produces in him a capricious partiality to A. B, in consequence of such attention and flattery, makes his will, by which he leaves a legacy to A. The bequest is not rendered invalid by the attention and flattery of A.

Will may be revoked or altered.

49. A will is liable to be revoked or altered by the maker of it at any time when he is competent to dispose of his property by will.

PART VIII.

Of the Execution of Unprivileged Wills.

Execution of unprivileged wills.

50. Every testator, not being a soldier employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or a mariner at sea, must execute his will according to the following rules:—

First.—The testator shall sign or shall affix his mark to the will, or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction.

Second.—The signature or mark of the testator, or the signature of the person signing for him, shall be so placed that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a will.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Third.—The will shall be attested by two or more witnesses, each of whom must have seen the testator sign or affix his mark to the will, or have seen some other person sign the will in the presence and by the direction of the testator, or have received from the testator a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person; and each of the witnesses must sign or affix his mark to the will in the presence of the testator, but it shall not be necessary that more than one witness be present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary.

Incorporation of papers by reference.

51. If a testator, in a will or codicil duly attested, refers to any other document then actually written, as expressing any part of his intentions, such document shall be considered as forming a part of the will or codicil in which it is referred to.

PART IX.

Of Privileged Wills.

Privileged wills.

52. Any soldier being employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or any mariner being at sea, may, if he has completed the age of eighteen years, dispose of his property by a will made as is mentioned in the fifty-third section. Such wills are called privileged wills.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, the surgeon of a regiment, is actually employed in an expedition. He is a soldier actually employed in an expedition, and can make a privileged will.

(b.) A is at sea in a merchant-ship, of which he is the purser. He is a mariner, and being at sea can make a privileged will.

(c.) A, a soldier serving in the field against insurgents, is a soldier engaged in actual warfare, and as such can make a privileged will.

(d.) A, a mariner of a ship in the course of a voyage, is temporarily on shore, while she is lying in harbour. He is, in the sense of the words used in this clause, a mariner at sea, and can make a privileged will.

(e.) A, an admiral who commands a naval force, but who lives on shore, and only occasionally goes on board his ship, is not considered as at sea, and cannot make a privileged will.

(f.) A, a mariner serving on a military expedition, but not being at sea, is considered as a soldier, and can make a privileged will.

Mode of making, and rules for executing, privileged wills.

53. Privileged wills may be in writing, or may be made by word of mouth.

The execution of them shall be governed by the following rules :—

First.—The will may be written wholly by the testator, with his own hand. In such case it need not be signed nor attested.

Second.—It may be written wholly or in part by another person, and signed by the testator. In such case it need not be attested.

Third.—If the instrument purporting to be a will is written wholly or in part by another person, and is not signed by the testator, it shall be considered to be his will, if it be shown that it was written by the testator's directions, or that he recognized it as his will.

If it appear on the face of the instrument that the execution of it in the manner intended by him was not completed, the instrument shall not by reason of that circumstance be invalid, provided that his non-execution of it can be reasonably ascribed to some cause other than the abandonment of the testamentary intentions expressed in the instrument.

Fourth.—If the soldier or mariner shall have written instructions for the preparation of his will, but shall have died before it could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will.

Fifth.—If the soldier or mariner shall, in the presence of two witnesses, have given verbal instructions for the preparation of his will, and they shall have been reduced into writing in his lifetime, but he shall have died before the instrument could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will, although they may not have been reduced into writing in his presence, nor read over to him.

Sixth.—Such soldier or mariner as aforesaid may make a will by word of mouth by declaring his intentions before two witnesses present at the same time.

Seventh.—A will made by word of mouth shall be null at the expiration of one month after the testator shall have ceased to be entitled to make a privileged will.

PART X.

Of the Attestation, Revocation, Alteration and Revival of Wills.

* * * * * * * * *

Witness not disqualified by interest or by being executor.

55. No person, by reason of interest in, or of his being an executor of, a will, is disqualified as a witness to prove the execution of the will or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof.

* * * * * * * * *

Revocation of unprivileged will or codicil.

57. No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, shall be revoked otherwise than * * * * * by another will or codicil, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which an unprivileged will is hereinbefore required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Illustrations.

(a.) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards A makes another unprivileged will which purports to revoke the first. This is a revocation.

(b.) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards, A being entitled to make a privileged will, makes a privileged will which purports to revoke his unprivileged will. This is a revocation.

Effect of obliteration, interlineation or alteration in unprivileged will.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.
(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X. of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

as so altered, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses be made in the margin or on some other part of the will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of or opposite to a memorandum referring to such alteration, and written at the end or some other part of the will.

Revocation of privileged will or codicil.

59. A privileged will or codicil may be revoked by the testator, by an unprivileged will or codicil, or by any act expressing an intention to revoke it, and accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Explanation.—In order to the revocation of a privileged will or codicil by an act accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, it is not necessary that the testator should at the time of doing that act be in a situation which entitles him to make a privileged will.

Revival of unprivileged will.

60. No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked, shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and showing an intention to revive the same;

Extent of revival of will or codicil partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked.

and when any will or codicil which shall be partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked shall be revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary shall be shown by the will or codicil.

PART XI.

Of the Construction of Wills.

Wording of will.

Enquiries to determine questions as to object or subject of will.

62. For the purpose of determining questions as to what person or what property is denoted by any words used in a will, a Court must inquire into every material fact relating to the persons who claim to be interested under such will, the property which is claimed as the subject of disposition, the circumstances of the testator and of his family, and into every fact a knowledge of which may conduce to the right application of the words which the testator has used.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, by his will, bequeaths 1,000 rupees to his eldest son or to his youngest grandchild, or to his cousin Mary. A Court may make inquiry in order to ascertain to what person the description in the will applies.

(b.) A, by his will, leaves to B "his estate called Black Acre." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what is the subject-matter of the bequest; that is to say, what estate of the testator's is called Black Acre.

(c.) A, by his will, leaves to B "the estate which he purchased of C." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what estate the testator purchased of C.

Misnomer or misdescription of object.

63. Where the words used in the will to designate or describe a legatee, or a class of legatees, sufficiently show what is meant, an error in the name or description shall not prevent the legacy from taking effect.

A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother, named John, who has no son named Thomas, but has a second son whose name is William. William shall have the legacy.

(b.) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, whose first son is named Thomas, and whose second son is named William. Thomas shall have the legacy.

(c.) The testator bequeaths his property "to A and B, the legitimate children of C." C has no legitimate child, but has two illegitimate children, A and B. The bequest to A and B takes effect, although they are illegitimate.

(d.) The testator gives his residuary estate to be divided among "his seven children," and proceeding to enumerate them, mentions six names only. This omission shall not prevent the seventh child from taking a share with the others.

(e.) The testator, having six grand-children, makes a bequest to "his six grand-children," and proceeding to mention them by their Christian names, mentions one twice over, omitting another altogether. The one whose name is not mentioned shall take a share with the others.

(f.) The testator bequeaths "1,000 rupees to each of the three children of A." At the date of the will A has four children. Each of these four children shall, if he survives the testator, receive a legacy of 1,000 rupees.

When words may be supplied.

64. Where any word material to the full expression of the meaning has been omitted, it may be supplied by the context.

Illustration.

The testator gives a legacy of "five hundred" to his daughter A, and a legacy of "five hundred rupees" to his daughter B. A shall take a legacy of five hundred rupees.

Rejection of erroneous particulars in description of subject.

65. If the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous and the bequest shall take effect.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, but had no marsh-lands in the occupation of X. The words "in the occupation of X" shall be rejected as erroneous, and the marsh-lands of the testator lying in L shall pass by the bequest.

(b.) The testator bequeaths to A "his zamíndárí of Rámpúr." He had an estate at Rámpúr, but it was a taluq and not a zamíndárí. The taluq passes by this bequest.

When part of description may not be rejected as erroneous.

66. If the will mentions several circumstances as descriptive of the thing which the testator intends to bequeath, and there is any property of his in respect of which all those circumstances exist, the bequest shall be considered as limited to such property, and it shall not be lawful to reject any part of the description as erroneous, because the testator had other property to which such part of the description does not apply.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Explanation.—In judging whether a case falls within the meaning of this section, any words which would be liable to rejection under the sixty-fifth section are to be considered as struck out of the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The bequest shall be considered as limited to such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X.

(b.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X, comprising 1,000 bighás of land." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The measurement is wholly inapplicable to the marsh lands of either class, or to the whole taken together. The measurement shall be considered as struck out of the will, and such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X shall alone pass by the bequest.

Extrinsic evidence admissible in case of latent ambiguity.

67. Where the words of the will are unambiguous, but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications one only of which can have been intended by the testator, extrinsic evidence may be taken to show which of these applications was intended.

Illustrations.

(a.) A man, having two cousins of the name of Mary, bequeaths a sum of money to "his cousin Mary." It appears that there are two persons each answering the description in the will. That description, therefore, admits of two applications, only one of which can have been intended by the testator. Evidence is admissible to show which of the two applications was intended.

(b.) A, by his will, leaves to B "his estate called Sultánpur Khurd." It turns out that he had two estates called Sultánpur Khurd. Evidence is admissible to show which estate was intended.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible in cases of patent ambiguity or deficiency.

68. Where there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the will, no extrinsic evidence as to the intentions of the testator shall be admitted.

Illustrations.

(a.) A man has an aunt Caroline and a cousin Mary, and has no aunt of the name of Mary. By his will he bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "his aunt Caroline" and 1,000 rupees to "his cousin Mary," and afterwards bequeaths 2,000 rupees to "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." There is no person to whom the description given in the will can apply, and evidence is not admissible to show who was meant by "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." The bequest is therefore void for uncertainty under the seventy-sixth section.

(b.) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to , leaving a blank for the name of the legatee. Evidence is not admissible to show what name the testator intended to insert.

(c.) A bequeaths to B rupees, or "his estate of ." Evidence is not admissible to show what sum or what estate the testator intended to insert.

Meaning of clause to be collected from entire will.

69. The meaning of any clause in a will is to be collected from the entire instrument, and all its parts are to be construed with reference to each other; and for this purpose a codicil is to be considered as part of the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator gives to B a specific fund or property at the date of A, and by a subsequent clause gives the whole of his property to A. The effect of the several clauses taken together is to vest the specific fund or property in A for life and after his decease in B; it appearing from the bequest to B that the testator meant to use in a restricted sense the words in which he describes what he gives to A.

(b.) Where a testator, having an estate one part of which is called Black Acre, bequeaths the whole of his estate to A, and in another part of his will bequeaths Black Acre to B, the latter bequest is to be read as an exception out of the first, as if he had said, "I give Black Acre to B and all the rest of my estate to A."

When words may be understood in restricted sense, and when in sense wider than usual.

70. General words may be understood in a restricted sense where it may be collected from the will that the testator meant to use them in a restricted sense; and words may be understood in a wider sense than that which they usually bear, where it may be collected from the other words of the will that the testator meant to use them in such wider sense.

Illustrations.

(a.) A testator gives to A "his farm in the occupation of B," and to C "all his marsh-lands in L." Part of the farm in the occupation of B consists of marsh-lands in L, and the testator also has other marsh-lands in L. The general words, "all his marsh-lands in L," are restricted by the gift to A. A takes the whole of the farm in the occupation of B, including that portion of the farm which consists of marsh-lands in L.

(b.) The testator (a sailor on ship-board) bequeathed to his mother his gold ring, buttons and chest of clothes, and to his friend A (a shipmate) his red box, clasp-knife and all things not before bequeathed. The testator's share in a house does not pass to A under this bequest.

(c.) A, by his will, bequeathed to B all his household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, pictures and all other goods of whatever kind; and afterwards bequeathed to B a specified part of his property. Under the first bequest, B is entitled only to such articles of the testator's as are of the same nature with the articles therein enumerated.

Which of two possible constructions preferred.

71. Where a clause is susceptible of two meanings, according to one of which it has some effect, and according to the other it can have none, the former is to be preferred.

No part rejected, if it can be reasonably construed.

72. No part of a will is to be rejected as destitute of meaning if it is possible to put a reasonable construction upon it.

Interpretation of words repeated in different parts of will.

73. If the same words occur in different parts of the same will, they must be taken to have been used everywhere in the same sense, unless there appears an intention to the contrary.

Testator's intention to be effectuated as far as possible.

74. The intention of the testator is not to be set aside because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but effect is to be given to it as far as possible.

* * * * * *

The last of two inconsistent clauses prevails.

75. Where two clauses or gifts in a will are irreconcileable, so that they cannot possibly stand together, the last shall prevail.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator by the first clause of his will leaves his estate of Rámnagar "to A," and by the last clause of his will leaves it "to B and not to A." B shall have it.

(b.) If a man at the commencement of his will gives his house to A, and at the close of it directs that his house shall be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of B, the latter disposition shall prevail.

Will or bequest void for uncertainty.

76. A will or bequest not expressive of any definite intention is void for uncertainty.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Illustration.

If a testator says—"I bequeath goods to A"; or "I bequeath to A"; or "I leave to A all the goods mentioned in a schedule," and no schedule is found; or "I bequeath 'money,' 'wheat,' 'oil,'" or the like, without saying how much, this is void.

Words describing subject refer to property answering description at testator's death.

77. The description contained in a will, of property the subject of gift, shall, unless a contrary intention appear by the will, be deemed to refer to and comprise the property answering that description at the death of the testator.

* * * * * *

Bequest without words of limitation.

82. Where property is bequeathed to any person, he is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless it appears from the will that only a restricted interest was intended for him.

Bequest in alternative.

83. Where property is bequeathed to a person with a bequest in the alternative to another person or to a class of persons, if a contrary intention does not appear by the will, the legatee first named shall be entitled to the legacy, if he be alive at the time when it takes effect; but if he be then dead, the person or class of persons named in the second branch of the alternative shall take the legacy.

Illustrations.

(b.) A bequest is made to A or to B. A dies after the date of the will, and before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(c.) A bequest is made to A or to B. A is dead at the date of the will. The legacy goes to B.

(d.) Property is bequeathed to A or his heirs. A survives the testator. A takes the property absolutely.

(e.) Property is bequeathed to A or his nearest of kin. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. Upon the death of the testator, the bequest to A's nearest of kin takes effect.

* * * * * *

Effect of words describing a class added to bequest to a person.

84. Where property is bequeathed to a person, and words are added which describe a class of persons, but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless a contrary intention appears by the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequest is made—

to A and his children,
to A and his children by his present wife,
to A and his heirs,
to A and the heirs of his body,
to A and the heirs male of his body,
to A and the heirs female of his body,
to A and his issue,
to A and his family,
to A and his descendants,
to A and his representatives,
to A and his personal representatives,
to A, his executors and administrators.

In each of these cases, A takes the whole interest which the testator had in the property.

(b.) A bequest is made to A and his brothers. A and his brothers are jointly entitled to the legacy.

* * * * * *

Bequest to class of persons under general description only.

85. Where a bequest is made to a class of persons under a general description only, no one to whom the words of the description are not in their ordinary sense applicable shall take the legacy.

* * * * * *

Rules of construction where will purports to make two bequests to same person.

88. Where a will purports to make two bequests to the same person, and a question arises whether the testator intended to make the second bequest instead of or in addition to the first, if there is nothing in the will to show what he intended, the following rules shall prevail in determining the construction to be put upon the will:—

First.—If the same specific thing is bequeathed twice to the same legatee in the same will, or in the will and again in a codicil, he is entitled to receive that specific thing only.

Second.—Where one and the same will or one and the same codicil purports to make, in two places, a bequest to the same person of the same quantity or amount of anything, he shall be entitled to one such legacy only.

Third.—Where two legacies of unequal amount are given to the same person in the same will, or in the same codicil, the legatee is entitled to both.

Fourth.—Where two legacies, whether equal or unequal in amount, are given to the same legatee, one by a will and the other by a codicil, or each by a different codicil, the legatee is entitled to both legacies.

Explanation.—In the four last rules, the word "will" does not include a codicil.

Illustrations.

(a.) A having ten shares, and no more, in the Bank of Bengal, made his will, which contains near its commencement the words "I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." After other bequests, the will concludes with the words "and I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." B is entitled simply to receive A's ten shares in the Bank of Bengal.

(b.) A having one diamond-ring, which was given him by B, bequeathed to C the diamond-ring which was given him by B. A afterwards made a codicil to his will, and thereby, after giving other legacies, he bequeathed to C the diamond-ring which was given him by B. C can claim nothing except the diamond-ring which was given to A by B.

(c.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees, and afterwards, in the same will, repeats the bequest in the same words. B is entitled to one legacy of 5,000 rupees only.

(d.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees, and afterwards, by the same will, bequeaths to B the sum of 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to 11,000 rupees.

(e.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees, and by a codicil to the will he bequeaths to him 5,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees.

(f.) A, by one codicil to his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees, and by another codicil, bequeaths to him 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 rupees.

(g.) A, by his will, bequeaths "500 rupees to B because she was his nurse," and in another part of the will bequeaths 500 rupees to B "because she went to England with his children." B is entitled to receive 1,000 rupees.

(h.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also, in another part of the will, an annuity of 400 rupees. B is entitled to both legacies.

(i.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also bequeaths to him the sum of 5,000 rupees if he shall attain the age of 18. B is entitled absolutely to one sum of 5,000 rupees, and take a contingent interest in another sum of 5,000 rupees.

Constitution of residuary legatee.

89. A residuary legatee may be constituted by any words that show an intention on the part of the testator that the person designated shall take the surplus or residue of his property.

(a.) A makes her will, consisting of several testamentary papers, in one of which are contained the following words:—"I think there will be something left, after all funeral expenses, &c., to give to B, now at school, towards equipping him to any profession he may hereafter be appointed to." B is constituted residuary legatee.

(b.) A makes his will, with the following passage at the end of it:—"I believe there will be found sufficient in my banker's hands to defray and discharge my debts, which I hereby desire B to do, and keep the residue for her own use and pleasure." B is constituted the residuary legatee.

(c.) A bequeaths all his property to B, except certain stocks and funds, which he bequeaths to C. B is the residuary legatee.

90. Under a residuary bequest, the legatee is entitled to all property belonging to the testator at the time of his death, of which he has not made any other testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

Property to which residuary legatee entitled.

91. If a legacy be given in general terms, without specifying the time when it is to be paid, the legatee has a vested interest in it from the day of the death of the testator, and, if he dies without having received it, it shall pass to his representatives.

Time of vesting of legacy in general terms.

92. If the legatee does not survive the testator, the legacy cannot take effect, but shall lapse and form part of the residue of the testator's property, unless it appear by the will that the testator intended that it should go to some other person.

In what case legacy lapses.

In order to entitle the representatives of the legatee to receive the legacy, it must be proved that he survived the testator.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator bequeaths to B "500 rupees which B owes him." B dies before the testator; the legacy lapses.

(b.) A bequest is made to A and his children. A dies before the testator or happens to be dead when the will is made. The legacy to A and his children lapses.

(c.) A legacy is given to A, and in case of his dying before the testator, to B. A dies before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(d.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. B survives the testator. The bequest to B takes effect.

(e.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A on his completing his eighteenth year, and in case he should die before he completes his eighteenth year, to B. A completes his eighteenth year, and dies in the lifetime of the testator. The legacy to A lapses, and the bequest to B does not take effect.

(f.) The testator and the legatee perishes in the same shipwreck. There is no evidence to show which died first. The legacy will laspe.

93. If a legacy be given to two persons jointly, and one of them die before the testator, the other legatee takes the whole.

Legacy does not lapse if one of two joint legatees die before testator.

Illustration.

The legacy is simply to A and B. A dies before the testator. B takes the legacy.

94. But where a legacy is given to legatees in words which show that the testator intended to give them distinct shares of it, then if any legatee die before the testator, so much of the legacy as was intended for him shall fall into the residue of the testator's property.

Effect of words showing testator's intention to give distinct shares.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed to A, B and C, to be equally divided among them. A dies before the testator. B and C shall only take so much as they would have had if A had survived the testator.

95. Where the share that lapses is a part of the general residue bequeathed by the will, that share shall go as undisposed of.

When lapsed share goes as undisposed of.

Illustration.

The testator bequeaths the residue of his estate to A, B and C, to be equally divided between them. A dies before the testator. His one-third of the residue goes as undisposed of.

96. Where a bequest shall have been made to any son or other legitimate lineal male descendant of the testator, and the legatee shall die in the lifetime of the testator, but any legitimate lineal male descendant of his shall survive the testator, the bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

When bequest to testator's lineal descendant does not lapse on his death in testator's lifetime.

Illustration.

A makes his will, by which he bequeaths a sum of money to his son B for his own absolute use and benefit. B dies before A, leaving a son C who survives A, and having made his will whereby he bequeaths all his property to his widow D. The money goes to D.

97. Where a bequest is made to one person for the benefit of another, the legacy does not lapse by the death, in the testator's lifetime, of the person to whom the bequest is made.

Bequest to A for benefit of B does not lapse by A's death.

98. Where a bequest is made simply to a described class of persons, the thing bequeathed shall go only to such as shall be alive at the testator's death.

Survivorship in case of bequest to described class.

* * * * * * *

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "the children of B" without saying when it is to be distributed among them. B had died previous to the date of the will, leaving three children, C, D and E. E died after the date of the will, but for the death of A. C and D survive A. The legacy shall belong to C and D, to the exclusion of the representatives of E.

(b.) A bequeaths a legacy to the children of B. At the time of the testator's death, B has no children. The bequest is void.

* * * * * * *

PART XII.

OF VOID BEQUESTS.

99. Where a bequest is made to a person by a particular description, and there is no person in existence at the testator's death who answers the description, the bequest is void.

Bequest to person by particular description, who is not in existence at testator's death.

* * * * * *

101. No bequest is valid whereby the vesting of the thing bequeathed may be delayed beyond the lifetime of one or more persons living at the testator's decease.

Rule against perpetuity.

* * * * * * *

102. If a bequest is made to a class of persons, with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the rules contained in the last preceding section, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Bequest to a class, some of whom may come under rules in section 101.

* * * * * *

Bequest to take effect on failure of bequest void under section 101 or 102.

* * * * * *

104. A direction to accumulate the income arising from any property shall be void; and the property shall be disposed of as if no accumulation had been directed.

Effect of direction for accumulation.

Exception.—Where the property is immoveable, or where accumulation is directed to be made from the death of the testator, the direction shall be valid in respect only of the income arising from the property within one year next following the testator's death;

and at the end of the year such property and income shall be disposed of respectively, as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

Illustrations.

(a.) The will directs that the sum of 10,000 rupees shall be invested in Government-securities, and the income accumulated for 20 years, and that the principal, together with the accumulations, shall then be divided between A, B and C. A, B and C are entitled to receive the sum of 10,000 rupees at the end of the year from the testator's death.

(b.) The will directs that 10,000 rupees shall be invested and the income accumulated until A shall marry, and shall then be paid to him. A is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(c.) The will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultánpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall be then paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator, A has an eldest son living, named B. B shall receive at the end of one year from the testator's death the rents which have accrued during the year, together with any interest which may have been made by investing them.

* * * * *

(e.) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, to be paid to him when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs the interest to be accumulated till he shall arrive at that age. At A's death the legacy becomes vested in B; and so much of the interest as is not required for his maintenance and education is accumulated, not by reason of the direction contained in the will, but in consequence of B's minority.

PART XIII.

OF THE VESTING OF LEGACIES.

106. Where by the terms of a bequest the legatee is not entitled to immediate possession of the thing bequeathed, a right to receive it at the proper time shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, become vested in the legatee on the testator's death, and shall pass to the legatee's representatives if he dies before that time and without having received the legacy.

Date of vesting of legacy when payment or possession postponed.

And in such cases the legacy is from the testator's death said to be vested in interest.

Explanation.—An intention that a legacy to any person shall not become vested in interest in him is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the payment or possession of the thing bequeathed is postponed, or whereby a prior interest therein is bequeathed to some other person, or whereby the income arising from the fund bequeathed is directed to be accumulated until the time of payment arrives, or from a provision that, if a particular event shall happen, the legacy shall go over to another person.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.

(b.) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.

(c.) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.

(d.) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18, and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.

(e.) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.

(f.) A fund is bequeathed to A, B and C in equal shares, to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18 respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator, the shares vest in interest in A, B and C, subject to be devested in case A, B and C shall all die under 18, and upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject, to his representatives.

107. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall happen does not vest until that event happens.

Date of vesting when legacy contingent upon specified uncertain event.

A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen does not vest until the happening of that event becomes impossible.

In either case, until the condition has been fulfilled, the interest of the legatee is called contingent.

Exception.—Where a fund is bequeathed to any person upon his attaining a particular age, and the will also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from the fund before he reaches that age, or directs the income, or so much of it as may be necessary, to be applied for his benefit, the bequest of the fund is not contingent.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B and C shall all die under the age of 18. D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B and C all die under 18, or one of them attains that age.

(b.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A "in case he shall attain the age of 18," or, "when he shall attain the age of 18." A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by his attaining that age.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall then be living; but if B shall not be then living, to C. A, B and C survive the testator. B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other shall have happened.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

(d.) An estate is bequeathed as in the case last supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18, or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that, if she shall not attain 18, or marry under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A attains the age of 18. A becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy, although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.

(f.) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition shall be fulfiled by A's marrying.

(g.) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of the Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of the Act.

(h.) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay 500 rupees to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid 500 rupees to B.

(i.) A leaves his farm of Sultánpur Khurd to B, if B shall convey his own farm of Sultánpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the latter farm to C.

(j.) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death. A's interest in the legacy is contingent, until the condition shall be fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence, within that period, of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.

(k.) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.

(l.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a competent part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.

(m.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum, out of another fund, shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

108. Where a bequest is made only to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age, a person who has not attained that age cannot have a vested interest in the legacy.

Vesting of interest in bequest to such members of a class as shall have attained particular age.

PART XIV.

OF ONEROUS BEQUESTS.

109. Where a bequest imposes an obligation on the legatee, he can take nothing by it unless he accepts it fully.

Onerous bequest.

Illustration.

A having shares in (X), a prosperous joint stock company, and also shares in (Y), a joint stock company in difficulties, in respect of which shares heavy calls are expected to be made, bequeaths to B all his shares in joint stock companies. B refuses to accept the shares in (Y). He forfeits the shares in (X).

110. Where a will contains two separate and independent bequests to the same person, the legatee is at liberty to accept one of them and refuse the other, although the former may be beneficial and the latter onerous.

One of two separate and independent bequests to same person may be accepted, and other refused.

Illustration.

A having a lease for a term of years of a house at a rent which he and his representatives are bound to pay during the term, and which is higher than the house can be let for, bequeaths to B the lease and a sum of money. B refuses to accept the lease. He shall not by this refusal forfeit the money.

PART XV.

OF CONTINGENT BEQUESTS.

111. Where a legacy is given if a specified uncertain event shall happen, and no time is mentioned in the will for the occurrence of that event, the legacy cannot take effect unless such event happens before the period when the fund bequeathed is payable or distributable.

Bequest contingent upon specified uncertain event, no time being mentioned for its occurrence.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death, to B. If A survives the testator, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death without children, to B. If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18, and in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.

(d.) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life and after his death to B, and, "in case of B's death without children," to C. The words "in case of B's death without children" are to be understood as meaning in case B shall die without children during the lifetime of A.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and, "in case of B's death," to C. The words "in case of B's death" are to be considered as meaning "in case B shall die in the lifetime of A."

112. Where a bequest is made to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period but the exact period is not specified, the legacy shall go to such of them as shall be alive at the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appear by the will.

Bequest to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period not specified.

Illustrations.

(a.) Property is bequeathed to A and B, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. If both A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.

(b.) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the life of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C.

* * * * *

(d.) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, with a direction that, in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

PART XVI.

OF CONDITIONAL BEQUESTS.

113. A bequest upon an impossible condition is void.

Bequest upon impossible condition.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall walk one hundred miles in an hour. The bequest is void.

(b.) A bequeaths 500 rupees to B on condition that he shall marry A's daughter. A's daughter was dead at the date of the will. The bequest is void.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

114. A bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void.

Bequest upon illegal or immoral condition.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths 500 rupees to B on condition that he shall murder C. The bequest is void.

(b.) A bequeaths 5,000 rupees to his niece if she will desert her husband. The bequest is void.

115. Where a will imposes a condition to be fulfilled before the legatee can take a vested interest in the thing bequeathed, the condition shall be considered to have been fulfilled if it has been substantially complied with.

Fulfilment of condition precedent to vesting of legacy.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C, D and E. A marries with the written consent of B. C is present at the marriage. D sends a present to A previous to the marriage. E has been personally informed by A of his intentions, and has made no objection. A has fulfilled the condition.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. D dies. A marries with the consent of B and C. A has fulfilled the condition.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries in the lifetime of B, C and D, with the consent of B and C only. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(d.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A obtains the unconditional assent of B, C and D to his marriage with E. Afterwards B, C and D capriciously retract their consent. A marries E. A has fulfilled the condition.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries without the consent of B, C and D, but obtains their consent after the marriage. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(f.) A makes his will, whereby he bequeaths a sum of money to B if B shall marry with the consent of A's executors. B marries during the lifetime of A, and A afterwards expresses his approbation of the marriage. A dies. The bequest to B takes effect.

(g.) A legacy is bequeathed to A if he executes a certain document within a time specified in the will. The document is executed by A within a reasonable time, but not within the time specified in the will. A has not performed the condition, and is not entitled to receive the legacy.

116. Where there is a bequest to one person and a bequest of the same thing to another, if the prior bequest shall fail, the second bequest shall take effect upon the failure of the prior bequest, although the failure may not have occurred in the manner contemplated by the testator.

Bequest to A and on failure of prior bequest, to B.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths a sum of money to his own children surviving him, and if they all die under 18, to B. A dies without having ever had a child. The bequest to B takes effect.

(b.) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, on condition that he shall execute a certain document within three months after A's death, and if he should neglect to do so, to C. B dies in the testator's lifetime. The bequest to C takes effect.

117. Where the will shows an intention that the second bequest shall take effect only in the event of the first bequest failing in a particular manner, the second bequest shall not take effect unless the prior bequest fails in that particular manner.

When second bequest not to take effect on failure of first.

Illustration.

A makes a bequest to his wife, but in case she should die in his lifetime, bequeaths to B that which he had bequeathed to her. A and his wife perish together, under circumstances which make it impossible to prove that she died before him. The bequest to B does not take effect.

118. A bequest may be made to any person with the condition superadded that in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, the thing bequeathed shall go to another person; or, that in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen, the thing bequeathed shall go over to another person.

Bequest over, conditional upon happening or not happening of specified uncertain event.

In each case the ulterior bequest is subject to the rules contained in sections 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 116, 117.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A, to be paid to him at the age of 18, and if he shall die before he attains that age, to B. A takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be devested and to go to B in case A shall die under 18.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A with a proviso that, if A shall dispute the competency of the testator to make a will, the estate shall go to B. A disputes the competency of the testator to make a will. The estate goes to B.

* * * * *

(d.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A and B, and if either should die during the life of C, then to the survivor living at the death of C. A and B die before C. The gift over cannot take effect, but the representative of A takes one-half of the money and the representative of B takes the other half.

(e.) A bequeaths to B the interest of a fund for life, and directs the fund to be divided, at her death, equally among her three children, or such of them as shall be living at her death. All the children of B die in B's lifetime. The bequest over cannot take effect, but the interests of the children pass to their representatives.

119. An ulterior bequest of the kind contemplated by the last preceding section cannot take effect unless the condition is strictly fulfilled.

Condition must be strictly fulfilled.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, C and D, the legacy shall go to E. D dies. Even if A marries without the consent of B and C, the gift to E does not take effect.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries with the consent of B. He afterwards becomes a widower and marries again without the consent of B. The bequest to C does not take effect.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, to be paid at 18, or marriage, with a proviso that, if A dies under 18, or marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries under 18, without the consent of B. The bequest to C takes effect.

120. If the ulterior bequest be not valid, the original bequest is not affected by it.

Original bequest not affected by invalidity of second.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life, with a condition superadded that if he shall not on a given day walk 100 miles in an hour, the estate shall go to B. The condition being void, A retains his estate as if no condition had been inserted in the will.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A for her life, and if she do not desert her husband, to B. A is entitled to the estate during her life as if no condition had been inserted in the will.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and, if he marries, to the eldest son of B for life. B, at the date of the testator's death, had not had a son. The bequest over is void under section 92, and A is entitled to the estate during his life.

121. A bequest may be made with the condition superadded that it shall cease to have effect in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, or in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen.

Bequest conditioned that it shall cease to have effect in case specified uncertain event shall happen or not happen.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life, with a proviso that, in case he shall cut down a certain wood, the bequest shall cease to have any effect. A cuts down the wood; he loses his life-interest in the estate.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A, provided that, if he marries under the age of 25 without the consent of the executors named in the will, the estate shall cease to belong to him. A marries under 25 without the consent of the executors. The estate ceases to belong to him.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A, provided that, if he shall not go to England within three years after the testator's death, his interest in the estate shall cease. A does not go to England within the time prescribed. His interest in the estate ceases.

(d.) An estate is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if she becomes a nun, she shall cease to have any interest in the estate. A becomes a nun. She loses her interest under the will.

(e.) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall be then living, with a proviso that, if B shall become a nun, the bequest to her shall cease to have any effect. B becomes a nun in the lifetime of A. She thereby loses her contingent interest in the fund.

122. In order that a condition that a bequest shall cease to have effect may be valid, it is necessary that the event to which it relates be one which could legally constitute the condition of a bequest as contemplated by the one hundred and seventh section.

Such condition must not be invalid under section 107.

123. Where a bequest is made with a condition superadded that, unless the legatee shall perform a certain act, the subject-matter of the bequest shall go to another person, or the bequest shall cease to have effect, but no time is specified for the performance of the act, if the legatee takes any step which renders impossible or indefinitely postpones the performance of the act required, the legacy shall go as if the legatee had died without performing such act.

Result of legatee rendering impossible or indefinitely postponing act for which no time specified and on non-performance of which subject-matter to go over.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequest is made to A with a proviso that, unless he enters the army, the legacy shall go over to B. A takes holy orders, and thereby renders it impossible that he should fulfil the condition. B is entitled to receive the legacy.

(b.) A bequest is made to A with a proviso that it shall cease to have any effect if he does not marry B's daughter. A marries a stranger, and thereby indefinitely postpones the fulfilment of the condition. The bequest ceases to have effect.

124. Where the will requires an act to be performed by the legatee within a specified time, either as a condition to be fulfilled before the legacy is enjoyed or as a condition upon the non-fulfilment of which the subject-matter of the bequest is to go over to another person, or the bequest is to cease to have effect, the act must be performed within the time specified, unless the performance of it be prevented by fraud, in which case such further time shall be allowed as shall be requisite to make up for the delay caused by such fraud.

Performance of condition, precedent or subsequent, within specified time.

Further time in case of fraud.

PART XVII.

Of Bequests with directions as to application or enjoyment.

125. Where a fund is bequeathed absolutely to or for the benefit of any person, but the will contains a direction that it shall be applied or enjoyed in a particular manner, the legatee shall be entitled to receive the fund as if the will had contained no such direction.

Direction that funds be employed in particular manner following absolute bequest of same to or for benefit of any person.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed towards purchasing a country-residence for A, or to purchase an annuity for A, or to purchase a commission in the army for A, or to place A in any business. A chooses to receive the legacy in money. He is entitled to do so.

126. Where a testator absolutely bequeaths a fund, so as to sever it from his own estate, but directs that the mode of enjoyment of it by the legatee shall be restricted so as to secure a specified benefit for the legatee; if that benefit cannot be obtained for the legatee, the fund belongs to him as if the will had contained no such direction.

Direction that mode of enjoyment of absolute bequest is to be restricted, to secure specified benefit for legatee.

127. Where a testator does not absolutely bequeath a fund so as to sever it from his own estate, but gives it for certain purposes and part of those purposes cannot be fulfilled, the fund, or so much of it as has not been exhausted upon the objects contemplated by the will, remains a part of the estate of the testator.

Bequest of fund for certain purposes, some of which cannot be fulfilled.

PART XVIII.

Of Bequests to an Executor.

128. If a legacy is bequeathed to a person who is named an executor of the will, he shall not take the legacy unless he proves the will or otherwise manifests an intention to act as executor.

Legatee named as executor cannot take unless he shews intention to act as executor.

Illustration.

A legacy is given to A, who is named an executor. A orders the funeral according to the directions contained in the will, and dies a few days after the testator, without having proved the will. A has manifested an intention to act as executor.

PART XIX.

Of Specific Legacies.

129. Where a testator bequeaths to any person a specified part of his property, which is distinguished from all other parts of his property, the legacy is said to be specific.

Specific legacy defined.

Each of these legacies is specific.

(b.) A having Government promissory notes for 10,000 rupees, bequeaths to his executors "Government promissory notes for 10,000 rupees in trust to sell" for the benefit of B.

The legacy is specific.

(c.) A having property at Benares, and also in other places, bequeaths to B all his property at Benares.

The legacy is specific.

(d.) A bequeaths to B—

his house in Calcutta:

his zamíndárí of Rámpur:

his taluq of Rámnagar:

his lease of the indigo-factory of Salkya:

an annuity of 500 rupees out of the rents of his zamíndárí of W.

A directs his zamíndárí of X to be sold, and the proceeds to be invested for the benefit of B.

Each of these bequests is specific.

(e.) A by his will charges his zamíndárí of Y with an annuity of 1,000 rupees to C during his life, and subject to this charge he bequeaths the zamíndárí to D. Each of these bequests is specific.

(f.) A bequeaths a sum of money—

to buy a house in Calcutta for B:

to buy an estate in zila Faridpur for B:

to buy a diamond-ring for B:

to buy a horse for B:

to be invested in shares in the Bank of Bengal for B:

to be invested in Government-securities for B.

A bequeaths to B—

"a diamond-ring:"

"a horse:"

"10,000 rupees worth of Government securities:"

"an annuity of 500 rupees:"

"2,000 rupees, to be paid in cash:"

"so much money as will produce 5,000 rupees 4 per cent. Government-securities."

These bequests are not specific.

(g.) A. having property in England and property in India, bequeaths a legacy to B, and directs that it shall be paid out of the property which he may leave in India. He also bequeaths a legacy to C, and directs that it shall be paid out of the property which he may leave in England.

No one of these legacies is specific.

130. Where a sum certain is bequeathed, the legacy is not specific merely because the stocks, funds or securities in which it is invested are described in the will.

Bequest of sum certain where stocks, &c., in which invested are described.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"10,000 rupees of his funded property:"

"10,000 rupees of his property now invested in shares of the East Indian Railway Company:"

"10,000 rupees at present secured by mortgage of Rámpur factory."

No one of these legacies is specific.

131. Where a bequest is made in general terms of a certain amount of any kind of stock, the legacy is not specific merely because the testator was, at the date of his will, possessed of stock of the specified kind, to an equal or greater amount than the amount bequeathed.

Bequest of stock where testator had, at date of will, equal or greater amount of stock of same kind.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees 5 per cent. Government securities. A had at the date of the will five per cent. Government securities for 5,000 rupees.

The legacy is not specific.

132. A money-legacy is not specific merely because the will directs its payment to be postponed until some part of the property of the testator shall have been reduced to a certain form, or remitted to a certain place.

Bequest of money where not payable until part of testator's property disposed of in certain way.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B 10,000 rupees, and directs that this legacy shall be paid as soon as A's property in India shall be realized in England.

The legacy is not specific.

133. Where a will contains a bequest of the residue of the testator's property along with an enumeration of some items of property not previously bequeathed, the articles enumerated shall not be deemed to be specifically bequeathed.

When enumerated articles not deemed specifically bequeathed.

136. If there be a deficiency of assets to pay legacies, a specific legacy is not liable to abate with the general legacies.

Where deficiency of assets to pay legacies, specific legacy not to abate with general legacies.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

PART XX.

Of Demonstrative Legacies.

Demonstrative legacy defined.

137. Where a testator bequeaths a certain sum of money, or a certain quantity of any other commodity, and refers to a particular fund or stock so as to constitute the same the primary fund or stock out of which payment is to be made, the legacy is said to be demonstrative.

Explanation.—The distinction between a specific legacy and a demonstrative legacy consists in this, that—where specified property is given to the legatee, the legacy is specific;

where the legacy is directed to be paid out of specified property, it is demonstrative.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, being part of a debt due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. The legacy to B is specific; the legacy to C is demonstrative.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"ten bushels of the corn which shall grow in his field of Greenacre:"

"80 chests of the indigo which shall be made at his factory of Rámpur:"

"10,000 rupees out of his five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India:"

an annuity of 500 rupees "from his funded property:"

"1,000 rupees out of the sum of 2,000 rupees due to him by C."

A bequeaths to B an annuity, and directs it to be paid out of the rents arising from his taluq of Rámnagar.

A bequeaths to B—

"10,000 rupees out of his estate at Rámnagar," or charges it on his estate at Rámnagar:

"10,000 rupees, being his share of the capital embarked in a certain business."

Each of these bequests is demonstrative.

Order of payment when legacy directed to be paid out of fund the subject of specific legacy.

138. Where a portion of a fund is specifically bequeathed and a legacy is directed to be paid out of the same fund, the portion specifically bequeathed shall first be paid to the legatee, and the demonstrative legacy shall be paid out of the residue of the fund, and, so far as the residue shall be deficient, out of the general assets of the testator.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, being part of a debt due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. The debt due to A from W is only 1,500 rupees; of these 1,500 rupees, 1,000 rupees belong to B, and 500 rupees are to be paid to C. C is also to receive 500 rupees out of the general assets of the testator.

PART XXI.

Of Ademption of Legacies.

Ademption explained.

139. If anything which has been specifically bequeathed does not belong to the testator at the time of his death, or has been converted into property of a different kind, the legacy is adeemed; that is, it cannot take effect by reason of the subject-matter having been withdrawn from the operation of the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B—

"the diamond-ring presented to him by C:"

"his gold chain:"

"a certain bale of wool:"

"a certain piece of cloth:"

"all his household-goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in M Street, in Calcutta, at the time of his death."

A, in his lifetime,

sells or gives away the ring;
converts the chain into a cup:
converts the wool into cloth:
makes the cloth into a garment:
takes another house into which he removes all his goods

Each of these legacies is adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"the sum of 1,000 rupees in a certain chest:"

"all the horses in his stable."

At the death of A, no money is found in the chest, and no horses in the stable.

The legacies are adeemed.

(c.) A bequeaths to B certain bales of goods. A takes the goods with him on a voyage. The ship and goods are lost at sea, and A is drowned.

The legacy is adeemed.

Non-ademption of demonstrative legacy.

140. A demonstrative legacy is not adeemed by reason that the property on which it is charged by the will does not exist at the time of the death of the testator, or has been converted into property of a different kind; but it shall in such case be paid out of the general assets of the testator.

Ademption of specific bequest of right to receive something from third party.

141. Where the thing specifically bequeathed is the right to receive something of value from a third party, and the testator himself receives it, the bequest is adeemed.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B—

"the debt which C owes him:"

"2,000 rupees which he has in the hands of D:"

"the money due to him on the bond of E:"

"his mortgage on the Rámpur factory."

All these debts are extinguished in A's lifetime, some with and some without his consent.

All the legacies are adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"his interest in certain policies of life-assurance."

A in his lifetime receives the amount of the policies. The legacy is adeemed.

Ademption pro tanto by testator's receipt of part of entire thing specifically bequeathed.

142. The receipt by the testator of a part of an entire thing specifically bequeathed shall operate as an ademption of the legacy to the extent of the sum received.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B "the debt due to him by C." The debt amounts to 10,000 rupees. C pays to A 5,000 rupees, the one-half of the debt. The legacy is revoked by ademption, so far as regards the 5,000 rupees received by A.

Ademption pro tanto by testator's receipt of portion of entire fund of which portion has been specifically bequeathed.

143. If a portion of an entire fund or stock be specifically bequeathed, the receipt by the testator of a portion of the fund or stock shall operate as an ademption only to the extent of the amount so received; and the residue of the fund or stock shall be applicable to the discharge of the specific legacy.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B one-half of the sum of 10,000 rupees due to him from W. A in his lifetime receives 6,000 rupees, part of the 10,000 rupees. The 4,000 rupees which are due from W to A at the time of his death belong to B under the specific bequest.

Order of payment where portion of fund specifically bequeathed to one legatee, and legacy charged on same fund to another, and testator having received portion of that fund, remainder insufficient to pay both legacies.

144. Where a portion of a fund is specifically bequeathed to one legatee, and a legacy charged on the same fund is bequeathed to another legatee, if the testator receives a portion of that fund, and the remainder of the fund is insufficient to pay both the specific and the demonstrative legacy, the specific legacy shall be paid first, and the residue (if any) of the fund shall be applied so far as it will extend in payment of the demonstrative legacy, and the rest of the demonstrative legacy shall be paid out of the general assets of the testator.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, part of the debt of 2,000 rupees due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. A afterwards receives 500 rupees, part of that debt, and dies leaving only 1,500 rupees due to him from W. Of these 1,500 rupees, 1,000 rupees belong to B, and 500 rupees are to be paid to C. C is also to receive 500 rupees out of the general assets of the testator.

Ademption where stock, specifically bequeathed, does not exist at testator's death.

145. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed does not exist at the testator's death, the legacy is adeemed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"his capital stock of 1,000*l.* in East India Stock:"

"his promissory notes of the Government of India for 10,000 rupees in their 4 per cent. loan."

A sells the stock and the notes.

The legacies are adeemed.

Ademption pro tanto where stock, specifically bequeathed, exists in part only at testator's death.

146. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed does only in part exist at the testator's death, the legacy is adeemed so far as regards that part of the stock which has ceased to exist.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"his 10,000 rupees in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India."

A sells one-half of his 10,000 rupees in the loan in question.

One-half of the legacy is adeemed.

Non-ademption of specific bequest of goods described as connected with certain place, by reason of removal.

147. A specific bequest of goods under a description connecting them with a certain place is not adeemed by reason that they have been removed from such place from any temporary cause, or by fraud or without the knowledge or sanction of the testator.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B "all his household goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in Calcutta at the time of his death." The goods are removed from the house to save them from fire. A dies before they are brought back.

A bequeaths to B "all his household goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in Calcutta at the time of his death." During A's absence upon a journey, the whole of the goods are removed from the house. A dies without having sanctioned their removal.

Neither of these legacies is adeemed.

When removal of thing bequeathed does not constitute ademption.

148. The removal of the thing bequeathed from the place in which it is stated in the will to be situated does not constitute an ademption where the place is only referred to in order to complete the description of what the testator meant to bequeath.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B all the bills, bonds and other securities for money belonging to him then lying in his lodgings in Calcutta. At the time of his death these effects had been removed from his lodgings in Calcutta.

A bequeaths to B all his furniture then in his house in Calcutta. The testator has a house at Calcutta and another at Chinsurah, in which he lives alternately, being possessed of one set of furniture only, which he removes with himself to each house. At the time of his death the furniture is in the house at Chinsurah.

A bequeaths to B all his goods on board a certain ship then lying in the river Hugli. The goods are removed by A's directions to a warehouse, in which they remain at the time of A's death.

No one of these legacies is revoked by ademption.

When thing bequeathed is a valuable to be received by testator from third person, and testator himself, or his representative, receives it.

149. Where the thing bequeathed is not the right to receive something of value from a third person, but the money or other commodity which shall be received from the third person by the testator himself or by his representatives, the receipt of such sum of money or other commodity by the testator shall not constitute an ademption; but if he mixes it up with the general mass of his property, the legacy is adeemed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B whatever sum may be received from his claim on C. A receives the whole of his claim on C and sets it apart from the general mass of his property. The legacy is not adeemed.

Change by operation of law of subject of specific bequest between date of will and testator's death.

150. Where a thing specifically bequeathed undergoes a change between the date of the will and the testator's death, and the change takes place by operation of law or in the course of execution of the provisions of any legal instrument under which the thing bequeathed was held, the legacy is not adeemed by reason of such change.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B "all the money which he has in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India."

The securities for the 5½ per cent. loan are converted during A's lifetime into 5 per cent. stock.

A's bequeaths to B the sum of 2,000*l.*, invested in consols in the names of trustees for A.

The sum of 2,000*l.* is transferred by the trustees into A's own name.

A bequeaths to B the sum of 10,000 rupees in promissory notes of the Government of India which he has power under his marriage-settlement to dispose of by will. Afterwards in A's lifetime, the fund is converted into consols by virtue of an authority contained in the settlement.

No one of these legacies has been adeemed.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

151. Where a thing specifically bequeathed undergoes a change between the date of the will and the testator's death, and the change takes place without the knowledge or sanction of the testator, the legacy is not adeemed.

Change of subject without testator's knowledge.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B "all his 3 per cent. consols." The consols are, without A's knowledge, sold by his agent, and the proceeds converted into East India stock. This legacy is not adeemed.

152. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed is lent to a third party on condition that it shall be replaced, and it is replaced accordingly, the legacy is not adeemed.

Stock specifically bequeathed, lent to third party on condition that it be replaced.

153. Where stock specifically bequeathed is sold, and an equal quantity of the same stock is afterwards purchased and belongs to the testator at his death, the legacy is not adeemed.

Stock specifically bequeathed, sold but replaced and belonging to testator at his death.

PART XXII.

Of the Payment of Liabilities in respect of the subject of a Bequest.

154. Where property specifically bequeathed is subject at the death of the testator to any pledge, lien or incumbrance, created by the testator himself or by any person under whom he claims, then, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, the legatee, if he accepts the bequest, shall accept it subject to such pledge or incumbrance, and shall (as between himself and the testator's estate) be liable to make good the amount of such pledge or incumbrance.

Non-liability of executor to exonerate specific legatees.

A contrary intention shall not be inferred from any direction which the will may contain for the payment of the testator's debts generally.

Explanation.—A periodical payment in the nature of land-revenue or in the nature of rent is not such an incumbrance as is contemplated by this section.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B the diamond-ring given him by C. At A's death the ring is held in pawn by D, to whom it has been pledged by A. It is the duty of A's executors, if the state of the testator's assets will allow them, to allow B to redeem the ring.

(b.) A bequeaths to B a zamíndárí which at A's death is subject to a mortgage for 10,000 rupees, and the whole of the principal sum, together with interest to the amount of 1,000 rupees, is due at A's death. B, if he accepts the bequest, accepts it subject to this charge, and is liable, as between himself and A's estate, to pay the sum of 11,000 rupees thus due.

155. Where anything is to be done to complete the testator's title to the thing bequeathed, it is to be done at the cost of the testator's estate.

Completion of testator's title to things bequeathed to be at cost of his estate.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, having contracted in general terms for the purchase of a piece of land at a certain price, bequeaths it to B, and dies before he has paid the purchase-money. The purchase-money must be made good out of A's assets.

(b.) A having contracted for the purchase of a piece of land for a certain sum of money, one-half of which is to be paid down, and the other half secured by mortgage of the land, bequeaths it to B, and dies before he has paid or secured any part of the purchase-money. One-half of the purchase-money must be paid out of A's assets.

156. Where there is a bequest of any interest in immoveable property, in respect of which payment in the nature of land-revenue or in the nature of rent has to be made periodically, the estate of the testator shall (as between such estate and the legatee) make good such payments or a proportion of them up to the day of his death.

Exoneration of legatee's immoveable property for which land-revenue or rent payable periodically.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B a house, in respect of which 365 rupees are payable annually by way of rent. A pays his rent at the usual time, and dies 25 days after. A's estate shall make good 25 rupees in respect of the rent.

157. In the absence of any direction in the will where there is a specific bequest of stock in a joint stock company, if any call or other payment is due from the testator at the time of his death in respect of such stock, such call or payment shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by such estate;

Exoneration of specific legatee's stock in joint stock company.

but if any call or other payment shall, after the testator's death become due in respect of such stock, the same shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by the legatee if he accept the bequest.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeathed to B his shares in a certain railway. At A's death there was due from him the sum of 5*l.* in respect of each share, being the amount of a call which had been duly made, and the sum of 5*s.* in respect of each share, being the amount of interest which had accrued due in respect of the call. These payments must be borne by A's estate.

(b.) A has agreed to take 50 shares in an intended joint stock company, and has contracted to pay up 5*l.* in respect of each share, which sum must be paid before his title to the shares can be completed. A bequeaths these shares to B. The estate of A must make good the payments which were necessary to complete A's title.

(c.) A bequeaths to B his shares in a certain railway. B accepts the legacy. After A's death, a call is made in respect of the shares. B must pay the call.

(d.) A bequeaths to B his shares in a joint stock company. B accepts the bequest. Afterwards the affairs of the company are wound up and each shareholder is called upon for contribution. The amount of the contribution must be borne by the legatee.

(e.) A is the owner of ten shares in a railway company. At a meeting held during his lifetime a call is made of 3*l.* per share payable by three instalments. A bequeaths his shares to B, and dies between the day fixed for the payment of the first and the day fixed for the payment of the second instalment and without having paid the first instalment. A's estate must pay the first instalment, and B, if he accepts the legacy, must pay the remaining instalments.

PART XXIII.

Of Bequests of Things described in general terms.

158. If there be a bequest of something described in general terms, the executor must purchase for the legatee what may reasonably be considered to answer the description.

Bequest of thing described in general terms.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B a pair of carriage-horses, or a diamond-ring. The executor must provide the legatee with such articles, if the state of the assets will allow it.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

(b.) A bequeaths to B "his pair of carriage-horses." A had no carriage-horses at the time of his death. The legacy fails.

PART XXIV.

Of Bequests of the Interest or Produce of a Fund.

Bequest of interest or produce of fund.

159. Where the interest or produce of a fund is bequeathed to any person, and the will affords no indication of an intention that the enjoyment of the bequest should be of limited duration, the principal as well as the interest shall belong to the legatee.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B the interest of his five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India. There is no other clause in the will affecting those securities. B is entitled to A's five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India.

(b.) A bequeaths the interest of his 5½ per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India to B for his life, and after his death to C. B is entitled to the interest of the notes during his life and C is entitled to the notes upon B's death.

(c.) A bequeaths to B the rents of his lands at X. B is entitled to the lands.

PART XXV.

Of Bequests of Annuities.

Annuity created by will payable for life only, unless contrary intention appears by will.

160. Where an annuity is created by will, the legatee is entitled to receive it for his life only unless a contrary intention appears by the will. And this rule shall not be varied by the circumstance that the annuity is directed to be paid out of the property generally, or that a sum of money is bequeathed to be invested in the purchase of it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees a year. B is entitled during his life to receive the annual sum of 500 rupees.

(b.) A bequeaths to B the sum of 500 rupees monthly. B is entitled during his life to receive the sum of 500 rupees every month.

(c.) A bequeaths an annuity of 500 rupees to B for life, and on B's death to C. B is entitled to an annuity of 500 rupees during his life. C, if he survives B, is entitled to an annuity of 500 rupees from B's death until his own death.

Period of vesting where will directs that annuity be provided out of proceeds of property, or out of property generally or where money bequeathed to be invested in purchase of annuity.

161. Where the will directs that an annuity shall be provided for any person out of the proceeds of property, or out of property generally, or where money is bequeathed to be invested in the purchase of any annuity for any person, on the testator's death the legacy vests in interest in the legatee, and he is entitled at his option to have an annuity purchased for him or to receive the money appropriated for that purpose by the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A by his will directs that his executors shall out of his property purchase an annuity of 1,000 rupees for B. B is entitled at his option to have an annuity of 1,000 rupees for his life purchased for him, or to receive such a sum as will be sufficient for the purchase of such an annuity.

(b.) A bequeaths a fund to B for his life, and directs that after B's death it shall be laid out in the purchase of an annuity for C. B and C survive the testators. C dies in B's lifetime. On B's death the fund belongs to the representative of C.

Abatement of annuity.

162. Where an annuity is bequeathed, but the assets of the testator are not sufficient to pay all the legacies given by the will, the annuity shall abate in the same proportion as the other pecuniary legacies given by the will.

Where gift of annuity and residuary gift, whole annuity to be first satisfied.

163. Where there is a gift of an annuity and a residuary gift, the whole of the annuity is to be satisfied before any part of the residue is paid to the residuary legatee, and, if necessary, the capital of the testator's estate shall be applied for that purpose.

PART XXVI.

Of Legacies to Creditors and Portioners.

Creditor primâ facie entitled to legacy as well as debt.

164. Where a debtor bequeaths a legacy to his creditor, and it does not appear from the will that the legacy is meant as a satisfaction of the debt, the creditor shall be entitled to the legacy as well as to the amount of the debt.

Child primâ facie entitled to legacy as well as portion.

165. Where a parent, who is under obligation by contract to provide a portion for a child, fails to do so, and afterwards bequeaths a legacy to the child, and does not intimate by his will that the legacy is meant as a satisfaction of the portion, the child shall be entitled to receive the legacy as as well as the portion.

Illustration.

A, by articles entered into in contemplation of his marriage with B, covenanted that he would pay to each of the daughters of the intended marriage a portion of 20,000 rupees on her marriage. This covenant having been broken, A bequeaths 20,000 rupees to each of the married daughters of himself and B. The legatees are entitled to the benefit of this bequest in addition to their portions.

No ademption by subsequent provision for legatee.

166. No bequest shall be wholly or partially adeemed by a subsequent provision made by settlement or otherwise for the legatee.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths 20,000 rupees to his son B. He afterwards gives to B the sum of 20,000 rupees. The legacy is not thereby adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths 40,000 rupees to B, his orphan-niece, whom he had brought up from her infancy. Afterwards on the occasion of B's marriage, A settles upon her the sum of 30,000 rupees. The legacy is not thereby diminished.

PART XXVII.

Of Election.

Circumstances in which election takes place.

167. Where a man, by his will, professes to dispose of something which he has no right to dispose of, the person to whom the thing belongs shall elect either to confirm such disposition or to dissent from it, and in the latter case he shall give up any benefits which may have been provided for him by the will.

Devolution of interest relinquished by owner.

168. The interest so relinquished shall devolve as if it had not been disposed of by the will in favour of the legatee, subject, nevertheless, to the charge of making good to the disappointed legatee the amount or value of the gift attempted to be given to him by the will.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

169. This rule will apply whether the testator does or does not believe that which he professes to dispose of by his will to be his own.

Testator's belief as to his ownership immaterial.

(a.) The farm of Sultánpur was the property of C. A bequeathed it to B, giving a legacy of 1,000 rupees to C. C has elected to retain his farm of Sultánpur, which is worth 800 rupees. C forfeits his legacy of 1,000 rupees, of which 800 rupees goes to B, and the remaining 200 rupees falls into the residuary bequest, or devolves according to the rules of intestate succession, as the case may be.

(b.) A bequeaths an estate to B in case B's elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. A also bequeaths to C a jewel, which belongs to B. B must elect to give up the jewel, or to lose the estate.

(c.) A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, and to C an estate which will, under a settlement, belong to B if his elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. B must elect to give up the estate, or to lose the legacy.

(d.) A, a person of the age of 18 domiciled in British India, but owning real property in England, to which C is heir-at-law, bequeaths a legacy to C, and, subject thereto, devises and bequeaths to B "all his property, whatsoever and wheresoever," and dies under 21. The real property in England does not pass by the will. C may claim his legacy without giving up the real property in England.

170. A bequest for a man's benefit is, for the purpose of election, the same thing as a bequest made to himself.

171. A person taking no benefit directly under the will, but deriving a benefit under it indirectly, is not put to his election.

C dies intestate shortly after the testator, and without having made any election. D takes out administration to C, and as administrator elects on behalf of C's estate to take under the will. In that capacity he receives the legacy of 1,000 rupees, and accounts to B for the rents of the lands of Sultánpur which accrued after the death of the testator and before the death of C. In his individual character he retains the lands of Sultánpur in opposition to the will.

172. A person who in his individual capacity takes a benefit under the will may in another character elect to take in opposition to the will.

B dies intestate, shortly after the testator, without having made an election. C takes out administration to B, and as administrator elects to keep the estate of Sultánpur in opposition to the will, and to relinquish the legacy of 2,000 rupees. C may do this, and yet claim his legacy of 1,000 rupees under the will.

Exception to the six last Rules.—Where a particular gift is expressed in the will to be in lieu of something belonging to the legatee, which is also in terms disposed of by the will, if the legatee claims that thing, he must relinquish the particular gift, but he is not bound to relinquish any other benefit given to him by the will.

He also gives his wife a legacy of 1,000*l*. The widow elects to take what she is entitled to under the settlement. She is bound to relinquish the annuity, but not the legacy of 1,000*l*.

173. Acceptance of a benefit given by the will constitutes an election by the legatee to take under the will, if he has knowledge of his right to elect, and of those circumstances which would influence the judgment of a reasonable man in making an election, or if he waives inquiry into the circumstances.

When acceptance of benefit given by will constitutes election to take under will.

B, in ignorance of his own right to the estate of Sultánpur Buzurg, allows C to take possession of it, and enters into possession of the estate of Sultánpur Khurd. He afterwards discovers that the residue does not amount to more than 500 rupees. B has not confirmed the bequest of the estate of Sultánpur to C.

174. Such knowledge or waiver of inquiry shall, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, be presumed if the legatee has enjoyed for two years the benefits provided for him by the will without doing any act to express dissent.

Presumption arising from enjoyment by legatee for two years.

175. Such knowledge or waiver of inquiry may be inferred from any act of the legatee which renders it impossible to place the persons interested in the subject-matter of the bequest in the same condition as if such act had not been done.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Khojás are members of a sect which was originally Hindu but was converted to Muhammadanism about 400 years ago. They still, however, as has been more than once held by the highest Court in the Bombay Presidency, retain their former law to such an extent in matters connected with property and succession that it is to be presumed to apply to them until the contrary is shown. This state of things has at times given rise to great difficulties in litigation between Khojás.

2. In the case of Hirbai v. Gorbai, 12 Bom. High Court Rep. 294, which appears to have occupied the Lower Court for twenty-four sitting days and the Appellate Court for four days, Sir Michael Westropp, C. J., after describing the state of the law, observed as follows :—

"It is, however, evident that the Khojás are not as firmly bound in matters of succession and inheritance by the Hindu law as Muhammadans proper are by the Muhammadan law and the Hindus by the Hindu law, and hence it is that it would not be reasonable to require such stringent proof of a custom of inheritance amongst them differing from ordinary Hindu law as from a Hindu.

"Now, it is manifest that such a state of the law must greatly encourage litigation, and we cannot help thinking that it would be most desirable that the Government should take steps, as was done in the case of the Pársís, to ascertain the views of the majority of the community on the subject of succession, and should then pass an enactment giving effect to those views. Unanimity, of course, could not be expected, but the rules which were found generally to prevail might be made law; and though the religious differences existing among members of the Khojá caste might create some difficulty, it would not, we think, be insuperable."

3. The Government of Bombay, acting upon this suggestion, appointed about the end of the year 1878 a Commission consisting of four gentlemen taken from the Shia division of the Khojás, which acknowledged His Highness the late Ágha Khán as its spiritual superior, one taken from the Sunni division, and Mr. Spencer, Acting First Judge of the Court of Small Causes, with the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Melvill, of the Bombay High Court, as president.

The Commission took the greatest pains to inform themselves of the customs and views of both divisions of the Khojá sect in the Presidency of Bombay and elsewhere, and after much consideration and discussion agreed upon a draft Bill, subject to a dissent on a few specific points which was signed by His Highness Aghá Alí Sháh, son of His Highness the late Ágha Khán, and Mr. Dhurrumsey Poonjabhoy but not by Mr. Jairajbhoy Peerboy and Mr. Rahimtula Syance, the two other Shia members of the Commission. That draft, having been submitted to the Government of Bombay by the president on the 23rd of December, 1879, and approved of by that Government, was forwarded to the Government of India, and forms the basis of the present Bill.

4. It will be convenient to refer to the provisions of the present Bill as nearly as possible in their order, noticing in their proper place the few points in regard to which His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh and Mr. Dhurrumsey Poonjabhoy differed from the majority of the Commission, and the points of substantive importance in which the present Bill deviates from the draft framed by the Commission.

5. The first provision calling for notice is section 2, which defines the application of the Act—a matter which was not clearly provided for in the Bill prepared by the Commission. The main enactment of the section is that succession to the property, whether moveable or immoveable, in British India of a Khojá dying on or after the first day of January, 1885, shall be regulated by the rules contained in the Act wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. So far as regards immoveable property, this provision coincides with section 5 of the Indian Succession Act, but, as regards moveable property, it involves an important deviation from that section, inasmuch as it applies the Act to all successions to such property though the deceased person may have been domiciled outside British India at the time of his death.

As the rule, which makes the law of the domicile of a deceased person regulate the succession to his moveable property, is not merely the rule of the Indian Succession Act but has obtained very general acceptance elsewhere, it seems desirable to state the reasons which have led the Government of India to think that it is not suitable to the Khojá community.

6. The choice as regards succession to moveable property appears to lie between the law of the domicile of the deceased and the law of the situs of the assets. The objections urged against the latter in Western countries are chiefly that a man's moveables are apt to be scattered over many jurisdictions each having a readily ascertainable law of its own, and that accordingly, if the law of the situs is made applicable to them, his estate will be broken up into many fragments, all governed by different laws; that a man's moveables may change their place; that the most important class of them, goods employed in commerce, are constantly changing their place; and that accordingly, if the law of the situs is applied, it will be impossible for him to foresee the particular law under which they will fall upon his death; and lastly, that the rule of the law of the situs does not clearly provide for that portion of the assets which consists of debts or other obligations existing in favour of the deceased. To avoid these difficulties it has been generally agreed to adopt the law of the domicile of the deceased for the whole of his moveable estate. Various attempts have been made to rest this rule on some á priori principle; but it would seem to have had its actual origin in mere considerations of convenience.

7. Looking to the arguments by which it is supported, and to the peculiar circumstances of the Khojá community, it is questionable, to say the least, whether such a rule would meet the requirements of their case. The places beyond the limits of British India, as, for example, Kutch, the Persian Gulf and Zanzibar, in which any considerable number of Khojás is to be found have no law such as can properly be called a territorial law of succession. The tribunals in such places, in so far as they make any rational attempt to apply a law at all, would apply the personal law of the parties, and that in the case of Khojás is ex hypothesi altogether unsettled and unascertainable. There is thus in the case of Khojás domiciled out of British India practically speaking no law of the situs of the foreign assets to conflict with the law which would apply to the British Indian assets, and no law of the domicile to which recourse could be had; and, therefore, to give the law of the domicile a preference over the Indian law would be simply to substitute a congeries of indefinite and half-established customs for a law, to the application of which there could be no reasonable objection.

It may be added that, in the absence of a law of the domicile, the case is very analogous to those cases in which it is impossible to fix the domicile of the deceased, and the solution which Lord Alvanley appears to have suggested in a case of this latter class was to fall back, as is proposed in this case, on the law of the situs of the property; in other words, to put moveables on the same footing as immoveables.

8. If this solution is adopted, and the Indian law is applied to all moveables left by a deceased Khojá in British India, without regard to his domicile, and if, moreover, the same rule is applied, as it naturally would be, in cases arising in Consular jurisdictions in the Persian Gulf, Zanzibar and elsewhere, this further advantage will probably in time be gained, that the law in British India will come to be adopted as a personal law applicable to Khojás in all foreign States in this part of the world.

9. The above remarks apply equally to intestate and to testamentary succession. A question might indeed be raised as to whether a testamentary disposition made beyond the limits of British India should as regards its form be made absolutely subject to British Indian law; but, seeing that the effect of taking any other course would certainly be to admit oral dispositions, it seems clear that the risk of failures of justice will be on the whole less by subjecting completely to our law all dispositions, wherever made, of moveable property in British India.

10. In connection with the definitions it is convenient to notice one of the few important questions on which any difference of opinion has arisen, namely, the question as to the status to be assigned to a woman who is not a Khojá but who is legally married to a Khojá according to the rules of the Muhammadan law, and to her children by him.

The Khojás of the Sunni Jamát, though apparently unwilling to go so far as to recognize any other than a Khojá widow as entitled to inherit from her husband, proposed that the sons of a Khojá by a wife who is not a Khojá should have some share in the inheritance. To this the Khojás of the Shia Jamát would not agree, and the Commission ultimately adopted as a compromise the plan of assigning to the offspring of the marriages in question a status nominally intermediate between those of legitimacy and illegitimacy and giving them in the definition-clauses the designation of "alien sons", but allowing them nothing more than illegitimate sons in the later sections of their Bill. It is stated that the Khojás as a rule are very exclusive and rarely take wives from outside their own community, and so long as this state of things continues the mode in which this point is dealt with is not of great practical moment; but there is an important principle involved, against which even the compromise adopted by the Commission appears to the Government of India to offend. The exclusion of the non-Khojá wife from inheritance and the degradation of her sons to a position altogether lower than that of the legitimate son involves a view as to restrictions on marriage which, even though it may have obtained acceptance with a majority of the Khojá sect, and though the Government has no desire to interfere with it, it is manifestly undesirable to have affirmed by the legislature. The present Bill will accordingly be found to contain no reference either in its definition-clauses or elsewhere to the so-called "alien son." It defines "son" to be a legitimate son and leaves "widow" undefined, and then proceeds to declare the rights of sons and widows, trusting to the Courts to decide, as they will on principles lying outside the law of succession, who are legally entitled to the status of sons and widows.

11. Chapter II of the Bill deals with "succession to the undivided property of a male Khojá dying intestate," and in the previous chapter "undivided property" has been defined as meaning "a share in property belonging to an undivided family." The Bill prepared by the Commission purported to define the phrase "undivided family," but the definition proposed has on inquiry been found to be unsafe. The undivided family among the Khojás appears to come into existence chiefly in connection with trade, and would seem to be an institution of a peculiar nature, somewhat resembling the undivided family among the Hindus; but, on the other hand, it is clear, from the rules laid down in certain sections of the Bill prepared by the Commission, and from the papers submitted with that Bill, that it differs in important respects from the Hindu undivided family. What exactly it is, and when property is to be regarded as its undivided property, it is difficult to ascertain from the papers before the Government of India; but, judging from the analogous case in Hindu law, it would seem that these are matters which it would be almost hopeless to attempt to define in an Act of the legislature; nor does it appear to be necessary to define them in a Succession Act. It may well be assumed that a fundamental distinction which goes to the root of the family constitution, and which is not confined in its operation to matters of succession, but applies also inter vivos, is established outside this Bill. For these reasons, it has been thought best to make no attempt to define "undivided family" or "undivided property" in the present Bill.

12. It will be observed, on comparing Chapters II and III, that the only peculiarity connected with the intestate succession to undivided property is (section 6) that, in default of legitimate lineal male descendants of the intestate within the fourth degree, the property is equally divided among all the male members of the undivided family living at his death.

13. Chapter III of the Bill treats of "succession to the separate property of a male Khojá dying intestate," and the order of succession marked out in sections 7 to 20 will be found to be based on that of the Hindu law.

The subjoined statement has been prepared by the Hon'ble Mr. Melvill, the President of the Commission, with a view to showing at a glance the extent to which the two differ—

Order of succession according to Hindu law.	Order of succession for Khojás proposed by the Bill.
1. Sons.	1. Sons.
2. Grandsons.	2. Grandsons.
3. Great-grandsons.	3. Great-grandsons.
4. Widow.	4. Great-great-grandsons.
5. Daughters.	5. Father.
6. Daughters' sons.	6. Mother.
7. Mother.	7. Widow.
8. Father.	8. Daughters.
9. Brothers.	9. Daughters' sons.
10. Half-brothers.	10. Brothers.
11. Brothers' sons.	11. Sons' daughters.
12. Half-brothers' sons.	12. Brothers' sons.
13. Grandmother.	13. Half-brothers.
14. Sister (under the Mayukha).	14. Half-brothers' sons.
15. Grandfather.	15. Grandfather.
16. More distant relatives.	16. Grandmother.
	17. Paternal uncle.
	18. Sister.
	19. More distant relatives.

"It will be seen," Mr. Melvill observes, "that the only very noticeable point of difference is that among the Khojás the father and mother are elevated to a rank in the order of succession superior to that of the widow. This precedence of the mother has been judicially settled in the case of Hirbai v. *Gorbai, already referred to; and although the Khojá members of the Commission were not unanimously in favour of the view taken in that case, they all agreed that, having once been judicially determined, the rule should not be disturbed."

* Reported 12 Bom. H. C. Rep., 294.

14. Section 20 of the present Bill differs in one important particular from the corresponding section (29) of the Bill prepared by the Commission.

The latter admitted to the succession only those of the "more distant relatives" of the intestate who were on the father's side, and confined it to such of them as are within the seventh degree of kindred. On failure of this limited class of distant kindred, section 42 gave the property "to the Jamát of that sect of the Khojás to which the intestate belonged at the time of his death, to be held and applied according to the customs of the said Jamát." Even this did not satisfy the two dissenting members of the Commission and some of the other adherents of His Highness the late Aghá Khán, who, as Imám, was the person chiefly interested in the succession of the Jamát. They contended that the Jamát should come in immediately after the nearer relations.

15. Apart from this fundamental objection in point of principle, there appear to be practical objections to the proposal as formulated by the Commission. The Jamát is said to be an assembly in council of all the adult male members of the Khojá community of the place, and it is not unlikely that doubts would arise, in connection with matters of religious belief, residence, attendance at the Jamát, and so forth, as to the particular Jamát (if any) to which the deceased person belonged. Similar doubts might also arise as to who were the other persons actually belonging to the Jamát to which the deceased belonged, so as to take the property. There might further be doubts as to how the property of a deceased intestate Khojá is to be held, and the objects to which it is to be applied. It is true that the section proposed by the Commission says that the property is to be held and applied "according to the customs of the said Jamát." But from a judgment of Sir J. Arnould in the case marginally noted, it would appear that there are no customs to look to. Though a Jamát collects large sums of money through its officers, it only does so on behalf of the Imám; the money collected is passed on to him; and if the Jamát wants any portion of it, even for the expenses of its Jamát-khánú (the council-hall or guildhall of the community), it can procure it only as a grant from the Imám. It appears to be absolutely in the discretion of the Imám to spend the money as he pleases, and as a matter of fact he spends a large portion of it, or at least is said by Sir J. Arnould to have done so at the time the judgment was delivered, on his own private purposes. Indeed, in a set of draft rules of succession for Shia Khojás submitted by His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh the succession of the Jamát is treated as the same thing with the succession of the Imám. The Jamát, therefore, does not seem to have any property or control over property, and it is not clear how there can be any custom governing the application of property by it. It has been argued that no such difficulties as those suggested ordinarily arise at present, but it would be clearly impossible to put the succession of the Jamát on a legislative basis without defining its conditions and incidents, and it would be equally impossible to place the property at the absolute disposal of any individual in whatever degree of veneration he might be held.

Dayá Muhammad and others versus H. H. Ágha Khán and others (page 323 of the Bombay High Court Reports, Vol. XII).

16. For these reasons section 20 of the present Bill extends the succession to relatives of the intestate both on the father's and on the mother's side without limit of degree, and it may be added that section 18 applies the ordinary rule, which makes the Crown the ultimate heir, in the rare case in which an owner of property may die intestate and leave no person entitled to succeed under the previous sections.

17. Section 21 is one of the leading sections of the Bill. It provides in effect that, when a female inherits under any of the foregoing sections, she shall, if certain near male relatives are living and are thus postponed to her, take the property only as "restricted owner"—a position to be presently explained at length. With this section should be read section 49, from which it will be seen that in other cases she takes the same interest in the property and has the same powers in respect of it as if she were a male.

18. Chapter IV treats of succession to the absolute property of a female Khojá dying intestate, that is to say, the succession to such of her property as belongs to her otherwise than as restricted owner. The provisions of this chapter call for no remark. Mr. Melvill states that they differ from the Hindu law but that they are approved by all classes of the Khojás, and are not, he thinks, open to any objection. The particulars in which they deviate from the Hindu law or the reasons for the deviations are not explained. They have been accepted by the Government of India as settled by the Commission, such details only being filled in after consultation with the local authorities as seemed necessary to give effect to what is understood to be the intention of those who framed them.

19. Chapter V, which treats of "property which a female takes as restricted owner and the further succession to the same," calls for more detailed notice.

It applies not only in the ordinary case of property taken by a female as restricted owner under Chapter III (supra, paragraph 17), but also in cases where she may take a similar interest in property under section 23 (2), section 24 (1), section 27 and section 39.

Its provisions are merely a development, with the requisite amplifications and with the addition of the necessary machinery, of the corresponding provisions of the Bill framed by the Commission. It has been settled in consultation with the local authorities and with a view to giving effect to what are understood to be the views of the Commission; but, having regard to the novelty and complication of the subject, it is not unlikely that when subjected to criticism it will be found susceptible of improvement in many particulars.

The limited estate taken by a Khojá female under this Bill resembles the estate taken by a Hindu widow, but there are many important differences between them. Mr. Melvill observes that the Khojá female estate is the more restricted of the two, but on this point he says the Khojás hold very strong views which he is of opinion must be respected.

20. In proceeding to notice the details of the chapter, the first point calling for attention is the phrase "restricted owner." It has been chosen merely on the ground that it is new and connotes nothing, and it is not unlikely that some more appropriate phrase may be suggested. The phrase "life-estate" and its correlative "reversion," used in the Bombay Bill, are not only open to the objection that ordinarily lies against all terms imported from another legal system, but further, as has been constantly observed of them in the case of the Hindu widow's estate, they suggest an altogether false analogy. The position, if it is necessary to illustrate it by reference to English law, is rather like that of a fee-simple estate subject to an executory devise.

21. As regards the attempt made in the Bill to define the estate, it will be observed that section 28 enacts that the female shall be absolutely entitled to the use of, and the income accruing from, the property during her life, and, except as otherwise provided by the Act, shall have all the other rights and powers of an absolute owner.

An objection has been taken to this on the ground that money saved by a widow from the income of the property should not belong to her absolutely but should go to her husband's heirs.

This contention is not based on any alleged actual practice, but is put forward merely as a "necessary consequence of the invariable custom" which limits the widow's interest in the corpus of her husband's property to the time during which she remains unmarried.

Now, not only is it not a necessary consequence of the custom in question, but it is, as admitted by the objectors themselves, in a certain sense illogical; for why should a person who has absolute power to dispose of the income as it comes in, in whatever way she pleases, be restricted from dealing with her savings from it?

Again, the only effect of adopting the proposed suggestion would, as the objectors themselves admit, generally be that the widow would squander the income as it came in; and, in the rare cases in which she allowed some of it to accumulate, the probability is that litigation would result from the difficulty of identifying the fund and separating it from the rest of her property. For these reasons the section has been allowed to stand.

22. Section 30 defines the obligations of the restricted owner as regards—

(a) the preservation of the substance of the property for those who are to come after her; and

As regards "waste," it stands on a footing altogether peculiar in the case of the Hindu widow; and clause (a) of this section has been drawn with a view to placing it on a somewhat similar footing in the case of the restricted owner.

23. As regards the powers of alienation, in the limitations on which the restricted nature of the estate chiefly consists, the only powers of alienation for any time beyond the life of the restricted owner allowed to her by the Bill, besides a limited power of leasing conferred by section 29, are those specified in section 31, which runs as follows:—

Restricted owner's power of transfer.

"31. A female taking property as restricted owner shall have power to transfer the same, so that the transfer may have effect beyond her life, when, the income being insufficient, such transfer is necessary in order to raise money for any of the following purposes, namely:—

"(a) to discharge any of the obligations imposed by section 30;*

* Viz., obligations to preserve the substance of the property and protect the title.

"(b) to discharge the debts of the absolute owner from whom the property descended;

"(c) to provide for the maintenance of any persons entitled under this Act to have their maintenance provided for out of the property, for the payment of any marriage expenses or funeral expenses payable under this Act out of the property, and for the performance of any ordinary family ceremonies; and

"(d) to support herself where she has no other sufficient means of support."

24. It has been urged by the two dissenting members of the Commission and by some other adherents of His Highness the Imám that a mother taking a restricted estate should have larger powers of alienation and that she or a widow taking a like estate should be empowered to alienate for religious objects; that is, as explained in the set of draft rules submitted by His Highness Aghá Alí Sháh, to give the property to the Imám; but, upon considering the arguments adduced and consulting the local authorities, the Government of India have determined to uphold the decision of the majority of the Commission, which is against the concession of any such powers.

25. In order to avoid as far as possible the great difficulties which arise in the case of a Hindu widow exceeding her power of alienation, an alienation in excess of the power has (section 29 of the Bill) been made absolutely void for any period beyond the restricted owner's life, except where the purchaser takes for consideration and without notice of the ownership being restricted. This, no doubt, standing alone, would place too great difficulties in the way of alienation; but sufficient relief will probably be afforded by the power to apply to a Court for sanction, which is given by section 32. It may be objected that it is undesirable to force people to resort to a Court in such matters; but the case is one of a choice of evils, and it is probably better that they should resort to the Court in every case where there is any room for doubt than run the risk of being involved in troublesome and expensive litigation later on.

A Court dealing with an application under section 32 is empowered (section 33) to accord its sanction to the transfer subject to the condition that the money thereby raised shall be paid into Court or to trustees appointed by the Court, and to give such further directions as it may think fit with a view to ensuring that the money shall be applied to the purpose for which it is raised, or that any balance that is not so applied shall be secured for the benefit of those entitled after the restricted owner.

26. It will be observed that no provision is made in the draft for alienation with the consent of the so-called "reversioners." This matter is one which gives rise to great difficulties in the case of the Hindu widow, and it seems impossible, having regard to the system of succession established by the Bill, to provide for it in any satisfactory manner. If provision had only to be made to meet the case of "reversioners" who claim under section 37 (1) and section 38 (3) by descent from the last absolute owner, the matter would be much simpler than in the case of the Hindu widow, inasmuch as these "reversioners" would always be known living persons or persons who would claim through them; but there are, besides these, the "reversioners" mentioned in section 38 (1) and (2), and it is thus impossible to fix upon any person whose consent would be sufficient.

27. Further, even if we were, as has been suggested, to waive this objection, and accept the consent of a merely presumptive "reversioner," there is another difficulty, namely, that the presumptive "reversioner" might (see section 39 of the Bill) be another restricted owner, possibly an old woman on the verge of the grave, whose prospect of succeeding would be extremely small. There might be several such persons intervening between the restricted owner and the first person who would take as absolute owner. We could hardly rest satisfied with anything short of the consent of this last person and all the intervening ones, and thus we should be landed in a considerable complication, leading in many cases to no very satisfactory result, inasmuch as the interest of the first person who would take as absolute owner, and to whose consent we would chiefly look, would often be of a remotely contingent nature. It is, of course, on economical grounds desirable to provide a means of freeing the property from the limited ownership, but the advantage would be dearly purchased if the basis of the purchaser's title were to be complicated in this way.

28. As regards the sale of property in execution of a decree against a restricted owner, it will be seen that the effect of section 34 of the Bill is that a person lending money for any of the purposes mentioned in section 31 can sell in execution nothing more than the so-called "life-interest" of the restricted owner, unless his loan is secured by a mortgage. The position of the restricted owner as regards anything beyond her so-called life-interest is, in fact, in this particular, somewhat similar to that of an English executor with power to charge the real estate. If it were otherwise, there might arise, in cases of execution for unsecured debts, the same difficult questions which the preceding sections are intended to shut out in cases of voluntary alienation.

29. It will be observed that, by sections 37 (2) and 38 (4) of the Bill the Crown is postponed to the general heirs of the restricted owner. This appears to be right, though it is gathered from the case of The Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Venkata Narrainapah (8 Moo. I. A. 529),—this precise point was not there decided,—that it is otherwise in the case of a Hindu woman's estate.

30. Sections 35 and 36 in effect provide that the restricted owner shall represent the property in judicial proceedings and compromises of disputes and for the purposes of laws of limitation and prescription, so as to bind those who take after her.

31. Sections 37 to 39, which regulate the devolution of property after the death of the restricted owner, have been drawn with a view to carry out what is understood to be the intentions of the Commission.

Their main provisions are that—

(b) when the restricted owner has been married, the property shall on her death go to certain of her descendants, and if there are no such descendants shall devolve as just stated.

32. From section 39 it will be seen, as already observed, that property may devolve upon two or more restricted owners in succession. This is to be regretted, but it seems to be an essential part of the scheme.

33. Section 40 regulates the legal relations arising where two or more widows of a deceased Khojá take his property together as restricted owners, and provides that there shall be a right of survivorship between them.

34. Section 41 provides that a widow marrying again after her husband's death shall not be entitled to take as restricted owner his property or any property of any of his lineal descendants which has descended to them from him, and that, if a widow taking any such property as restricted owner subsequently marries again, she shall be deemed for the purposes of certain sections of the chapter to have died. One effect of this latter provision is that the restricted ownership of the widow ceases on her re-marriage.

35. Coming now to Chapter VI, relating to the wills of Khojás, it will be observed that all matters connected with probate and letters of administration are in the case of Khojás, as in the case of other persons not subject to the Indian Succession Act, left to be dealt with under the Probate and Administration Act, 1881. The result of this is that the matters remaining to be provided for under this chapter are in the main the same as those which are provided for by the Hindu Wills Act, 1870, as amended by the Act just mentioned; and, as a matter of fact, the specification of the sections of the Indian Succession Act made applicable to the wills of Khojás by this chapter is based on the specification contained in the Hindu Wills Act as cut down by the Probate and Administration Act, 1881. There are, however, some important differences between the two which call for explanation here.

36. The most important of these differences is connected with the limitation on the powers of testamentary disposition. The specification of the sections of the Indian Succession Act applicable to Hindus, &c., contained in the Hindu Wills Act comprises several sections which either confer, or assume the existence of, a power of disposition in favour of unborn persons, but the Act contains a proviso to the effect that nothing therein contained shall authorize any Hindu, &c., to create in property any interest which he could not previously have created, and the Calcutta High Court have held in the recent case of Mangamonjori Dabee v. Sonamoni Dabee (I. L. R. 8 Cal. 637) that the effect of that proviso is to cut down the power of disposition, which the sections in question confer or assume to exist, to the limits imposed on a testator by the Hindu law, that is to say, as held in the well-known Tagore case, to a mere power of disposition in favour of persons who are either in fact or in contemplation of law in existence at the death of the testator.

37. It will be seen, on reference to the report of Mangamonjori Dabee's case, that, though there was no difference of opinion in the Appellate Court which finally heard it, much difficulty arose from the form in which the Hindu Wills Act had been drafted, and that the learned Judge in the Court below had been led by this to take the opposite view. This being so, it was obvious that the drafting of the Hindu Wills Act could not be followed in this particular. Moreover, it was seen that to adopt this form of drafting would in a considerable number of cases expose the testamentary dispositions of Khojás to be called in question for reasons drawn or supposed to be drawn from the extremely vague and unsettled customary law now prevailing among them, and thus the object of the present measure, which is intended to supply a definite body of law, would be to a great extent defeated. It was accordingly resolved to enact directly either that a Khojá's power of testamentary disposition should be co-extensive with that allowed by the Indian Succession Act, or should be limited somewhat in accordance with the ruling in the Tagore case.

38. It was clear that the question as to which of these courses should be adopted stood on grounds altogether independent of those on which the perpetuity question among Hindus had been discussed. The considerations with reference to which it should, in the opinion of the Government of India, be decided will be best seen from the remarks made on referring it to the local authorities for opinion. It was observed that the point was one in regard to which there was no recognized definite rule among the Khojás, and that if, having regard to the family system of that sect and its requirements in this particular, it was considered that it would be desirable to confer upon Khojás a power of disposition as large as that conferred by the Succession Act, the Governor General in Council would be prepared to confer that power; that the circumstance that, in the absence of any other rule, the Courts presume the Hindu law to be applicable to Khojás, and so might possibly, if the question then arose, hold a Khojá testator limited by the rule in the Tagore case, ought not, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, to be permitted to stand in the way of such legislation. "The Government of India," it was said, "has ever been reluctant to alter, by legislation, personal laws like those of the Hindus and Muhammadans, which are definitely ascertainable and are established on a religious or quasi-religious basis; but a rule of Hindu law, which is applied not as such, but merely by virtue of the presumption above referred to, in the absence of any other ascertainable rule, to persons who are by religion not Hindus but Mussulmans, stands in its application to such persons on a totally different footing; and, if it appears expedient to set it aside as regards them, there need be no hesitation about doing so. The rule of the Tagore case, assuming that it would at this moment be applied by the Courts to Khojás, is as applied to them no more sacred or immutable than any of the other rules of Hindu law which at this moment may be applicable to Khojás, but which will be modified by the Bill if it becomes law. No difficulty will, therefore, be raised here on this score."

If, on the other hand, it was observed, it should appear that the rule prohibiting dispositions in favour of unborn persons had, as a matter of fact, been recognised and observed among the Khojás, or if, there being no recognized rule or established practice either way, it should be considered that the powers of disposition allowed by the Succession Act were larger than were needed for the requirements of Khojás, it would probably be desirable to limit the power of disposition in some such way as it is limited by the Hindu law as interpreted in the Tagore case. The system of intestate succession established by the Bill was in certain respects a complicated one; and if to this were to be added a power of making complicated dispositions by will, it was to be feared that we should bring about, in regard to the property of this wealthy and important sect, a state of things which it was desirable if possible to avoid.

any attempt had hitherto been made among them to create by will an interest in favour of an unborn person; that there was thus a tabula rasa; and that it was quite open to the legislature to legislate on the subject as it thought best without any fear of violating an existing custom or of running counter to any prejudice or desire of the Khojá community.

This being so, the Government of India have come to the conclusion that it is undesirable to confer on Khojás any power of testamentary disposition in favour of persons not in existence at the time of the testator's death; and accordingly all portions of the Indian Succession Act which confer, or assume the existence of, such a power have, as far as practicable, been omitted, a proviso at the same time being inserted to the effect that a bequest by a Khojá in favour of any person who has not come into existence at the death of the testator shall be void.

40. The remaining differences between this Bill and the Hindu Wills Act as regards the provisions of the Indian Succession Act applied by them are of less importance.

It may, however, be stated that the following additional provisions of the Succession Act have been made applicable, namely:—

(a) section 47, giving a father power to appoint a guardian by will—a power the existence of which was assumed by the Commission;

(b) sections 52 and 53, relating to privileged wills;

(c) section 84, which provides that, when property is bequeathed to a person and words are added which describe a class of persons but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole of the interest of the testator therein unless a contrary intention appears by the will;

It should be added that section 187 of the Indian Succession Act, which provides that no right as executor or legatee can be established until a grant of probate or letters of administration is obtained, has been omitted for reasons similar to those which led to its being ultimately omitted from the Probate and Administration Act, 1881; and that sections 134 and 135, determining whether property bequeathed to two or more persons in succession should when its value is liable to decrease be retained in its original form, have been omitted, as it seems safer in this country to lay down no hard-and-fast rules on the subject.

41. The only other point calling for notice in connection with this chapter is that section 43, following the proviso to section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act, confers a power of bequeathing property to or for the benefit of a woman, so that she shall not have power to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein. The existence of such a power appears to have been assumed in the Bill prepared by the Commission.

43. Chapter VII, relating to maintenance and marriage and funeral expenses, calls for little notice. There was some obscurity about the corresponding provisions of the Bill prepared by the Commission, and this chapter has now been settled in accordance with what is understood from the local authorities to have been the original intention. It is believed that the only change of a substantive nature made here is in section 46, where provision has been made for the maintenance, &c., of a daughter while she remains unmarried. The chapter, however, will probably be found open to further amendment when it has been more fully considered.

43. Section 47, which provides for the recovery of sums due under this chapter, has been drawn with a view to precluding, as far as possible, the difficulties which have arisen under the Hindu law in regard to claims for maintenance, and in particular as to how far a person having a right to maintenance is entitled to follow the property of the deceased. As regards this last point, it has been thought best to place the claim for maintenance, &c., on the footing of a debt, postponing it, however, to debts proper. This will not absolutely remove all difficulty, but, by bringing the case within an existing class, it will avoid the creation of a new difficulty.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 16th JULY 1884.

GENERAL REMARKS.—Rain has fallen in varying quantities all over the Madras Presidency, but it has been deficient in the Ceded Districts and in the south. In most districts the crops are in want of rain. In Mysore rain continues to be insufficient, and the deficiency is beginning to be felt everywhere. There was heavy rain in Coorg in the week under report, but it is still insufficient for planting operations. In the Bombay Presidency rain has fallen in all districts and has been beneficial for the kharif sowings which have been resumed everywhere, except in parts of the Deccan and Southern Mahratta Country where more rain is needed. In the Berars and Hyderabad and in the Central India and Rajputana States the rainfall has been heavier than that of last week. Heavy rain is still reported from the Central Provinces, and is proving unfavourable in places for the kharif and cotton sowings. At Khandwa damage to the railway is reported. Good rain has fallen in most districts of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, but in some places the fall was light and more is urgently needed. In the Punjab there was rain in many districts, but the fall is still insufficient. In British Burma the weather continues to be seasonable. In Assam the fall has been below that of last week. In Bengal rain continues to be general, though it has been insufficient in places for agricultural operations. In the Behar districts the fall was generally heavy, and a break in Sarun and Hajipore would be beneficial.

In his report for the 17th instant, the Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India states that rain is reported from by far the greater part of the country, the only regions without any rain being a portion of the Carnatic and the provinces of Behar, the Punjab, and Sind.

Harvesting continues in Madras, and standing crops are generally in fair condition. Kharif sowings are in progress in Bombay, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjab, the Central Provinces, and other parts of the country. Cotton sowings are in progress in Bombay and the Central Provinces and have been completed in the Berars. In Sambalpur the weather is very unfavourable to cotton. In Assam reaping of the aus crop and the transplanting of sali dhan is in progress. The prospects of tea are generally good. In some places in Bengal the prospects of the bhadoi and aghani crops are reported to be remarkably good. The aus paddy is coming into ear in some districts and has been nearly harvested in Dacca. Jute and sugarcane are doing very well, and the condition of other standing crops is generally good. In Central India prospects are good, but in Rajputana doubtful.

Cholera and small-pox are generally prevalent everywhere, and the mortality from the former in Tanjore continues to be high. Prices show a slight tendency to rise.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras—(July 16th)
Bellary ...	·20 (average)	More rain urgently needed. 42 deaths from cholera.
Kurnool ...	·76 (average)	Progress of sowing arrested from want of rain in parts. Small-pox and cattle-disease in parts.
Ganjam ...	1·95 (average)	Fever and small-pox slight.
Kistna ...	1·62 (average)	River rising 4 feet over anicut. Small-pox, fever and cattle-disease in places.
Chingleput (Madras) ...	·70 (average)	Standing crops fair, but in want of rain in parts. Harvest paddy, yield half the average. Small-pox prevalent; 51 deaths from cholera.
Coimbatore ...	·15 (average)	Standing crops generally fair, but in want of rain in five talukas; harvest dry crops outturn below average. Fever and small-pox in parts.
Tanjore ...	·12 (average)	Standing crops generally good, but in want of rain in parts. Freshets in the Cauvery very low. Harvest paddy in one taluka; outturn below average. 922 deaths from cholera.
Madura ...	·15 (average)	Standing crops fading from want of rain. Small-pox slight in parts; 9 deaths from cholera.
Malabar ...	6·54 (average)	Transplanting of paddy nearly over. Small-pox slight in eight talukas; fever in 3; 3 deaths from cholera.
Travancore ...	3·04	Standing crops, paddy thriving. Fever prevalent and small-pox in parts. General Remarks.—General prospects moderate. Rainfall deficient in Ceded districts and in the South.
Bombay—(July 16th)
Kurachi ...	Slight showers of rain in Karachi.	More rain expected. River on 14th, 15 feet 3 inches being 1 foot 2 inches less than on corresponding date last year. Kharif transplanting in progress. Rats doing some damage in Tatta and keon worm and rura insect in Shahbander. Fever in 3 and cattle-disease in 4 talukas; small-pox in 14 villages in districts; 17 fresh cases, 2 deaths, 18 remaining sick. Prices—wheat, red rice, and bajri in Karachi 26, 30, and 32, in Manjhand 28, 29 and 38, in Ghorabari 22 and 34, in Jatí 20, 30 and 32 pounds per rupee, respectively.
Hyderabad ...	Slight rain on 14th	Kharif cultivation in progress. River at Kotri on 14th, 15 feet 3 inches against 16 feet 5 inches on same date last year. Sky cloudy and more rain expected. Small-pox in 9, fever in 3, and cattle-disease in 1 taluka. Prices of grain steady.
Ahmedabad ...	1·31	Total rainfall 3·24. Sowing operations commenced. One cholera case in the city. In Parantij 9 cholera cases of which 2 fatal. Wheat 29 and bajri 32 pounds per rupee.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bombay—contd.
Baroda ...	3·86	Total rainfall 5·07. Cholera continues in city Baroda; 155 deaths; it prevails in Baroda, Jarod, and Dabhoi Mahals. Sowing operations generally in progress. Prices—bajri 27, and rice 20 pounds per rupee.
Surat ...	7·22; good rain throughout the district.	Total rainfall 11·57. Sowing and transplanting progressing. Juari 31 and nagli 39 pounds per rupee.
Nasik ...	Good rain throughout; maximum rainfall in Malegaon, 6·07; minimum in Sinnar, 1·56.	Kharif sowings will shortly commence. Public health generally good. Small-pox and cattle-disease in Kalvan. Prices—bajri 28½, wheat 34½ and rice 21 pounds per rupee.
Colaba (Bombay) ...	Rain daily, heavy on 13th and 14th; total of week 12·36.	Total rainfall to date 27·58 being 5·01 below average. Abnormal temperature 2° warm to 3° cool.
Poona ...	Seasonable rain in part of the district, maximum fall at Khed Kala, 3·60; minimum at Sirur, ·45.	More rain wanted. Kharif sowings begun in all talukas, except Sirur, Purandhar, and Bhimthadi. Prices—bajri 33, and juari 35 pounds; in Poona, bajri 27, and juari 28 pounds per rupee.
Ahmednagar ...	2·79 in Jamkhed; 1·94 in Akola; 1·83 in Sangamner; 1·40 in east of the talukas of Kopargaon and Parner; 1·18 in Karjat; ·80 in east of the talukas of Sheogaon and Nagar, less amount in the remaining talukas.	More rain wanted for kharif sowings. Slight cattle-disease in Nevasa. Juari—maximum 60 pounds in Sangamner, minimum 24 in Karjat; bajri—maximum 48 in Sangamner, minimum 36 in Kopargaon.
Sholapur ...	·93; Barsi, ·66; Madha, ·42; Karmala, ·20; Pandharpur, ·08; Singola, ·25 and Malsiras ·13.	Kharif sowings not commenced for want of moisture, except in a few villages in Barsi and Malsiras. Rain urgently needed. Juari 39 pounds 19 tolas, and bajri 40 pounds 23 tolas per rupee.
Dharwar ...	Fair rain has fallen everywhere, except in Navalgund and Gadag talukas including the Pettas; maximum in Hangal, 3·82; in Majund, Ranibennur, Karajgi, Dharwar, and Kalghatgi above 1·0; elsewhere less.	More rain required specially in eastern talukas. Sowing of rice resumed, but that of juari retarded for want of sufficient moisture. Prospects slightly improved by the week's rainfall. Cholera in all talukas; will subside if heavy rain falls which is also required to supply the deficiency of drinking-water.
Kanara ...	Karwar, 10·52; Kumpta, 13·0; Sirsi, 5·22; Haliyal, 1·10.	Total rainfall 38·21. Rice plants 1 foot high on coast. Common rice in Karwar 12 seers; district average 15 seers per rupee. Small-pox in Sirsi; sixteen cases in Karwar, one death; in Kumpta six and Haliyal one. Fever in Yellapur.
Rajkot ...	4·75	Total rainfall 13·60. General health good. Sowing of bajri and juari completed in some places. Cotton sowing in progress. Bajri 31 and juari 39 pounds per rupee. General Remarks.—Rain throughout the presidency. Kharif sowing operations resumed, except in parts of the Deccan and Southern Mahratta country where more rain is needed. River low in Sind. Prospects generally improved. Cholera in parts of eleven districts; fever and small-pox in parts of ten districts; cattle-disease in seven districts.
Bengal—(July 16th)
Chittagong ...	2·3	Weather fine with occasional showers of rain. Aman paddy being sown; prospects of crops good. Prices stationary. Cholera and cattle-disease continue.
Dacca ...	1·38	Harvesting of aus nearly over and that of jute going on; sugarcane thriving; aman being transplanted; prospects of crops good. Water rising gradually. Public health good.
24-Pergunnahs (Calcutta)	2·50	Transplanting of aman paddy going on. Prospects of standing crops good. Price of common rice stationary. Public health good; Cattle-disease prevails in Bussirhat and Diamond Harbour sub-divisions. Rivers rising.
Moorshedabad ...	2·25	Rain on two days of the week though little fell in sub-divisions. Easterly winds prevail and sky clearing. Rain still wanted for transplanting. Bhadoi on low lands in ear, and indigo, jute and sugarcane doing well. Public health good.
Rajshahye ...	1·27	Prospects of crops generally favourable. Health good.
Burdwan ...	1·74	Rain still insufficient. Transplanting retarded. Threatened injury to paddy on high lands no longer exists.
Rungpore ...	·86	Weather hot. Prospects of crops favourable. More rain wanted. Price of rice from 3 to 4 rupees per maund.
Bhagalpur ...	2·33	Standing crops doing well; rice 13 seers 14 chittacks per rupee.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—contd.
Purneah ...	3·76	Bhadoi crops very good; aghani being transplanted; common rice 16 seers per rupee. Health fair. Rivers full.
Patna ...	2·20	Sowing of bhadoi crops progressing well; everywhere more rain required for paddy transplanting.
Durbhunga ...	·99	Bhadoi crops very promising; transplanting of paddy going on. More rain, however, wanted. Prices falling slightly. Public health good.
Hazaribagh ...	·85	Weather cloudy and sunny alternately. Sowing of paddy and bhadoi crops going on. Prices of food-grains continue high. Small-pox in one thana, otherwise public health good.
Cuttack ...	3·05	Weather hot and fair. Young sarad and beali plants growing well; transplanting of sarad commenced in some places. Common rice 15 to 16 seers per rupee in town. Scattered cases of cholera in the interior, otherwise public health good.
		General Remarks.—Rain fell through the province, but it was insufficient chiefly in the Bengal districts where agricultural operations have consequently been impeded to some extent. The rainfall in the Behar districts was heavy, except in Bhagulpore, Maldah, Sonthal parganas and the Southern part of the Patna district; a temporary cessation of rain in Sarun and in the Hajipore sub-division of the Mozufferpore district would do good. Prospects of bhadoi and aghani crops in some of the districts of Behar are remarkably good. Aus paddy is coming into ear in some districts, though the crop has been nearly harvested in Dacca. Jute and sugarcane look very well. Condition of other standing crops generally good. Prices of food-grains almost stationary, though slight fluctuations exist in few districts. Cholera and small-pox have not totally disappeared, otherwise public health good.
N. W. Provinces and Oudh—
Benares (July 14th)	2·4 to 4·1	Weather seasonable. Ploughing and sowing going on. No sickness of man or beast. Prices rising slowly.
Allahabad („ „)	Showers daily during the week.	Sowings in progress and rice being transplanted; agricultural prospects excellent. Health very good. Prices stationary.
Gorakhpur („ 12th)	Local showers	Cloudy weather with a high east wind. Rice sowings nearly completed. 3 cases of cholera on Nepal border. Prices steady.
Jhansi („ 15th)	Fair amount of rain in all the parganas, except Jhansi.	Sowing in progress. Prices rising. Cholera abating. Grazing still scarce.
Agra („ 12th)	Rain in five parganas, ·3 to 1·1.	Sowings continue. Cholera very slight in one pargana only. Prices steady.
Bareilly („ 14th)	Very slight and partial rain.	Rice sowings retarded. Prices rising. Health of men and cattle remains good.
Meerut („ „)	Rain during the week in parts ·3 to 1·2; slight local showers elsewhere.	Wind easterly; sky cloudy; weather hot and oppressive. No damage to crops so far. Cholera in Sarowa tahsil and in Hapur. Supplies sufficient. Prices steady.
Kumaon („ „)	Slight but sufficient rain during week.	Prospects good. Prices rising. Cholera almost disappeared; a few cases of small-pox and cattle-disease in a few places.
Lucknow („ 14th)	Good and general rain during the week; ranging from 2·6 to 3·6.	Juar, kodon, sawan and arhar sown. Fields are being prepared for bajra and mothi. Condition of people and cattle good. Enough supplies in stock. Prices stationary.
Partabgarh („ 11th)	1·6 to 8·7	Kharif ploughing and sowings in full progress. Bazars well stocked. Small-pox still prevalent.
Sitapur („ 14th)	Fair rain; averaging from 1·0 to 2·2 has fallen throughout the district.	Wind generally from the east. No cattle-disease. Prices steady.
Fyzabad („ „)	Rain varying from ·7 to 2·8.	Sowing of kharif crops nearly completed. Public health and condition of cattle good.
Rae Bareli („ 12th)	Rain general and favourable all over the district.	Ploughings and sowings going on. Cattle-disease reported from tahsil Rae Bareli. Markets well stocked. Prices steady.
Cawnpore („ 14th)	Rain favourable during the week from ·5 to 4·3.	Kharif sowings continue. Prices almost stationary. Health of people and cattle good.
Farukhabad („ „)	Partial showers during the week; no general rain.	Kharif sowings continue. Health good. Prices steady.
		General Remarks.—Good rain has fallen in most districts. In Aligarh, Saharanpur, Bareilly, Moradabad and Farukhabad the rainfall was light and more is urgently needed. Kharif operations are in progress. Prices are rising in Benares, Bareilly, Moradabad, Aligarh and Kumaon, elsewhere they are almost stationary. Markets are well supplied. Public health and condition of cattle good.
Punjab—(July 15th)
Delhi ...	·10	Cholera continues. Prices almost stationary.
Hissar ...	.....	Rain much wanted in Rohtak district. Health good. Kharif operations in progress. Prices rising in Sirsa district.
Umballa ...	.....	Health good. Kharif sowings in progress. Prices stationary.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.

Circular No. 85 Ex.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India, in the Revenue and Agricultural Department (Exhibitions),—dated Simla, the 11th July 1884.

Read—

Report on the Indian Department of the Amsterdam Exhibition of 1883 by J. R. Royle, Esq., Executive Commissioner of India.

Read also—

Circular No. 76Ex., dated the 24th June 1884, from Revenue and Agricultural Department, to Local Governments and Administrations forwarding copies of the Report.

RESOLUTION.

The report above cited describes the share taken by the Government of India in the Amsterdam Exhibition of 1883, and contains an interesting account of some of the commercial results that have attended the Exhibition. These are recorded at paragraphs 29 to 49 of the report, and the Government of India hopes that the measures taken to further the interests of India will have an important bearing on the future development of trade between India and the continent of Europe. The Government of India also notes with satisfaction that the steps taken by the Calcutta Tea Syndicate for bringing Indian tea prominently to notice at the Exhibition are likely to lead to a wide extension of the trade in this commodity both in Holland and on the continent.

The thanks of the Government of India are due to the officers and private gentlemen named in the appended list, who rendered important assistance in the work connected with the contribution of samples, &c., to the Exhibition. More particularly the Government of India would desire to acknowledge the services of the following gentlemen :—

Babu Mahendra Nath Bhattacharjya, Deputy Magistrate and Deputy Collector, Bogra;

H. W. I. Wood, Esq., Secretary to the Chamber of Commerce, Calcutta.

J. S. Gamble, Esq., Conservator of Forests.

F. Duthie, Esq., Superintendent, Saharanpur Botanical Gardens.

Babu L. P. Barman, Superintendent, Government Farm, Cawnpore.

Surgeon-Major G. Bidie, Curator, Government Central Museum, Madras.

Major J. C. Walker, Conservator of Forests, Madras, and all other Madras Forest Officers.

The Government of India has already acknowledged, through the Secretary of State, its sense of the great zeal and ability displayed by Mr. J. R. Royle as Executive Commissioner for India at the Amsterdam Exhibition.

ORDER.—Ordered, that a copy of this Resolution be printed and distributed to the Local Governments and Administrations noted on the margin, and be published in the Gazette of India for general information.

XVI. If any stamp or stamped paper purchased for use under the Court-fees Act is damaged or spoiled before being used, the Assistant Commissioner of Ajmere may, upon written application made to him within one year after its purchase, and on being satisfied that it was purchased for use and was accidentally spoiled or damaged, authorise a fresh stamp or stamped paper of the same value being given to the applicant. The spoiled stamp or stamped paper shall be taken back and returned to the Superintendent of Stamps at Calcutta.

XVII. A stamped paper shall be held to be damaged or spoiled within the meaning of Section 27, Clause C, when—

1. It shall by some accident, either before or after being written upon, have become stained, spoiled, torn, or otherwise rendered permanently unfit for use.
2. In consequence of some material error in the writing or copying of any writing, it has become of no avail.
3. The purpose intended to be effected thereby has been effected by some other instrument on which the proper fee has been duly paid.
4. Owing to death, or from some other cause, a transaction intended to be effected is not completed, and the writing becomes of no avail.

5. In consequence of any error or informality in the drawing up or in the signing of any writing on which the proper Court-fee Stamp has been duly affixed, and cancelled by any duly authorised Court or Officer, the writing is returned or rejected by the said Court or Officer to which it was sent or addressed, and the stamp has thereby become unfit for use.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat; the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January, 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow:—

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

* Passed down to supplement the Agra Canal supply.

Executive Engineer, Northern Division, Ganges Canal, reports—Sugar and indigo more largely cultivated. River has met all calls on it during the month. Weather very hot with strong west wind.

Executive Engineer, Meerut Division, Ganges Canal, reports—Heavy demand for sugar and indigo during the whole of the month.

Executive Engineer, Aligarh Division, Ganges Canal, reports—The demand was very strong throughout the month. Frequent closures (two days in a week) of all distributaries were necessary in the first half of the month to pass on the volume required by the Lower Ganges Canal.

Executive Engineer, Narora Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—Indigo being cultivated with the greatest energy, and notwithstanding the abnormally low supplies during April and the first two weeks of May, there are signs that this crop will be cultivated in larger areas than in last year. Supply after 15th May unlimited.

Executive Engineer, Mainpuri Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—Strong demand for water throughout the month. Supply very low up to 15th; after that date lots of water available. The total area up to date is 2,000 acres in excess of the area recorded up to the same date of the previous year; the increase is only apparent and is due to more accurate recording of the irrigation done.

Executive Engineer, Etawah Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—The increase is entirely in indigo; there has been a slight decrease in sugarcane owing to losses last year.

Executive Engineer, Bhognipur Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—Indigo cultivation largely extended on the tail distributaries.

Executive Engineer, Eastern Jumna Canal, reports—There was a full demand at the end of the month. The increase over last year is rather equally distributed; but sugarcane, indigo, and miscellaneous crops have the largest share.

Executive Engineer, Agra Canal, reports—Notwithstanding continued low supply, the area reported is more than 70 per cent. in excess of that reported at the end of May 1883. This is owing to (1) earlier fasl, (2) extension of indigo cultivation, (3) new distributaries, (4) general drought.

Executive Engineer, Rohilkhand Canals, reports—Water for sugarcane has been in great demand throughout the month, and it was with difficulty that the demand has been met so far. With early rains all the sugarcane can be saved and will turn out well, but if rains are late in coming much sugar must be lost, as the rivers are all very low, and the area that has been irrigated is larger than usual.

Executive Engineer, Dún Canals, reports—Demand was good at beginning of month and heavy towards end. Supply very insufficient in Rajpur Canal, fair in others. Decrease in area of sugarcane owing to low prices obtained for last year's produce. Paleo for 2nd class rice well in hand. Weather hot and sultry. Rain—Dehra 2·61, Bhogpur 0·9, Ambari 0·5.

RESOLUTION—By the Government of India, Public Works Department.

Read—

Letter No. 368 C.G., dated 24th March 1884, from Major L. Conway-Gordon, R.E., on special duty, submitting a completed copy of Volume VI, "Table of Salaries" of the Public Works Department Code, and bringing to notice the valuable services of Mr. E. T. Anthony, Honorary Assistant Examiner, in connection therewith.

OBSERVATIONS.—To avoid the trouble and mistakes involved in constantly having to calculate the amounts due to officers on account of salaries for broken periods of months, a book of tables has been prepared showing the authorised amounts to the nearest ½ anna due for any broken period, and this will now be issued to the Department as Volume VI of the Public Works Department Code.

The tables contained in this volume show not only the exact amount of salary admissible to every officer and subordinate of the Department, whatever may be his departmental and military position, but also the amount that may be passed to him for any broken period of the month.

Copies of this volume will be furnished to all offices under the rules laid down in Chapter IV, paragraph 47, of Volume I of the Public Works Code of the Department, and it is hereby directed that the amounts entered in the tables given in the volume may be considered as authoritative, and may be made use of on all occasions in the preparation of salary bills, last-pay certificates, &c.

The rates of military pay of non-commissioned officers and soldiers are not now permanent, as they are under recent orders to be converted into Indian money at the rate of exchange fixed annually by Her Majesty's Government for payment of troops serving in the Colonies, and therefore it will probably be necessary to omit these rates from future editions of this volume.

The Governor General in Council desires to acknowledge the services of Mr. Anthony, brought to the notice of the Government of India by Major Conway-Gordon.

ORDER.—Ordered, that this Resolution be published in the Gazette of India and in all local Gazettes.

No. 175.—Messrs. Thomas George Acres and Alfred Bates Prussia are appointed to the Superior State Railway Revenue Establishment as candidates in the Traffic Department, and their services are placed at the disposal of the Director General of Railways.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[First publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 24th July, 1884, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XII OF 1884.

An Act to amend and provide for the extension of the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879, and provide for its extension to any part of British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:— X of 1879.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884; and — Short title.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of August, 1884. — Commencement.

2. (1) This section and section 3 extend to the whole of British India. — Local extent.

(2) The rest of this Act extends in the first instance only to the territories respectively administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Ajmer.

(3) But any other Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the rest of this Act to the whole or any part of the territories under its administration.

3. (1) On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879, and sections 4 and 5 of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act, 1880, shall, except as regards the recovery of advances made before this Act comes into force and of the interest thereon, be repealed. — Repeal of Act X of 1879, and sections 4 and 5 of Act XV of 1880. X of 1879. XV of 1880.

(2) All rules made under those Acts shall be deemed to be made under this Act.

4. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules as to loans to be made to owners and occupiers of arable land, for the relief of distress, the purchase of seed or cattle, or any other purpose not specified in the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, but connected with agricultural objects. — Power for Local Government to make rules. XIX of 1883.

(2) All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette.

5. Every loan made in accordance with such rules, all interest (if any) chargeable thereon, and costs (if any) incurred in making or recovering the same, shall, when they become due, be recoverable from the person to whom the loan was made, or from any person who has become surety for the repayment thereof, as if they were arrears of land-revenue or costs incurred in recovering the same due by the person to whom the loan was made or by his surety. — Recovery of loans.

6. When a loan is made under this Act to the members of a village-community or to any other persons on such terms that all of them are jointly and severally bound to the Government for the payment of the whole amount payable in respect thereof, and a statement showing the portion of that amount which as among themselves each is bound to contribute is entered upon the order granting the loan and is signed, marked or sealed by each of them or his agent duly authorized in this behalf and by the officer making the order, that statement shall be conclusive evidence of the portion of that amount which, as among themselves each of those persons is bound to contribute. — Liability of joint borrowers as among themselves.

SCHEDULE.—PORTIONS OF THE INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT (X OF 1865) MODIFIED FOR APPLICATION TO WILLS MADE BY KHOJÁS.

Explanation of abbreviation used in the margin.

"Bo. Bill" refers to the draft Bill prepared by the Commission and received with the letter from the Government of Bombay, No. 216, dated 11th January, 1880.

A Bill to amend and define the law of Testamentary and Intestate Succession to Khojás.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend and define the law applicable to testamentary and intestate succession to Khojás; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

1. This Act may be called the Khojá Succession Act, 1884; and it shall extend to the whole of British India.

Short title. Local extent.

2. Except as provided by any other law for the time being in force, succession to the property, whether moveable or immoveable, in British India of a Khojá dying on or after the first day of January eighteen hundred and eighty-five shall be regulated by the rules contained in this Act, wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. [Act X of 1865, s. 5.]

Application.

Explanation.—Property in British India includes obligations enforceable there.

3. (1) In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context,— [Bo. Bill, s. 3.]

Definitions.

"son" means a legitimate son, and does not include an adopted son:

"grandson" means a son's son:

"great-grandson" means a grandson's son:

"daughter" means a legitimate daughter:

"father" and "mother" do not include step-father and step-mother:

"grandfather" and "grandmother" do not include a father's step-father or step-mother:

"brother" and "sister" do not include step-brother and step-sister, nor half-brother and half-sister:

"half-brother" means son of the same father but by another wife:

"lineal male descendant," used with reference to any person, means a male descended from that person through males only: [New.]

"degree" means a degree of kindred computed according to the rules laid down in sections 21, 22 and 24 of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, and the table of consanguinity thereto annexed: X of 1865.

"undivided property" means a share in the property belonging to an undivided family: [Home Dept. Office Memo. dated 12th August, 1882, para. 7.]

"restricted owner," used with reference to any property, means a female acquiring that property in the manner specified in section 21, section 23, sub-section (2), section 24, sub-section (1), section 27 and section 39. [New.]

(2) When it is provided in this Act that the members of any class shall take property and the shares which they are respectively to take therein are not specified, they shall take equal shares therein.

4. For the purposes of this Act there shall be no distinction between ancestral and self-acquired property, nor between moveable and immoveable property, nor between those born in the lifetime of a deceased owner of property and those who at the date of his death were only conceived in the womb, but who have been subsequently born alive. [Bo. Bill, s. 7.] [Act X of 1865, s. 23.]

No distinction between ancestral and self-acquired, nor between moveable and immoveable, property. Child in womb.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter II.—Of Succession to the Undivided Property of a Male Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 5-6.)

(Chapter III.—Of Succession to the Separate Property of a Male Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 7-20.)

CHAPTER II.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE UNDIVIDED PROPERTY OF A MALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 8-12.]

5. (1) When a male Khojá owning undivided property dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal male descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, every such descendant shall be entitled to a share in that property unless one of the persons through whom he is descended from the intestate is living.

Where there are lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

(2) When the sharers under sub-section (1) all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, their shares shall be equal.

[Act X of 1865, s. 33.]

(3) When the sharers under sub-section (1) do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as will correspond with the number of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to him at his decease, and of his lineal male descendants of the like degree of kindred who died before him, and through whom the other sharers are descended from him; and one such share shall be allotted to each of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at his decease; and one such share shall be allotted in respect of each such deceased male descendant: and the share allotted in respect of each such deceased male descendant shall be divided among the sharers descended through him, in such manner that the sons of any person shall always take that which their father would have been entitled to if he had survived the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, s. 13.]

6. In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the property of the intestate shall be divided equally among all the male members of his undivided family living at his death.

Where there are no lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

CHAPTER III.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE SEPARATE PROPERTY OF A MALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, s. 16.]

7. When a male Khojá owning property, not being undivided property, dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal male descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, the property shall descend in the manner provided in section 5.

Where there are lineal male descendants within fourth degree.

[Bo. Bill, s. 17.]

8. In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the intestate's father shall succeed to the property.

In default of such lineal male descendants, property to belong to the intestate's father

[Bo. Bill, s. 18.]

9. In default of the father, the intestate's mother shall succeed to the property.

In default of the father, to the mother.

[Bo. Bill, s. 19, see infra, s. 34.]

10. In default of the mother, the widow or widows of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of the mother, to the widows.

[Bo. Bill, s. 20.]

11. In default of widows, the daughters of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of widows, to the daughters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 21.]

12. (1) In default of daughters, the sons of daughters shall succeed to the property, the sons of each daughter taking an equal share:

In default of daughters, to daughters' sons and to brothers.

Provided that, if the intestate has left brothers surviving him, the daughters' sons shall succeed to a moiety of the property, the sons of each daughter taking an equal share, and the brothers shall take the other moiety.

(2) In default of daughters' sons, the brothers shall take the whole of the property.

[Bo. Bill, s. 22.]

13. In default of brothers, the daughters of the intestate's sons shall succeed to the property, the daughters of each son taking an equal share.

In default of brothers, to sons' daughters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 23.]

14. In default of sons' daughters, the sons of the intestate's brothers shall succeed to the property, the sons of each brother taking an equal share.

In default of sons' daughters, to brothers' sons.

[Bo. Bill, s. 24.]

15. In default of brothers' sons, the half-brothers of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of brothers' sons, to half-brothers.

[Bo. Bill, s. 25.]

16. In default of half-brothers, the sons of half-brothers shall succeed to the property, the sons of each half-brother taking an equal share.

In default of half-brothers, to half-brothers' sons.

[Bo. Bill, s. 26.]

17. In default of sons of half-brothers, the paternal grandfather shall succeed to the property; and in default of the paternal grandfather, the paternal grandmother shall succeed to it.

In default of half-brothers' sons, to the grandfather; and in default of the grandfather, to the grandmother.

[Bo. Bill, s. 27.]

18. In default of the paternal grandmother, the paternal uncles shall succeed to the property.

In default of the grandmother, to paternal uncles.

[Bo. Bill, s. 28.]

19. In default of paternal uncles, the sisters of the intestate shall succeed to the property.

In default of paternal uncles, to sisters.

[Bo. Bill, s. 29.]

20. In default of sisters, the property shall belong to those of the intestate's relatives on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate; and, in default of relatives on the father's side, to those of the intestate's relatives on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate:

In default of sisters, to the nearest of kin.

Provided that no female relative shall be entitled to share in the property if there is a male relative standing on the same side in the same degree of kindred to the intestate.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter IV.—Of Succession to the Absolute Property of a Female Khojá dying intestate.—Sections 23-27.)

(Chapter V.—Of Property which a Female takes as Restricted Owner, and the further Succession to the same.—Section 28.)

[Bo. Bill, s. 32. See sec. 48, infra.]

When female takes as restricted owner under foregoing sections.

21. If, at the death of the intestate, any of the male heirs mentioned in sections 7 to 18 (both inclusive), or any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate, is living, a female succeeding under any of the foregoing sections shall take the property as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 30.]

Widow's right to retain possession of ornaments.

22. When a male Khojá dies intestate in respect of any ornaments belonging to him, and not being undivided property, which are in the possession of his wife with his consent, and the wife does not acquire the ownership, whether absolute or restricted, of the ornaments under this Act, she shall be entitled to retain possession of them until she dies or re-marries.

CHAPTER IV.

OF SUCCESSION TO THE ABSOLUTE PROPERTY OF A FEMALE KHOJÁ DYING INTESTATE.

[Bo. Bill, s. 38.]

Descent of unmarried female's absolute property.

23. (1) When an unmarried female Khojá owning property otherwise than as a restricted owner dies intestate in respect of that property, it shall belong to her brothers; in default of brothers, to her father; in default of the father, to her mother; in default of the mother, to the relatives of the intestate on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate; and, in default of such relatives, to the relatives on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 32 & 38.]

(2) If at the death of the intestate any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate is living, a female succeeding under this section, whether in preference to or together with that male relative, shall take the property as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 40.]

Descent of married female's absolute property.

24. (1) When a married female Khojá owning property otherwise than as restricted owner dies intestate in respect of that property, it shall belong to her sons and daughters; and the daughters shall take it as restricted owners.

[Bo. Bill, s. 32.]

(2) In default of sons and daughters, the property shall, except as provided in sub-section (3), belong to her husband.

(3) If the property has been given to the female on the occasion of her marriage separately from the "Dej" for her sole use and benefit by her parents or relatives, it shall, in default of sons and daughters, belong—

(a) to her father; and

(4) A female taking property under clause (b) of sub-section (3) shall not take it as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 37.]

Descent of absolute property of widow or divorced female leaving lineal descendants within the fourth degree.

25. (1) When a female Khojá, being a widow or divorced and owning property otherwise than as restricted owner, dies intestate in respect of that property, leaving legitimate lineal descendants not more remote than the fourth degree, every such descendant shall be entitled to a share of the property unless one of the persons through whom he is descended from the intestate is living.

(2) When the sharers under sub-section (1) all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, their shares shall be equal.

[Act X of 1865, s. 33.]

(3) When the sharers under sub-section (1) do not all stand in the same degree of kindred to the intestate, the property shall be divided into such a number of equal shares as may correspond with the number of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to her at her decease, and of lineal descendants of the like degree of kindred who died before her and through whom the other sharers are descended from her; and one such share shall be allotted to each of the sharers who stood in the nearest degree of kindred to the intestate at her decease; and one such share shall be allotted in respect of each such deceased descendant; and the share allotted in respect of each such deceased descendant shall be divided among the sharers descended through him, in such manner that the children of any person shall always take what that person would have been entitled to if he had survived the intestate.

[Bo. Bill, s. 37.]

Where there are no such lineal descendants.

26. (1) In default of the descendants mentioned in section 25, the property shall belong to the brothers of the intestate; in default of brothers, to her father; in default of the father, to her mother.

(2) In default of the mother, the property shall belong to the relatives of the intestate on the father's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred, and, in default of such relatives, to the relatives of the intestate on the mother's side who stand in the nearest degree of kindred.

[Bo. Bill, s. 32.]

When female taking under section 25 or 26 takes as restricted owner.

27. If, at the death of the intestate, any of the male heirs mentioned in section 25 and the first sub-section of section 26, or any male relative of the intestate on the father's side not more remote than the seventh degree of kindred to the intestate, is living, a female succeeding under section 25 or section 26, whether in preference to or together with that heir or relative, shall take the property as restricted owner.

CHAPTER V.

OF PROPERTY WHICH A FEMALE TAKES AS RESTRICTED OWNER, AND THE FURTHER SUCCESSION TO THE SAME.

[Bo. Bill, s. 3; "life-estate," "stridhan."]

Nature of restricted ownership generally.

28. A female taking property as restricted owner shall be absolutely entitled to the use of, and the income accruing from, that property during her life, and, except as otherwise provided by this Act, shall have all the other rights and powers of an absolute owner in respect of that property.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter V.—Of Property which a Female takes as Restricted Owner, and the further Succession to the same.—Sections 29-36.)

[Bo. Bill, s. 3, "life-estate."]

29. Except as provided by section 31, no right to, over or in respect of property created by a restricted owner of that property shall have effect for any time beyond her life:

Powers of alienation limited.

[New.]

Provided that nothing in this section shall affect a lease granted at a fair rent for a term not exceeding twenty years, and without payment of any fine or premium, or a right created for consideration in favour of a person acting in good faith, and without notice of the ownership being restricted.

[Act II of 1882, s. 3.]

Explanation.—A person has notice of the ownership being restricted when he actually knows that it is restricted, or when, but for wilful abstention from enquiry or gross negligence, he would have known it, or when information of it is given to, or obtained by, his agent under the circumstances mentioned in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 229.

IX of 1872.

30. A female taking property as restricted owner shall be bound, so far as it is possible for her to do so without applying her other property for that purpose,—

Obligations of restricted owner.

(a) to preserve the substance of the property without any material alteration, deterioration or diminution except such as may be essential to the realization of the full income of it in a reasonable manner, and to deal with it in all respects as carefully as a person of ordinary prudence would deal with property which he hoped to transmit in good condition to his heirs; and

[Act II of 1882, s. 13.]

(b) to make such payments, institute, maintain and defend such suits and other proceedings, and take such other steps as, regard being had to the nature and amount or value of the property, may be reasonably requisite for the assertion and protection of the title thereto, for the protection of the interest of those who are to take it after her, or for the recovery of any portion of it which is not in her possession.

[Bo. Bill, s. 3, "life-estate."]

31. A female taking property as restricted owner shall have power to transfer the same, so that the transfer may have effect beyond her life when, the income being insufficient, such transfer is necessary in order to raise money for any of the following purposes, namely:—

Restricted owner's power of transfer.

(a) to discharge any of the obligations imposed by section 30;

(b) to discharge the debts of the absolute owner from whom the property descended;

(c) to provide for the maintenance of any persons entitled under this Act to have their maintenance provided for out of the property, for the payment of any marriage expenses or funeral expenses payable under this Act out of the property, and for the performance of any ordinary family ceremonies; and

(d) to support herself where she has no other sufficient means of support.

[New.] [Act II of 1882, s. 34.]

32. (1) A restricted owner of property may, without instituting a suit, apply by petition to a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction to sanction any transfer of that property which she proposes to make under section 31.

Power to apply to Court to sanction a transfer under section 31.

(2) The petition must state the names of all the persons interested in the application so far as they can be ascertained, and must be verified by the applicant or by some other competent person in the manner required by law for the verification of plaints; and, if it contains any averment which the person making the verification knows or believes to be false, or does not know or believe to be true, that person shall be deemed to have intentionally given false evidence within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. XLV of 1860

(3) A copy of the petition shall be served upon, and the hearing thereof may be attended by, such of the persons interested in the application as the Court thinks fit.

(4) A transfer made with the sanction of a Court obtained under this section shall be deemed to be warranted by section 31.

[New].

33. A Court dealing with an application under section 32 may, if it thinks fit, sanction the transfer proposed subject to the condition that the money raised by the transfer shall be paid into Court or to trustees appointed by the Court, and may give such further directions as it thinks fit with a view to ensuring that the money shall be applied to the purpose for which it is raised, or that any balance thereof which is not required for that purpose, shall be secured for the benefit of those who would take the property after the restricted owner.

Power to direct money raised to be paid into Court.

34. When property belonging to a female as restricted owner is sold in execution of a decree passed against her, the interest taken by the purchaser shall cease on her death,—

Effect of sale in execution against restricted owner.

except when, without any collusion between her and the plaintiff,—

(a) the decree is passed against her as representative of the absolute owner from whom the property descended; or

(b) the decree is one for sale passed on a mortgage made under section 31 so as to take effect beyond the life of the female.

35. A decision in any suit or other proceeding, or a compromise of any dispute, relating to the property to which the restricted owner is a party, shall, except where she acts in collusion with the party opposed to her, bind those who take the property after her under this Act in the same manner and to the same extent as if she were an absolute owner of the property.

Effect of decision or compromise to which the restricted owner is a party.

36. In any case in which, under any enactment for the time being in force, an owner of property would by lapse of time lose any right to, over or in respect of that property, or any means of enforcing any such right, or another person would by lapse of time acquire any right to, over or in respect of that property, any period which elapses during the continuance of the restricted ownership shall be reckoned as against those taking the property after the termination of that ownership in the same manner and to the same extent as if the restricted owner had been an absolute

Effect of lapse of time during continuance of restricted ownership.

(Chapter VI.—Of Wills of Khojás.—Sections 42-43.)

owner of the property and it had been taken by them as her heirs.

[Bo. Bill, s. 37.]

Further descent of property held by unmarried female as restricted owner.

37. (1) When property has descended to a female as restricted owner and she dies unmarried, it shall belong to the person to whom it would then have belonged if she had died before the absolute owner from whom it descended and if had descended under this Act without having been alienated.

(2) In default of such person, the property shall descend as if the female were not a restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 38.]

Further descent of restricted property of married or divorced female or widow.

38. (1) When property has descended to a female as restricted owner and she dies, being at the time of her death married, a widow or divorced from her husband, the property shall be divided among her legitimate lineal male descendants, not being more remote than the fourth degree, those nearest in degree of kindred to her excluding the more remote, and, when those nearest in degree are not her sons, the property being so divided amongst them that the sons of any person shall take the share which he would have taken if the fathers of all had survived the restricted owner.

(2) In default of legitimate lineal male descendants as aforesaid, the property shall belong to the daughters of the deceased; in default of daughters, the property shall belong to the legitimate lineal male descendants of daughters, not being more remote from the deceased than the fourth degree, those nearest in degree excluding the more remote; the descendants of each daughter, when they take, taking an equal share, and when they are not sons of the daughters, that share being so divided among them that the sons of any person shall take what he would have taken if the fathers of all had survived the restricted owner.

(3) In default of legitimate lineal male descendants of daughters as aforesaid, the property shall belong to the person to whom it would then have belonged if the restricted owner had died before the absolute owner from whom it descended, and it had descended under this Act without having been alienated.

(4) In default of such person, the property shall descend as if the female were not a restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 39.]

When female taking property under sections 37 and 38 takes as restricted owner.

39. When property, having descended to a female as restricted owner, subsequently descends to another female under section 37, sub-section (1), or section 38, sub-section (3), that female shall take it as restricted owner.

[Bo. Bill, s. 40.]

Widows taking together as restricted owners to have a right of survivorship.

40. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, when two or more widows of a deceased Khojá take his property under this Act as restricted owners,—

(1) there shall be as between them a right of survivorship in respect of that property;

(2) the proviso to section 29 shall not apply to any lease of or any right to, over or in respect of the property, or any part or share thereof, granted or created by one or more of them without the consent in writing of the other or others of them then surviving;

(4) section 35 shall not apply to any decision in any suit or proceeding or to any compromise unless all of them then surviving are parties to that suit, proceeding or compromise.

[Bo. Bill, s. 34; Act XV of 1856, s. 2.]

Effect of re-marriage of widow claiming or holding as restricted owner.

41. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, a widow marrying again after her husband's death shall not be entitled to take as restricted owner his property or any property of any of his lineal descendants which has descended to them from him; and a widow taking any such property as restricted owner under the foregoing sections and subsequently marrying again shall, for the purpose of applying sections 28, 29, 31, 38 and 40, to that property, be deemed to have died.

CHAPTER VI.

Of Wills of Khojás.

[Bo. Bill, s. 4, 5 & 6.]

Extension of portions of Act X of 1865 with certain modifications to wills of Khojás.

42. Subject to the provisions of this Act, the portions of the Indian Succession Act, 1865, set forth in the schedule hereto annexed, with the modifications shown in that schedule, shall, notwithstanding anything contained in section 331 of that Act, apply to all wills made by a Khojá, whether male or female, dying on or after the first day of January eighteen hundred and eighty-five; and,

X of 1865.

in the portions of the Act so applying all words defined in section 3 of the Act shall, unless there be something repugnant in the subject or context, be deemed to have the same meaning as that section has attached to them respectively;

Provided that—

(a) For the purpose of the portions of the Act so applying, no person to whom the Indian Majority Act, 1875, applies shall be deemed to have attained his majority before the time specified in this behalf in that Act.

IX of 1875.

(b) A bequest by a Khojá in favour of any person who has not come into existence at the death of the testator, or in favour of a class of persons any one of whom has not come into existence at that time, shall be void.

(c) When a bequest is void under clause (b), any bequest contained in the same will and intended to take effect after or upon failure of such prior bequest shall also be void.

[Act IV of 1882, s. 10.]

Bequest of property to woman without power to transfer or charge.

43. Notwithstanding anything contained in the foregoing sections, a Khojá may bequeath property to or for the benefit of a woman so that she shall not have power to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Chapter VII.—Of Maintenance and Marriage and Funeral Expenses.—Secs. 44-47.)

(Chapter VIII.—Miscellaneous.—Sections 48-51.)

CHAPTER VII.

OF MAINTENANCE AND MARRIAGE AND FUNERAL EXPENSES.

[Bo. Bill, ss. 34 & 43.]

Maintenance and funeral expenses payable out of intestate's property.

44. (1) The amount requisite for the maintenance of the following persons and the amount of their necessary funeral expenses shall, if they do not possess or leave means sufficient for the purpose, be payable out of any property of a deceased male Khojá in respect of which he has died intestate.

(2) The persons referred to are—

(a) the widow or widows of the deceased Khojá and the widows of his legitimate lineal male descendants, provided they have not married again;

(b) every daughter and sister (whether legitimate or not) of the deceased Khojá, and every legitimate daughter of his son, grandson or great-grandson, except when she has been married and her husband is living;

(c) the father, mother, grandfather and grandmother of the deceased Khojá; and

[Bo. Bill, s. 44.]

Marriage expenses payable out of intestate's property.

45. The expenses of the first or only marriage of every daughter (whether legitimate or not) of a deceased male Khojá, and of every legitimate daughter of his deceased son, grandson or great-grandson, if not otherwise sufficiently provided for, shall be payable out of any of his property in respect of which he has died intestate.

[Bo. Bill, s. 45.]

Maintenance and funeral expenses payable out of property of testator.

46. If a male Khojá dies leaving a legitimate lineal male descendant who has not attained his majority, or a daughter who is unmarried or a widow, and having disposed of his property by will in such a manner as to leave that descendant, daughter or widow without sufficient means for the purpose, the amount requisite for the maintenance, of the descendant during his minority, or of the daughter while she remains unmarried or of the widow until her death or re-marriage (as the case may be) shall be payable out of the testator's property; and if the descendant dies before he attains his majority or the daughter dies unmarried or the widow dies without re-marrying, his or her necessary funeral expenses shall be payable out of that property.

[New.]

Recovery of sums claimable under sections 44, 45 and 46.

47. Any sum claimable for maintenance or marriage expenses or funeral expenses under section 44, section 45 or section 46 out of any property of a deceased male Khojá shall be recoverable as if it was due under a contract made by the Khojá in his lifetime and he had died leaving only that property:

Provided that—

first, the property shall be applied to the payment of debts due by the deceased before being applied to the payment of sums so claimable;

secondly, no decree shall be passed for arrears of any allowance on account of maintenance unless the amount of the allowance has been fixed by agreement or by order of a Court; and

thirdly, when a suit is instituted for the purpose of having any such allowance fixed against a person taking the property by intestate succession, and that person is able and willing to maintain or provide for the maintenance of the person by or on whose behalf the suit is instituted, and gives security to the satisfaction of the Court for his so doing, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dismiss the suit.

CHAPTER VIII.

MISCELLANEOUS.

[Bo. Bill, s. 42. Act X of 1865, s. 28.]

Property when to go to the Crown.

48. When a Khojá dies intestate in respect of any of his property, and there is no person entitled to take that property under the foregoing sections, it shall go to the Crown.

Females succeeding under this Act to take as males, except in certain cases.

49. Except as otherwise provided by this Act—

(2) a female taking property under any testamentary disposition under this Act shall have the same interest in it, and the same powers in respect of it, as a male taking under a like disposition.

[Bo. Bill, s. 35. Act XV of 1856, s. 3.]

Guardianship of children where widow remarries.

50. If a widow of a deceased Khojá, not having been appointed by his will to be guardian for his children, marries again, she shall not be entitled as of right to be appointed guardian of the children by a Court under any law for the time being in force relating to the appointment of guardians, and, when she has before her re-marriage been so appointed, a Court having jurisdiction to appoint a guardian for the children may in its discretion remove her from the guardianship.

Property transferable by gift made in contemplation of death.

51. A Khojá may dispose, by gift made in contemplation of death, of any moveable property which he could dispose of by will.

When gift said to be made in contemplation of death.

A gift is said to be made in contemplation of death where a person who is ill and expects to die shortly of his illness delivers to another the possession of any moveable property to keep as a gift in case the donor shall die of that illness.

Such gift resumable.

Such a gift may be resumed by the giver.

When it fails.

It does not take effect if he recovers from the illness during which it was made, nor if he survives the person to whom it was made.

(b.) A being ill, and in expectation of death, delivers to B, the key of a trunk, or the key of a warehouse in which goods of bulk belonging to A are deposited, with the intention of giving him the control over the contents of the trunk, or over the deposited goods, and desires him to keep them in case of A's death. A dies of the illness during which he delivered these articles. B is entitled to the trunk and its contents, or to A's goods of bulk in the warehouse.

(c.) A being ill, and in expectation of death, puts aside certain articles in separate parcels, and marks upon the parcels respectively the names of B and C. The parcels are not delivered during the life of A. A dies of the illness during which he set aside the parcels. B and C are not entitled to the contents of the parcels.

PORTIONS OF THE INDIAN SUCCESSION ACT (X OF 1865) MODIFIED FOR APPLICATION TO WILLS MADE BY KHOJÁS.

Note.—Modifications are shewn in italics; omissions by asterisks.

PART VII.

Of Wills and Codicils.

Persons capable of making wills.

46. Every person of sound mind and not a minor may dispose of his property by will.

Explanation 1.—A married woman may dispose by will of any property which she could alienate by her own act during her life.

Explanation 2.—Persons who are deaf, or dumb, or blind are not thereby incapacitated for making a will if they are able to know what they do by it.

Explanation 3.—One who is ordinarily insane may make a will during an interval in which he is of sound mind.

Explanation 4.—No person can make a will while he is in such a state of mind, whether arising from drunkenness, or from illness, or from any other cause, that he does not know what he is doing.

Illustrations.

(a.) A can perceive what is going on in his immediate neighbourhood, and can answer familiar questions, but has not a competent understanding as to the nature of his property, or the persons who are of kindred to him, or in whose favour it would be proper that he should make his will. A cannot make a valid will.

(b.) A executes an instrument purporting to be his will, but he does not understand the nature of the instrument nor the effect of its provisions. This instrument is not a valid will.

(c.) A, being very feeble and debilitated, but capable of exercising a judgment as to the proper mode of disposing of his property, makes a will. This is a valid will.

Testamentary guardian.

47. A father, whatever his age may be, may by will appoint a guardian or guardians for his child during minority.

Will obtained by fraud, coercion or importunity.

48. A will or any part of a will, the making of which has been caused by fraud or coercion, or by such importunity as takes away the free agency of the testator, is void.

Illustrations.

(a.) A falsely and knowingly represents to the testator that the testator's only child is dead, or that he has done some undutiful act, and thereby induces the testator to make a will in his, A's, favour; such will has been obtained by fraud and is invalid.

(b.) A by fraud and deception prevails upon the testator to bequeath a legacy to him. The bequest is void.

(c.) A, being a prisoner by lawful authority, makes his will. The will is not invalid by reason of the imprisonment.

(d.) A threatens to shoot B, or to burn his house, or to cause him to be arrested on a criminal charge, unless he makes a bequest in favour of C. B in consequence makes a bequest in favour of C. The bequest is void, the making of it having been caused by coercion.

(e.) A being of sufficient intellect, if undisturbed by the influence of others, to make a will, yet being so much under the control of B that he is not a free agent, makes a will dictated by B. It appears that he would not have executed the will but for fear of B. The will is invalid.

(f.) A, being in so feeble a state of health as to be unable to resist importunity, is pressed by B to make a will of a certain purport, and does so merely to purchase peace, and in submission to B. The will is invalid.

(g.) A being in such a state of health as to be capable of exercising his own judgment and volition, B uses urgent intercession and persuasion with him to induce him to make a will of a certain purport. A, in consequence of the intercession and persuasion, but in the free exercise of his judgment and volition, makes his will in the manner recommended by B. The will is not rendered invalid by the intercession and persuasion of B.

(h.) A, with a view to obtaining a legacy from B, pays him attention and flatters him, and thereby produces in him a capricious partiality to A. B, in consequence of such attention and flattery, makes his will, by which he leaves a legacy to A. The bequest is not rendered invalid by the attention and flattery of A.

Will may be revoked or altered.

49. A will is liable to be revoked or altered by the maker of it at any time when he is competent to dispose of his property by will.

PART VIII.

Of the Execution of Unprivileged Wills.

Execution of unprivileged wills.

50. Every testator, not being a soldier employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or a mariner at sea, must execute his will according to the following rules:—

First.—The testator shall sign or shall affix his mark to the will, or it shall be signed by some other person in his presence and by his direction.

Second.—The signature or mark of the testator, or the signature of the person signing for him, shall be so placed that it shall appear that it was intended thereby to give effect to the writing as a will.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Third.—The will shall be attested by two or more witnesses, each of whom must have seen the testator sign or affix his mark to the will, or have seen some other person sign the will in the presence and by the direction of the testator, or have received from the testator a personal acknowledgment of his signature or mark, or of the signature of such other person; and each of the witnesses must sign or affix his mark to the will in the presence of the testator, but it shall not be necessary that more than one witness be present at the same time, and no particular form of attestation shall be necessary.

Incorporation of papers by reference.

51. If a testator, in a will or codicil duly attested, refers to any other document then actually written, as expressing any part of his intentions, such document shall be considered as forming a part of the will or codicil in which it is referred to.

PART IX.

Of Privileged Wills.

Privileged wills.

52. Any soldier being employed in an expedition, or engaged in actual warfare, or any mariner being at sea, may, if he has completed the age of eighteen years, dispose of his property by a will made as is mentioned in the fifty-third section. Such wills are called privileged wills.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, the surgeon of a regiment, is actually employed in an expedition. He is a soldier actually employed in an expedition, and can make a privileged will.

(b.) A is at sea in a merchant-ship, of which he is the purser. He is a mariner, and being at sea can make a privileged will.

(c.) A, a soldier serving in the field against insurgents, is a soldier engaged in actual warfare, and as such can make a privileged will.

(d.) A, a mariner of a ship in the course of a voyage, is temporarily on shore, while she is lying in harbour. He is, in the sense of the words used in this clause, a mariner at sea, and can make a privileged will.

(e.) A, an admiral who commands a naval force, but who lives on shore, and only occasionally goes on board his ship, is not considered as at sea, and cannot make a privileged will.

(f.) A, a mariner serving on a military expedition, but not being at sea, is considered as a soldier, and can make a privileged will.

Mode of making, and rules for executing, privileged wills.

53. Privileged wills may be in writing, or may be made by word of mouth.

The execution of them shall be governed by the following rules :—

First.—The will may be written wholly by the testator, with his own hand. In such case it need not be signed nor attested.

Second.—It may be written wholly or in part by another person, and signed by the testator. In such case it need not be attested.

Third.—If the instrument purporting to be a will is written wholly or in part by another person, and is not signed by the testator, it shall be considered to be his will, if it be shown that it was written by the testator's directions, or that he recognized it as his will.

If it appear on the face of the instrument that the execution of it in the manner intended by him was not completed, the instrument shall not by reason of that circumstance be invalid, provided that his non-execution of it can be reasonably ascribed to some cause other than the abandonment of the testamentary intentions expressed in the instrument.

Fourth.—If the soldier or mariner shall have written instructions for the preparation of his will, but shall have died before it could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will.

Fifth.—If the soldier or mariner shall, in the presence of two witnesses, have given verbal instructions for the preparation of his will, and they shall have been reduced into writing in his lifetime, but he shall have died before the instrument could be prepared and executed, such instructions shall be considered to constitute his will, although they may not have been reduced into writing in his presence, nor read over to him.

Sixth.—Such soldier or mariner as aforesaid may make a will by word of mouth by declaring his intentions before two witnesses present at the same time.

Seventh.—A will made by word of mouth shall be null at the expiration of one month after the testator shall have ceased to be entitled to make a privileged will.

PART X.

Of the Attestation, Revocation, Alteration and Revival of Wills.

* * * * * * * * *

Witness not disqualified by interest or by being executor.

55. No person, by reason of interest in, or of his being an executor of, a will, is disqualified as a witness to prove the execution of the will or to prove the validity or invalidity thereof.

* * * * * * * * *

Revocation of unprivileged will or codicil.

57. No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, shall be revoked otherwise than * * * * * by another will or codicil, or by some writing declaring an intention to revoke the same, and executed in the manner in which an unprivileged will is hereinbefore required to be executed, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Illustrations.

(a.) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards A makes another unprivileged will which purports to revoke the first. This is a revocation.

(b.) A has made an unprivileged will. Afterwards, A being entitled to make a privileged will, makes a privileged will which purports to revoke his unprivileged will. This is a revocation.

Effect of obliteration, interlineation or alteration in unprivileged will.

58. No obliteration, interlineation or other alteration made in any unprivileged will after the execution thereof shall have any effect, except so far as the words or meaning of the will shall have been thereby rendered illegible or undiscernible, unless such alteration shall be executed in like manner as hereinbefore is required for the execution of the will; save that the will,

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

as so altered, shall be deemed to be duly executed if the signature of the testator and the subscription of the witnesses be made in the margin or on some other part of the will opposite or near to such alteration, or at the foot or end of or opposite to a memorandum referring to such alteration, and written at the end or some other part of the will.

Revocation of privileged will or codicil

59. A privileged will or codicil may be revoked by the testator, by an unprivileged will or codicil, or by any act expressing an intention to revoke it, and accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, or by the burning, tearing or otherwise destroying the same by the testator, or by some person in his presence and by his direction, with the intention of revoking the same.

Explanation.—In order to the revocation of a privileged will or codicil by an act accompanied with such formalities as would be sufficient to give validity to a privileged will, it is not necessary that the testator should at the time of doing that act be in a situation which entitles him to make a privileged will.

Revival of unprivileged will.

60. No unprivileged will or codicil, nor any part thereof, which shall be in any manner revoked, shall be revived otherwise than by the re-execution thereof, or by a codicil executed in manner hereinbefore required, and showing an intention to revive the same;

Extent of revival of will or codicil partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked.

and when any will or codicil which shall be partly revoked and afterwards wholly revoked shall be revived, such revival shall not extend to so much thereof as shall have been revoked before the revocation of the whole thereof, unless an intention to the contrary shall be shown by the will or codicil.

PART XI.

Of the Construction of Wills.

Wording of will

Enquiries to determine questions as to object or subject of will.

62. For the purpose of determining questions as to what person or what property is denoted by any words used in a will, a Court must inquire into every material fact relating to the persons who claim to be interested under such will, the property which is claimed as the subject of disposition, the circumstances of the testator and of his family, and into every fact a knowledge of which may conduce to the right application of the words which the testator has used.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, by his will, bequeaths 1,000 rupees to his eldest son or to his youngest grandchild, or to his cousin Mary. A Court may make inquiry in order to ascertain to what person the description in the will applies.

(b.) A, by his will, leaves to B "his estate called Black Acre." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what is the subject-matter of the bequest; that is to say, what estate of the testator's is called Black Acre.

(c.) A, by his will, leaves to B "the estate which he purchased of C." It may be necessary to take evidence in order to ascertain what estate the testator purchased of C.

Misnomer or misdescription of object.

63. Where the words used in the will to designate or describe a legatee, or a class of legatees, sufficiently show what is meant, an error in the name or description shall not prevent the legacy from taking effect.

A mistake in the name of a legatee may be corrected by a description of him, and a mistake in the description of a legatee may be corrected by the name.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother, named John, who has no son named Thomas, but has a second son whose name is William. William shall have the legacy.

(b.) A bequeaths a legacy "to Thomas, the second son of his brother John." The testator has an only brother named John, whose first son is named Thomas, and whose second son is named William. Thomas shall have the legacy.

(c.) The testator bequeaths his property "to A and B, the legitimate children of C." C has no legitimate child, but has two illegitimate children, A and B. The bequest to A and B takes effect, although they are illegitimate.

(d.) The testator gives his residuary estate to be divided among "his seven children," and proceeding to enumerate them, mentions six names only. This omission shall not prevent the seventh child from taking a share with the others.

(e.) The testator, having six grand-children, makes a bequest to "his six grand-children," and proceeding to mention them by their Christian names, mentions one twice over, omitting another altogether. The one whose name is not mentioned shall take a share with the others.

(f.) The testator bequeaths "1,000 rupees to each of the three children of A." At the date of the will A has four children. Each of these four children shall, if he survives the testator, receive a legacy of 1,000 rupees.

When words may be supplied

64. Where any word material to the full expression of the meaning has been omitted, it may be supplied by the context.

Illustration.

The testator gives a legacy of "five hundred" to his daughter A, and a legacy of "five hundred rupees" to his daughter B. A shall take a legacy of five hundred rupees.

Rejection of erroneous particulars in description of subject.

65. If the thing which the testator intended to bequeath can be sufficiently identified from the description of it given in the will, but some parts of the description do not apply, such parts of the description shall be rejected as erroneous and the bequest shall take effect.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, but had no marsh-lands in the occupation of X. The words "in the occupation of X" shall be rejected as erroneous, and the marsh-lands of the testator lying in L shall pass by the bequest.

(b.) The testator bequeaths to A "his zamíndárí of Rámpúr." He had an estate at Rámpúr, but it was a taluq and not a zamíndárí. The taluq passes by this bequest.

When part of description may not be rejected as erroneous.

66. If the will mentions several circumstances as descriptive of the thing which the testator intends to bequeath, and there is any property of his in respect of which all those circumstances exist, the bequest shall be considered as limited to such property, and it shall not be lawful to reject any part of the description as erroneous, because the testator had other property to which such part of the description does not apply.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Explanation.—In judging whether a case falls within the meaning of this section, any words which would be liable to rejection under the sixty-fifth section are to be considered as struck out of the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The bequest shall be considered as limited to such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X.

(b.) A bequeaths to B "his marsh-lands lying in L, and in the occupation of X, comprising 1,000 bighás of land." The testator had marsh-lands lying in L, some of which were in the occupation of X, and some not in the occupation of X. The measurement is wholly inapplicable to the marsh lands of either class, or to the whole taken together. The measurement shall be considered as struck out of the will, and such of the testator's marsh-lands lying in L as were in the occupation of X shall alone pass by the bequest.

Extrinsic evidence admissible in case of latent ambiguity.

67. Where the words of the will are unambiguous, but it is found by extrinsic evidence that they admit of applications one only of which can have been intended by the testator, extrinsic evidence may be taken to show which of these applications was intended.

Illustrations.

(a.) A man, having two cousins of the name of Mary, bequeaths a sum of money to "his cousin Mary." It appears that there are two persons each answering the description in the will. That description, therefore, admits of two applications, only one of which can have been intended by the testator. Evidence is admissible to show which of the two applications was intended.

(b.) A, by his will, leaves to B "his estate called Sultánpur Khurd." It turns out that he had two estates called Sultánpur Khurd. Evidence is admissible to show which estate was intended.

Extrinsic evidence inadmissible in cases of patent ambiguity or deficiency.

68. Where there is an ambiguity or deficiency on the face of the will, no extrinsic evidence as to the intentions of the testator shall be admitted.

Illustrations.

(a.) A man has an aunt Caroline and a cousin Mary, and has no aunt of the name of Mary. By his will he bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "his aunt Caroline" and 1,000 rupees to "his cousin Mary," and afterwards bequeaths 2,000 rupees to "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." There is no person to whom the description given in the will can apply, and evidence is not admissible to show who was meant by "his before-mentioned aunt Mary." The bequest is therefore void for uncertainty under the seventy-sixth section.

(b.) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to , leaving a blank for the name of the legatee. Evidence is not admissible to show what name the testator intended to insert.

(c.) A bequeaths to B rupees, or "his estate of ." Evidence is not admissible to show what sum or what estate the testator intended to insert.

Meaning of clause to be collected from entire will.

69. The meaning of any clause in a will is to be collected from the entire instrument, and all its parts are to be construed with reference to each other; and for this purpose a codicil is to be considered as part of the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator gives to B a specific fund or property at the date of A, and by a subsequent clause gives the whole of his property to A. The effect of the several clauses taken together is to vest the specific fund or property in A for life and after his decease in B; it appearing from the bequest to B that the testator meant to use in a restricted sense the words in which he describes what he gives to A.

(b.) Where a testator, having an estate one part of which is called Black Acre, bequeaths the whole of his estate to A, and in another part of his will bequeaths Black Acre to B, the latter bequest is to be read as an exception out of the first, as if he had said, "I give Black Acre to B and all the rest of my estate to A."

When words may be understood in restricted sense, and when in sense wider than usual.

70. General words may be understood in a restricted sense where it may be collected from the will that the testator meant to use them in a restricted sense; and words may be understood in a wider sense than that which they usually bear, where it may be collected from the other words of the will that the testator meant to use them in such wider sense.

Illustrations.

(a.) A testator gives to A "his farm in the occupation of B," and to C "all his marsh-lands in L." Part of the farm in the occupation of B consists of marsh-lands in L, and the testator also has other marsh-lands in L. The general words, "all his marsh-lands in L," are restricted by the gift to A. A takes the whole of the farm in the occupation of B, including that portion of the farm which consists of marsh-lands in L.

(b.) The testator (a sailor on ship-board) bequeathed to his mother his gold ring, buttons and chest of clothes, and to his friend A (a shipmate) his red box, clasp-knife and all things not before bequeathed. The testator's share in a house does not pass to A under this bequest.

(c.) A, by his will, bequeathed to B all his household furniture, plate, linen, china, books, pictures and all other goods of whatever kind; and afterwards bequeathed to B a specified part of his property. Under the first bequest, B is entitled only to such articles of the testator's as are of the same nature with the articles therein enumerated.

Which of two possible constructions preferred.

71. Where a clause is susceptible of two meanings, according to one of which it has some effect, and according to the other it can have none, the former is to be preferred.

No part rejected, if it can be reasonably construed.

72. No part of a will is to be rejected as destitute of meaning if it is possible to put a reasonable construction upon it.

Interpretation of words repeated in different parts of will.

73. If the same words occur in different parts of the same will, they must be taken to have been used everywhere in the same sense, unless there appears an intention to the contrary.

Testator's intention to be effectuated as far as possible.

74. The intention of the testator is not to be set aside because it cannot take effect to the full extent, but effect is to be given to it as far as possible.

* * * * * *

The last of two inconsistent clauses prevails.

75. Where two clauses or gifts in a will are irreconcileable, so that they cannot possibly stand together, the last shall prevail.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator by the first clause of his will leaves his estate of Rámnagar "to A," and by the last clause of his will leaves it "to B and not to A." B shall have it.

(b.) If a man at the commencement of his will gives his house to A, and at the close of it directs that his house shall be sold and the proceeds invested for the benefit of B, the latter disposition shall prevail.

Will or bequest void for uncertainty.

76. A will or bequest not expressive of any definite intention is void for uncertainty.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

Illustration.

If a testator says—"I bequeath goods to A"; or "I bequeath to A"; or "I leave to A all the goods mentioned in a schedule," and no schedule is found; or "I bequeath money,' 'wheat,' 'oil,' "or the like, without saying how much, this is void.

77. The description contained in a will, of property the subject of gift, shall, unless a contrary intention appear by the will, be deemed to refer to and comprise the property answering that description at the death of the testator.

Words describing subject refer to property answering description at testator's death.

* * * * * *

82. Where property is bequeathed to any person, he is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless it appears from the will that only a restricted interest was intended for him.

Request without words of limitation.

83. Where property is bequeathed to a person with a bequest in the alternative to another person or to a class of persons, if a contrary intention does not appear by the will, the legatee first named shall be entitled to the legacy, if he be alive at the time when it takes effect; but if he be then dead, the person or class of persons named in the second branch of the alternative shall take the legacy.

Bequest in alternative.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequest is made to A or to B. A survives the testator. B takes nothing.

(b.) A bequest is made to A or to B. A dies after the date of the will, and before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(c.) A bequest is made to A or to B. A is dead at the date of the will. The legacy goes to B.

(d.) Property is bequeathed to A or his heirs. A survives the testator. A takes the property absolutely.

(e.) Property is bequeathed to A or his nearest of kin. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. Upon the death of the testator, the bequest to A's nearest of kin takes effect.

* * * * * *

84. Where property is bequeathed to a person, and words are added which describe a class of persons, but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole interest of the testator therein, unless a contrary intention appears by the will.

Effect of words describing a class added to bequest to a person.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequest is made—

to A and his children,
to A and his children by his present wife,
to A and his heirs,
to A and the heirs of his body,
to A and the heirs male of his body,
to A and the heirs female of his body,
to A and his issue,
to A and his family,
to A and his descendants,
to A and his representatives,
to A and his personal representatives,
to A, his executors and administators.

In each of these cases, A takes the whole interest which the testator had in the property.

(b.) A bequest is made to A and his brothers. A and his brothers are jointly entitled to the legacy.

* * * * * *

85. Where a bequest is made to a class of persons under a general description only, no one to whom the words of the description are not in their ordinary sense applicable shall take the legacy.

Bequest to class of persons under general description only.

* * * * * *

88. Where a will purports to make two bequests to the same person, and a question arises whether the testator intended to make the second bequest instead of or in addition to the first, if there is nothing in the will to show what he intended, the following rules shall prevail in determining the construction to be put upon the will:—

Rules of construction where will purports to make two bequests to same person.

First.—If the same specific thing is bequeathed twice to the same legatee in the same will, or in the will and again in a codicil, he is entitled to receive that specific thing only.

Second.—Where one and the same will or one and the same codicil purports to make, in two places, a bequest to the same person of the same quantity or amount of anything, he shall be entitled to one such legacy only.

Third.—Where two legacies of unequal amount are given to the same person in the same will, or in the same codicil, the legatee is entitled to both.

Fourth.—Where two legacies, whether equal or unequal in amount, are given to the same legatee, one by a will and the other by a codicil, or each by a different codicil, the legatee is entitled to both legacies.

Explanation.—In the four last rules, the word "will" does not include a codicil.

Illustrations.

(a.) A having ten shares, and no more, in the Bank of Bengal, made his will, which contains near its commencement the words "I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." After other bequests, the will concludes with the words "and I bequeath my ten shares in the Bank of Bengal to B." B is entitled simply to receive A's ten shares in the Bank of Bengal.

(b.) A having one diamond-ring, which was given him by B, bequeathed to C the diamond-ring which was given him by B. A afterwards made a codicil to his will, and thereby, after giving other legacies, he bequeathed to C the diamond-ring which was given him by B. C can claim nothing except the diamond-ring which was given to A by B.

(c.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees, and afterwards, in the same will, repeats the bequest in the same words. B is entitled to one legacy of 5,000 rupees only.

(d.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees, and afterwards, by the same will, bequeaths to B the sum of 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to 11,000 rupees.

(e.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees, and by a codicil to the will he bequeaths to him 5,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees.

(f.) A, by one codicil to his will, bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees, and by another codicil, bequeaths to him 6,000 rupees. B is entitled to receive 11,000 rupees.

(g.) A, by his will, bequeaths "500 rupees to B because she was his nurse," and in another part of the will bequeaths 500 rupees to B "because she went to England with his children." B is entitled to receive 1,000 rupees.

(h.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also, in another part of the will, an annuity of 400 rupees. B is entitled to both legacies.

(i.) A, by his will, bequeaths to B the sum of 5,000 rupees and also bequeaths to him the sum of 5,000 rupees if he shall attain the age of 18. B is entitled absolutely to one sum of 5,000 rupees, and take a contingent interest in another sum of 5,000 rupees.

89. A residuary legatee may be constituted by any words that show an intention on the part of the testator that the person designated shall take the surplus or residue of his property.

Constitution of residuary legatee.

(a.) A makes her will, consisting of several testamentary papers, in one of which are contained the following words:—"I think there will be something left, after all funeral expenses, &c., to give to B, now at school, towards equipping him to any profession he may hereafter be appointed to." B is constituted residuary legatee.

(b.) A makes his will, with the following passage at the end of it:—"I believe there will be found sufficient in my banker's hands to defray and discharge my debts, which I hereby desire B to do, and keep the residue for her own use and pleasure." B is constituted the residuary legatee.

(c.) A bequeaths all his property to B, except certain stocks and funds, which he bequeaths to C. B is the residuary legatee.

90. Under a residuary bequest, the legatee is entitled to all property belonging to the testator at the time of his death, of which he has not made any other testamentary disposition which is capable of taking effect.

Property to which residuary legatee entitled.

91. If a legacy be given in general terms, without specifying the time when it is to be paid, the legatee has a vested interest in it from the day of the death of the testator, and, if he dies without having received it, it shall pass to his representatives.

Time of vesting of legacy in general terms.

92. If the legatee does not survive the testator, the legacy cannot take effect, but shall lapse and form part of the residue of the testator's property, unless it appear by the will that the testator intended that it should go to some other person.

In what case legacy lapses.

In order to entitle the representatives of the legatee to receive the legacy, it must be proved that he survived the testator.

Illustrations.

(a.) The testator bequeaths to B "500 rupees which B owes him." B dies before the testator; the legacy lapses.

(b.) A bequest is made to A and his children. A dies before the testator or happens to be dead when the will is made. The legacy to A and his children lapses.

(c.) A legacy is given to A, and in case of his dying before the testator, to B. A dies before the testator. The legacy goes to B.

(d.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. A dies in the lifetime of the testator. B survives the testator. The bequest to B takes effect.

(e.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A on his completing his eighteenth year, and in case he should die before he completes his eighteenth year, to B. A completes his eighteenth year, and dies in the lifetime of the testator. The legacy to A lapses, and the bequest to B does not take effect.

(f.) The testator and the legatee perished in the same shipwreck. There is no evidence to show which died first. The legacy will lapse.

93. If a legacy be given to two persons jointly, and one of them die before the testator, the other legatee takes the whole.

Legacy does not lapse if one of two joint legatees die before testator.

Illustration.

A legacy is simply to A and B. A dies before the testator. B takes the legacy.

94. But where a legacy is given to legatees in words which show that the testator intended to give them distinct shares of it, then if any legatee die before the testator, so much of the legacy as was intended for him shall fall into the residue of the testator's property.

Effect of words showing testator's intention to give distinct shares.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed to A, B and C, to be equally divided among them. A dies before the testator. B and C shall only take so much as they would have had if A had survived the testator.

95. Where the share that lapses is a part of the general residue bequeathed by the will, that share shall go as undisposed of.

When lapsed share goes as undisposed of.

Illustration.

The testator bequeaths the residue of his estate to A, B and C, to be equally divided between them. A dies before the testator. His one-third of the residue goes as undisposed of.

96. Where a bequest shall have been made to any son or other legitimate lineal male descendant of the testator, and the legatee shall die in the lifetime of the testator, but any legitimate lineal male descendant of his shall survive the testator, the bequest shall not lapse, but shall take effect as if the death of the legatee had happened immediately after the death of the testator, unless a contrary intention shall appear by the will.

When bequest to testator's lineal descendant does not lapse on his death in testator's lifetime.

Illustration.

A makes his will, by which he bequeaths a sum of money to his son B for his own absolute use and benefit. B dies before A, leaving a son C who survives A, and having made his will whereby he bequeaths all his property to his widow D. The money goes to D.

97. Where a bequest is made to one person for the benefit of another, the legacy does not lapse by the death, in the testator's lifetime, of the person to whom the bequest is made.

Bequest to A for benefit of B does not lapse by A's death.

98. Where a bequest is made simply to a described class of persons, the thing bequeathed shall go only to such as shall be alive at the testator's death.

Survivorship in case of bequest to described class.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths 1,000 rupees to "the children of B" without saying when it is to be distributed among them. B had died previous to the date of the will, leaving three children, C, D and E. E died after the date of the will, but for the death of A, C and D survive A. The legacy shall belong to C and D, to the exclusion of the representatives of E.

(b.) A bequeaths a legacy to the children of B. At the time of the testator's death, B has no children. The bequest is void.

PART XII.

OF VOID BEQUESTS.

99. Where a bequest is made to a person by a particular description, and there is no person in existence at the testator's death who answers the description, the bequest is void.

Bequest to person by particular description, who is not in existence at testator's death.

101. No bequest is valid whereby the vesting of the thing bequeathed may be delayed beyond the lifetime of one or more persons living at the testator's decease.

Rule against perpetuity.

* * * * * *

102. If a bequest is made to a class of persons, with regard to some of whom it is inoperative by reason of the rules contained in the last preceding section, such bequest shall be wholly void.

Bequest to a class, some of whom may come under rules in section 101.

* * * * * *

Bequest to take effect on failure of bequest void under section 101 or 102.

* * * * * *

104. A direction to accumulate the income arising from any property shall be void; and the property shall be disposed of as if no accumulation had been directed.

Effect of direction for accumulation.

Exception.—Where the property is immoveable, or where accumulation is directed to be made from the death of the testator, the direction shall be valid in respect only of the income arising from the property within one year next following the testator's death;

and at the end of the year such property and income shall be disposed of respectively, as if the period during which the accumulation has been directed to be made had elapsed.

Illustrations.

(a.) The will directs that the sum of 10,000 rupees shall be invested in Government-securities, and the income accumulated for 20 years, and that the principal, together with the accumulations, shall then be divided between A, B and C. A, B and C are entitled to receive the sum of 10,000 rupees at the end of the year from the testator's death.

(b.) The will directs that 10,000 rupees shall be invested and the income accumulated until A shall marry, and shall then be paid to him. A is entitled to receive 10,000 rupees at the end of a year from the testator's death.

(c.) The will directs that the rents of the farm of Sultánpur shall be accumulated for ten years, and that the accumulation shall be then paid to the eldest son of A. At the death of the testator, A has an eldest son living, named B. B shall receive at the end of one year from the testator's death the rents which have accrued during the year, together with any interest which may have been made by investing them.

* * * * *

(e.) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, to be paid to him when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs the interest to be accumulated till he shall arrive at that age. At A's death the legacy becomes vested in B; and so much of the interest as is not required for his maintenance and education is accumulated, not by reason of the direction contained in the will, but in consequence of B's minority.

PART XIII.

OF THE VESTING OF LEGACIES.

106. Where by the terms of a bequest the legatee is not entitled to immediate possession of the thing bequeathed, a right to receive it at the proper time shall, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, become vested in the legatee on the testator's death, and shall pass to the legatee's representatives if he dies before that time and without having received the legacy.

Date of vesting of legacy when payment or possession postponed.

And in such cases the legacy is from the testator's death said to be vested in interest.

Explanation.—An intention that a legacy to any person shall not become vested in interest in him is not to be inferred merely from a provision whereby the payment or possession of the thing bequeathed is postponed, or whereby a prior interest therein is bequeathed to some other person, or whereby the income arising from the fund bequeathed is directed to be accumulated until the time of payment arrives, or from a provision that, if a particular event shall happen, the legacy shall go over to another person.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him at the death of C. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B, and if he dies before C, his representatives are entitled to the legacy.

(b.) A bequeaths to B 100 rupees, to be paid to him upon his attaining the age of 18. On A's death the legacy becomes vested in interest in B.

(c.) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B. On the testator's death the legacy to B becomes vested in interest in B.

(d.) A fund is bequeathed to A until B attains the age of 18, and then to B. The legacy to B is vested in interest from the testator's death.

(e.) A bequeaths the whole of his property to B upon trust to pay certain debts out of the income, and then to make over the fund to C. At A's death the gift to C becomes vested in interest in him.

(f.) A fund is bequeathed to A, B and C in equal shares, to be paid to them on their attaining the age of 18 respectively, with a proviso that, if all of them die under the age of 18, the legacy shall devolve upon D. On the death of the testator, the shares vest in interest in A, B and C, subject to be devested in case A, B and C shall all die under 18, and upon the death of any of them (except the last survivor) under the age of 18, his vested interest passes, so subject, to his representatives.

107. A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall happen does not vest until that event happens.

Date of vesting when legacy contingent upon specified uncertain event.

A legacy bequeathed in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen does not vest until the happening of that event becomes impossible.

In either case, until the condition has been fulfilled, the interest of the legatee is called contingent.

Exception.—Where a fund is bequeathed to any person upon his attaining a particular age, and the will also gives to him absolutely the income to arise from the fund before he reaches that age, or directs the income, or so much of it as may be necessary, to be applied for his benefit, the bequest of the fund is not contingent.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to D in case A, B and C shall all die under the age of 18. D has a contingent interest in the legacy until A, B and C all die under 18, or one of them attains that age.

(b.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A "in case he shall attain the age of 18," or, "when he shall attain the age of 18." A's interest in the legacy is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by his attaining that age.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall then be living; but if B shall not be then living, to C. A, B and C survive the testator. B and C each take a contingent interest in the estate until the event which is to vest it in one or in the other shall have happened.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

(d.) An estate is bequeathed as in the case last supposed. B dies in the lifetime of A and C. Upon the death of B, C acquires a vested right to obtain possession of the estate upon A's death.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A when she shall attain the age of 18, or shall marry under that age with the consent of B, with a proviso that, if she shall not attain 18, or marry under that age with B's consent, the legacy shall go to C. A and C each take a contingent interest in the legacy. A attains the age of 18. A becomes absolutely entitled to the legacy, although she may have married under 18 without the consent of B.

(f.) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall marry, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until the condition shall be fulfilled by A's marrying.

(g.) An estate is bequeathed to A until he shall take advantage of the Act for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors, and after that event to B. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until A takes advantage of the Act.

(h.) An estate is bequeathed to A if he shall pay 500 rupees to B. A's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has paid 500 rupees to B.

(i.) A leaves his farm of Sultánpur Khurd to B, if B shall convey his own farm of Sultánpur Buzurg to C. B's interest in the bequest is contingent until he has conveyed the latter farm to C.

(j.) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not marry C within five years after the testator's death. A's interest in the legacy is contingent, until the condition shall be fulfilled by the expiration of the five years without B's having married C, or by the occurrence, within that period, of an event which makes the fulfilment of the condition impossible.

(k.) A fund is bequeathed to A if B shall not make any provision for him by will. The legacy is contingent until B's death.

(l.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees a year upon his attaining the age of 18, and directs that the interest, or a competent part thereof, shall be applied for his benefit until he reaches that age. The legacy is vested.

(m.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees when he shall attain the age of 18, and directs that a certain sum, out of another fund, shall be applied for his maintenance until he arrives at that age. The legacy is contingent.

Vesting of interest in bequest to such members of a class as shall have attained particular age.

108. Where a bequest is made only to such members of a class as shall have attained a particular age, a person who has not attained that age cannot have a vested interest in the legacy.

PART XIV.

OF ONEROUS BEQUESTS.

Onerous bequest.

109. Where a bequest imposes an obligation on the legatee, he can take nothing by it unless he accepts it fully.

Illustration.

A having shares in (X), a prosperous joint stock company, and also shares in (Y), a joint stock company in difficulties, in respect of which shares heavy calls are expected to be made, bequeaths to B all his shares in joint stock companies. B refuses to accept the shares in (Y). He forfeits the shares in (X).

One of two separate and independent bequests to same person may be accepted, and other refused.

110. Where a will contains two separate and independent bequests to the same person, the legatee is at liberty to accept one of them and refuse the other, although the former may be beneficial and the latter onerous.

Illustration.

A having a lease for a term of years of a house at a rent which he and his representatives are bound to pay during the term, and which is higher than the house can be let for, bequeaths to B the lease and a sum of money. B refuses to accept the lease. He shall not by this refusal forfeit the money.

PART XV.

OF CONTINGENT BEQUESTS.

Bequest contingent upon specified uncertain event, no time being mentioned for its occurrence.

111. Where a legacy is given if a specified uncertain event shall happen, and no time is mentioned in the will for the occurrence of that event, the legacy cannot take effect unless such event happens before the period when the fund bequeathed is payable or distributable.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death, to B. If A survives the testator, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, and in case of his death without children, to B. If A survives the testator or dies in his lifetime leaving a child, the legacy to B does not take effect.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A when and if he attains the age of 18, and in case of his death, to B. A attains the age of 18. The legacy to B does not take effect.

(d.) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life and after his death to B, and, "in case of B's death without children," to C. The words "in case of B's death without children" are to be understood as meaning in case B shall die without children during the lifetime of A.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, and, "in case of B's death," to C. The words "in case of B's death" are to be considered as meaning "in case B shall die in the lifetime of A."

Bequest to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period not specified.

112. Where a bequest is made to such of certain persons as shall be surviving at some period but the exact period is not specified, the legacy shall go to such of them as shall be alive at the time of payment or distribution, unless a contrary intention appear by the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) Property is bequeathed to A and B, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. If both A and B survive the testator, the legacy is equally divided between them. If A dies before the testator, and B survives the testator, it goes to B.

(b.) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, to be equally divided between them, or to the survivor of them. B dies during the life of A; C survives A. At A's death the legacy goes to C.

* * * * *

(d.) Property is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B and C, with a direction that, in case either of them dies in the lifetime of A, the whole shall go to the survivor. B dies in the lifetime of A. Afterwards C dies in the lifetime of A. The legacy goes to the representative of C.

PART XVI.

OF CONDITIONAL BEQUESTS.

Bequest upon impossible condition.

113. A bequest upon an impossible condition is void.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall walk one hundred miles in an hour. The bequest is void.

(b.) A bequeaths 500 rupees to B on condition that he shall marry A's daughter. A's daughter was dead at the date of the will. The bequest is void.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

114. A bequest upon a condition the fulfilment of which would be contrary to law or to morality is void.

Bequest upon illegal or immoral condition.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths 500 rupees to B on condition that he shall murder C. The bequest is void.

(b.) A bequeaths 5,000 rupees to his niece if she will desert her husband. The bequest is void.

115. Where a will imposes a condition to be fulfilled before the legatee can take a vested interest in the thing bequeathed, the condition shall be considered to have been fulfilled if it has been substantially complied with.

Fulfilment of condition precedent to vesting of legacy.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C, D and E. A marries with the written consent of B. C is present at the marriage. D sends a present to A previous to the marriage. E has been personally informed by A of his intentions, and has made no objection. A has fulfilled the condition.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. D dies. A marries with the consent of B and C. A has fulfilled the condition.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries in the lifetime of B, C and D, with the consent of B and C only. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(d.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A obtains the unconditional assent of B, C and D to his marriage with E. Afterwards B, C and D capriciously retract their consent. A marries E. A has fulfilled the condition.

(e.) A legacy is bequeathed to A on condition that he shall marry with the consent of B, C and D. A marries without the consent of B, C and D, but obtains their consent after the marriage. A has not fulfilled the condition.

(f.) A makes his will, whereby he bequeaths a sum of money to B if B shall marry with the consent of A's executors. B marries during the lifetime of A, and A afterwards expresses his approbation of the marriage. A dies. The bequest to B takes effect.

(g.) A legacy is bequeathed to A if he executes a certain document within a time specified in the will. The document is executed by A within a reasonable time, but not within the time specified in the will. A has not performed the condition, and is not entitled to receive the legacy.

116. Where there is a bequest to one person and a bequest of the same thing to another, if the prior bequest shall fail, the second bequest shall take effect upon the failure of the prior bequest, although the failure may not have occurred in the manner contemplated by the testator.

Bequest to A and on failure of prior bequest, to B.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths a sum of money to his own children surviving him, and if they all die under 18, to B. A dies without having ever had a child. The bequest to B takes effect.

(b.) A bequeaths a sum of money to B, on condition that he shall execute a certain document within three months after A's death, and if he should neglect to do so, to C. B dies in the testator's lifetime. The bequest to C takes effect.

117. Where the will shows an intention that the second bequest shall take effect only in the event of the first bequest failing in a particular manner, the second bequest shall not take effect unless the prior bequest fails in that particular manner.

When second bequest not to take effect on failure of first.

Illustration.

A makes a bequest to his wife, but in case she should die in his lifetime, bequeaths to B that which he had bequeathed to her. A and his wife perish together, under circumstances which make it impossible to prove that she died before him. The bequest to B does not take effect.

118. A bequest may be made to any person with the condition superadded that in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, the thing bequeathed shall go to another person; or, that in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen, the thing bequeathed shall go over to another person.

In each case the ulterior bequest is subject to the rules contained in sections 107, 108, 109, 110, 111, 112, 113, 114, 116, 117.

Bequest over, conditional upon happening or not happening of specified uncertain event.

Illustrations.

(a.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A, to be paid to him at the age of 18, and if he shall die before he attains that age, to B. A takes a vested interest in the legacy, subject to be devested and to go to B in case A shall die under 18.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A with a proviso that, if A shall dispute the competency of the testator to make a will, the estate shall go to B. A disputes the competency of the testator to make a will. The estate goes to B.

* * * * *

(d.) A sum of money is bequeathed to A and B, and if either should die during the life of C, then to the survivor living at the death of C. A and B die before C. The gift over cannot take effect, but the representative of A takes one-half of the money and the representative of B takes the other half.

(e.) A bequeaths to B the interest of a fund for life, and directs the fund to be divided, at her death, equally among her three children, or such of them as shall be living at her death. All the children of B die in B's lifetime. The bequest over cannot take effect, but the interests of the children pass to their representatives.

119. An ulterior bequest of the kind contemplated by the last preceding section cannot take effect unless the condition is strictly fulfilled.

Condition must be strictly fulfilled.

Illustrations.

(a.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, C and D, the legacy shall go to E. D dies. Even if A marries without the consent of B and C, the gift to E does not take effect.

(b.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if he marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries with the consent of B. He afterwards becomes a widower and marries again without the consent of B. The bequest to C does not take effect.

(c.) A legacy is bequeathed to A, to be paid at 18, or marriage, with a proviso that, if A dies under 18, or marries without the consent of B, the legacy shall go to C. A marries under 18, without the consent of B. The bequest to C takes effect.

120. If the ulterior bequest be not valid, the original bequest is not affected by it.

Original bequest not affected by invalidity of second.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life, with a condition superadded that if he shall not on a given day walk 100 miles in an hour, the estate shall go to B. The condition being void, A retains his estate as if no condition had been inserted in the will.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A for her life, and if she do not desert her husband, to B. A is entitled to the estate during her life as if no condition had been inserted in the will.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A for life, and, if he marries, to the eldest son of B for life. B, at the date of the testator's death, had not had a son. The bequest over is void under section 92, and A is entitled to the estate during his life.

121. A bequest may be made with the condition superadded that it shall cease to have effect in case a specified uncertain event shall happen, or in case a specified uncertain event shall not happen.

Bequest conditioned that it shall cease to have effect in case specified uncertain event shall happen or not happen.

Illustrations.

(a.) An estate is bequeathed to A for his life, with a proviso that, in case he shall cut down a certain wood, the bequest shall cease to have any effect. A cuts down the wood; he loses his life-interest in the estate.

(b.) An estate is bequeathed to A, provided that, if he marries under the age of 25 without the consent of the executors named in the will, the estate shall cease to belong to him. A marries under 25 without the consent of the executors. The estate ceases to belong to him.

(c.) An estate is bequeathed to A, provided that, if he shall not go to England within three years after the testator's death, his interest in the estate shall cease. A does not go to England within the time prescribed. His interest in the estate ceases.

(d.) An estate is bequeathed to A, with a proviso that, if she becomes a nun, she shall cease to have any interest in the estate. A becomes a nun. She loses her interest under the will.

(e.) A fund is bequeathed to A for life, and after his death to B, if B shall be then living, with a proviso that, if B shall become a nun, the bequest to her shall cease to have any effect. B becomes a nun in the lifetime of A. She thereby loses her contingent interest in the fund.

122. In order that a condition that a bequest shall cease to have effect may be valid, it is necessary that the event to which it relates be one which could legally constitute the condition of a bequest as contemplated by the one hundred and seventh section.

Such condition must not be invalid under section 107.

123. Where a bequest is made with a condition superadded that, unless the legatee shall perform a certain act, the subject-matter of the bequest shall go to another person, or the bequest shall cease to have effect, but no time is specified for the performance of the act, if the legatee takes any step which renders impossible or indefinitely postpones the performance of the act required, the legacy shall go as if the legatee had died without performing such act.

Result of legatee rendering impossible or indefinitely postponing act for which no time specified and on non-performance of which subject-matter to go over.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequest is made to A with a proviso that, unless he enters the army, the legacy shall go over to B. A takes holy orders, and thereby renders it impossible that he should fulfil the condition. B is entitled to receive the legacy.

(b.) A bequest is made to A with a proviso that it shall cease to have any effect if he does not marry B's daughter. A marries a stranger, and thereby indefinitely postpones the fulfilment of the condition. The bequest ceases to have effect.

124. Where the will requires an act to be performed by the legatee within a specified time, either as a condition to be fulfilled before the legacy is enjoyed or as a condition upon the non-fulfilment of which the subject-matter of the bequest is to go over to another person, or the bequest is to cease to have effect, the act must be performed within the time specified, unless the performance of it be prevented by fraud, in which case such further time shall be allowed as shall be requisite to make up for the delay caused by such fraud.

Performance of condition, precedent or subsequent, within specified time.

Further time in case of fraud.

PART XVII.

Of Bequests with directions as to application or enjoyment.

125. Where a fund is bequeathed absolutely to or for the benefit of any person, but the will contains a direction that it shall be applied or enjoyed in a particular manner, the legatee shall be entitled to receive the fund as if the will had contained no such direction.

Direction that funds be employed in particular manner following absolute bequest of same to or for benefit of any person.

Illustration.

A sum of money is bequeathed towards purchasing a country-residence for A, or to purchase an annuity for A, or to purchase a commission in the army for A, or to place A in any business. A chooses to receive the legacy in money. He is entitled to do so.

126. Where a testator absolutely bequeaths a fund, so as to sever it from his own estate, but directs that the mode of enjoyment of it by the legatee shall be restricted so as to secure a specified benefit for the legatee; if that benefit cannot be obtained for the legatee, the fund belongs to him as if the will had contained no such direction.

Direction that mode of enjoyment of absolute bequest is to be restricted, to secure specified benefit for legatee.

* * * * * *

127. Where a testator does not absolutely bequeath a fund so as to sever it from his own estate, but gives it for certain purposes and part of those purposes cannot be fulfilled, the fund, or so much of it as has not been exhausted upon the objects contemplated by the will, remains a part of the estate of the testator.

Bequest of fund for certain purposes, some of which cannot be fulfilled.

PART XVIII.

Of Bequests to an Executor.

128. If a legacy is bequeathed to a person who is named an executor of the will, he shall not take the legacy unless he proves the will or otherwise manifests an intention to act as executor.

Legatee named as executor cannot take unless he shews intention to act as executor.

Illustration.

A legacy is given to A, who is named an executor. A orders the funeral according to the directions contained in the will, and dies a few days after the testator, without having proved the will. A has manifested an intention to act as executor.

PART XIX.

Of Specific Legacies.

129. Where a testator bequeaths to any person a specified part of his property, which is distinguished from all other parts of his property, the legacy is said to be specific.

Specific legacy defined.

"all the money which he has in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India:"

"all the Government-securities he shall be entitled to at the time of his decease."

Each of these legacies is specific.

(b.) A having Government promissory notes for 10,000 rupees, bequeaths to his executors "Government promissory notes for 10,000 rupees in trust to sell" for the benefit of B.

The legacy is specific.

(c.) A having property at Benares, and also in other places, bequeaths to B all his property at Benares.

The legacy is specific.

(d.) A bequeaths to B—

his house in Calcutta:

his zamíndárí of Rámpur:

his taluq of Rámnagar:

his lease of the indigo-factory of Salkya:

an annuity of 500 rupees out of the rents of his zamíndárí of W.

A directs his zamíndárí of X to be sold, and the proceeds to be invested for the benefit of B.

Each of these bequests is specific.

(e.) A by his will charges his zamíndárí of Y with an annuity of 1,000 rupees to C during his life, and subject to this charge he bequeaths the zamíndárí to D. Each of these bequests is specific.

(f.) A bequeaths a sum of money—

to buy a house in Calcutta for B:

to buy an estate in zila Faridpur for B:

to buy a diamond-ring for B:

to buy a horse for B:

to be invested in shares in the Bank of Bengal for B:

to be invested in Government-securities for B.

A bequeaths to B—

"a diamond-ring:"

"a horse:"

"10,000 rupees worth of Government securities:"

"an annuity of 500 rupees:"

"2,000 rupees, to be paid in cash:"

"so much money as will produce 5,000 rupees 4 per cent. Government-securities."

These bequests are not specific.

(g.) A, having property in England and property in India, bequeaths a legacy to B, and directs that it shall be paid out of the property which he may leave in India. He also bequeaths a legacy to C, and directs that it shall be paid out of the property which he may leave in England.

No one of these legacies is specific.

130. Where a sum certain is bequeathed, the legacy is not specific merely because the stocks, funds or securities in which it is invested are described in the will.

Bequest of sum certain where stocks, &c., in which invested are described.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"10,000 rupees of his funded property:"

"10,000 rupees of his property now invested in shares of the East Indian Railway Company:"

"10,000 rupees at present secured by mortgage of Rámpur factory."

No one of these legacies is specific.

131. Where a bequest is made in general terms of a certain amount of any kind of stock, the legacy is not specific merely because the testator was, at the date of his will, possessed of stock of the specified kind, to an equal or greater amount than the amount bequeathed.

Bequest of stock where testator had, at date of will, equal or greater amount of stock of same kind.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 5,000 rupees 5 per cent. Government securities. A had at the date of the will five per cent. Government securities for 5,000 rupees.

The legacy is not specific.

132. A money-legacy is not specific merely because the will directs its payment to be postponed until some part of the property of the testator shall have been reduced to a certain form, or remitted to a certain place.

Bequest of money where not payable until part of testator's property disposed of in certain way.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B 10,000 rupees, and directs that this legacy shall be paid as soon as A's property in India shall be realized in England.

The legacy is not specific.

133. Where a will contains a bequest of the residue of the testator's property along with an enumeration of some items of property not previously bequeathed, the articles enumerated shall not be deemed to be specifically bequeathed.

When enumerated articles not deemed specifically bequeathed.

* * * * * *

136. If there be a deficiency of assets to pay legacies, a specific legacy is not liable to abate with the general legacies.

Where deficiency of assets to pay legacies, specific legacy not to abate with general legacies.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

PART XX.

Of Demonstrative Legacies.

137. Where a testator bequeaths a certain sum of money, or a certain quantity of any other commodity, and refers to a particular fund or stock so as to constitute the same the primary fund or stock out of which payment is to be made, the legacy is said to be demonstrative.

Demonstrative legacy defined.

Explanation.—The distinction between a specific legacy and a demonstrative legacy consists in this, that—where specified property is given to the legatee, the legacy is specific;

where the legacy is directed to be paid out of specified property, it is demonstrative.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, being part of a debt due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. The legacy to B is specific; the legacy to C is demonstrative.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"ten bushels of the corn which shall grow in his field of Greenacre:"

"80 chests of the indigo which shall be made at his factory of Rámpur:"

"10,000 rupees out of his five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India:"

an annuity of 500 rupees "from his funded property:"

"1,000 rupees out of the sum of 2,000 rupees due to him by C."

A bequeaths to B an annuity, and directs it to be paid out of the rents arising from his taluq of Rámnagar.

A bequeaths to B—

"10,000 rupees out of his estate at Rámnagar," or charges it on his estate at Rámnagar:

"10,000 rupees, being his share of the capital embarked in a certain business."

Each of these bequests is demonstrative.

138. Where a portion of a fund is specifically bequeathed and a legacy is directed to be paid out of the same fund, the portion specifically bequeathed shall first be paid to the legatee, and the demonstrative legacy shall be paid out of the residue of the fund, and, so far as the residue shall be deficient, out of the general assets of the testator.

Order of payment when legacy directed to be paid out of fund the subject of specific legacy.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, being part of a debt due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. The debt due to A from W is only 1,500 rupees; of these 1,500 rupees, 1,000 rupees belong to B, and 500 rupees are to be paid to C. C is also to receive 500 rupees out of the general assets of the testator.

PART XXI.

Of Ademption of Legacies.

139. If anything which has been specifically bequeathed does not belong to the testator at the time of his death, or has been converted into property of a different kind, the legacy is adeemed; that is, it cannot take effect by reason of the subject-matter having been withdrawn from the operation of the will.

Ademption explained.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B—

"the diamond-ring presented to him by C:"

"his gold chain:"

"a certain bale of wool:"

"a certain piece of cloth:"

"all his household-goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in M Street, in Calcutta, at the time of his death."

A, in his lifetime,

sells or gives away the ring;
converts the chain into a cup:
converts the wool into cloth:
makes the cloth into a garment:
takes another house into which he removes all his goods

Each of these legacies is adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"the sum of 1,000 rupees in a certain chest:"

"all the horses in his stable."

At the death of A, no money is found in the chest, and no horses in the stable.

The legacies are adeemed.

(c.) A bequeaths to B certain bales of goods. A takes the goods with him on a voyage. The ship and goods are lost at sea, and A is drowned.

The legacy is adeemed.

140. A demonstrative legacy is not adeemed by reason that the property on which it is charged by the will does not exist at the time of the death of the testator, or has been converted into property of a different kind; but it shall in such case be paid out of the general assets of the testator.

Non-ademption of demonstrative legacy.

141. Where the thing specifically bequeathed is the right to receive something of value from a third party, and the testator himself receives it, the bequest is adeemed.

Ademption of specific bequest of right to receive something from third party.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B—

"the debt which C owes him:"

"2,000 rupees which he has in the hands of D:"

"the money due to him on the bond of E:"

"his mortgage on the Rámpur factory."

All these debts are extinguished in A's lifetime, some with and some without his consent.

All the legacies are adeemed.

(b.) A bequeaths to B—

"his interest in certain policies of life-assurance."

A in his lifetime receives the amount of the policies. The legacy is adeemed.

142. The receipt by the testator of a part of an entire thing specifically bequeathed shall operate as an ademption of the legacy to the extent of the sum received.

Ademption pro tanto by testator's receipt of part of entire thing specifically bequeathed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B "the debt due to him by C." The debt amounts to 10,000 rupees. C pays to A 5,000 rupees, the one-half of the debt. The legacy is revoked by ademption, so far as regards the 5,000 rupees received by A.

143. If a portion of an entire fund or stock be specifically bequeathed, the receipt by the testator of a portion of the fund or stock shall operate as an ademption only to the extent of the amount so received; and the residue of the fund or stock shall be applicable to the discharge of the specific legacy.

Ademption pro tanto by testator's receipt of portion of entire fund of which portion has been specifically bequeathed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B one-half of the sum of 10,000 rupees due to him from W. A in his lifetime receives 6,000 rupees, part of the 10,000 rupees. The 4,000 rupees which are due from W to A at the time of his death belong to B under the specific bequest.

Order of payment where portion of fund specifically bequeathed to one legatee, and legacy charged on same fund to another, and testator having received portion of that fund, remainder insufficient to pay both legacies.

144. Where a portion of a fund is specifically bequeathed to one legatee, and a legacy charged on the same fund is bequeathed to another legatee, if the testator receives a portion of that fund, and the remainder of the fund is insufficient to pay both the specific and the demonstrative legacy, the specific legacy shall be paid first, and the residue (if any) of the fund shall be applied so far as it will extend in payment of the demonstrative legacy, and the rest of the demonstrative legacy shall be paid out of the general assets of the testator.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, part of the debt of 2,000 rupees due to him from W. He also bequeaths to C 1,000 rupees to be paid out of the debt due to him from W. A afterwards receives 500 rupees, part of that debt, and dies leaving only 1,500 rupees due to him from W. Of these 1,500 rupees, 1,000 rupees belong to B, and 500 rupees are to be paid to C. C is also to receive 500 rupees out of the general assets of the testator.

Ademption where stock, specifically bequeathed, does not exist at testator's death.

145. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed does not exist at the testator's death, the legacy is ademed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"his capital stock of 1,000*l.* in East India Stock:"

"his promissory notes of the Government of India for 10,000 rupees in their 4 per cent. loan."

A sells the stock and the notes.

The legacies are ademed.

Ademption pro tanto where stock, specifically bequeathed, exists in part only at testator's death.

146. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed does only in part exist at the testator's death, the legacy is ademed so far as regards that part of the stock which has ceased to exist.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B—

"his 10,000 rupees in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India."

A sells one-half of his 10,000 rupees in the loan in question.

One-half of the legacy is ademed.

Non-ademption of specific bequest of goods described as connected with certain place, by reason of removal.

147. A specific bequest of goods under a description connecting them with a certain place is not ademed by reason that they have been removed from such place from any temporary cause, or by fraud or without the knowledge or sanction of the testator.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B "all his household goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in Calcutta at the time of his death." The goods are removed from the house to save them from fire. A dies before they are brought back.

A bequeaths to B "all his household goods which shall be in or about his dwelling-house in Calcutta at the time of his death." During A's absence upon a journey, the whole of the goods are removed from the house. A dies without having sanctioned their removal.

Neither of these legacies is ademed.

When removal of thing bequeathed does not constitute ademption.

148. The removal of the thing bequeathed from the place in which it is stated in the will to be situated does not constitute an ademption, where the place is only referred to in order to complete the description of what the testator meant to bequeath.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B all the bills, bonds and other securities for money belonging to him then lying in his lodgings in Calcutta. At the time of his death these effects had been removed from his lodgings in Calcutta.

A bequeaths to B all his furniture then in his house in Calcutta. The testator has a house at Calcutta and another at Chinsurah, in which he lives alternately, being possessed of one set of furniture only, which he removes with himself to each house. At the time of his death the furniture is in the house at Chinsurah.

A bequeaths to B all his goods on board a certain ship then lying in the river Hugli. The goods are removed by A's directions to a warehouse, in which they remain at the time of A's death.

No one of these legacies is revoked by ademption.

When thing bequeathed is a valuable to be received by testator from third person, and testator himself, or his representative, receives it.

149. Where the thing bequeathed is not the right to receive something of value from a third person, but the money or other commodity which shall be received from the third person by the testator himself or by his representatives, the receipt of such sum of money or other commodity by the testator shall not constitute an ademption;

but if he mixes it up with the general mass of his property, the legacy is ademed.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B whatever sum may be received from his claim on C. A receives the whole of his claim on C and sets it apart from the general mass of his property. The legacy is not ademed.

Change by operation of law of subject of specific bequest between date of will and testator's death.

150. Where a thing specifically bequeathed undergoes a change between the date of the will and the testator's death, and the change takes place by operation of law or in the course of execution of the provisions of any legal instrument under which the thing bequeathed was held, the legacy is not ademed by reason of such change.

Illustrations.

A bequeaths to B "all the money which he has in the 5½ per cent. loan of the Government of India."

The securities for the 5½ per cent. loan are converted during A's lifetime into 5 per cent. stock.

A bequeaths to B the sum of 2,000*l.*, invested in consols in the names of trustees for A.

The sum of 2,000*l.* is transferred by the trustees into A's own name.

A bequeaths to B the sum of 10,000 rupees in promissory notes of the Government of India which he has power under his marriage-settlement to dispose of by will. Afterwards in A's lifetime, the fund is converted into consols by virtue of an authority contained in the settlement.

No one of these legacies has been ademed.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

151. Where a thing specifically bequeathed undergoes a change between the date of the will and the testator's death, and the change takes place without the knowledge or sanction of the testator, the legacy is not adeemed.

Change of subject without testator's knowledge.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B "all his 3 per cent. consols." The consols are, without A's knowledge, sold by his agent, and the proceeds converted into East India stock. This legacy is not adeemed.

152. Where stock which has been specifically bequeathed is lent to a third party on condition that it shall be replaced, and it is replaced accordingly, the legacy is not adeemed.

Stock specifically bequeathed, lent to third party on condition that it be replaced.

153. Where stock specifically bequeathed is sold, and an equal quantity of the same stock is afterwards purchased and belongs to the testator at his death, the legacy is not adeemed.

Stock specifically bequeathed, sold but replaced and belonging to testator at his death.

PART XXII.

Of the Payment of Liabilities in respect of the subject of a Bequest.

154. Where property specifically bequeathed is subject at the death of the testator to any pledge, lien or incumbrance, created by the testator himself or by any person under whom he claims, then, unless a contrary intention appears by the will, the legatee, if he accepts the bequest, shall accept it subject to such pledge or incumbrance, and shall (as between himself and the testator's estate) be liable to make good the amount of such pledge or incumbrance.

Non-liability of executor to exonerate specific legatees.

A contrary intention shall not be inferred from any direction which the will may contain for the payment of the testator's debts generally.

Explanation.—A periodical payment in the nature of land-revenue or in the nature of rent is not such an incumbrance as is contemplated by this section.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B the diamond-ring given him by C. At A's death the ring is held in pawn by D, to whom it has been pledged by A. It is the duty of A's executors, if the state of the testator's assets will allow them, to allow B to redeem the ring.

(b.) A bequeaths to B a zamíndárí which at A's death is subject to a mortgage for 10,000 rupees, and the whole of the principal sum, together with interest to the amount of 1,000 rupees, is due at A's death. B, if he accepts the bequest, accepts it subject to this charge, and is liable, as between himself and A's estate, to pay the sum of 11,000 rupees thus due.

155. Where anything is to be done to complete the testator's title to the thing bequeathed, it is to be done at the cost of the testator's estate.

Completion of testator's title to things bequeathed to be at cost of his estate.

Illustrations.

(a.) A, having contracted in general terms for the purchase of a piece of land at a certain price, bequeaths it to B, and dies before he has paid the purchase-money. The purchase-money must be made good out of A's assets.

(b.) A having contracted for the purchase of a piece of land for a certain sum of money, one-half of which is to be paid down, and the other half secured by mortgage of the land, bequeaths it to B, and dies before he has paid or secured any part of the purchase-money. One-half of the purchase-money must be paid out of A's assets.

156. Where there is a bequest of any interest in immoveable property, in respect of which payment in the nature of land-revenue or in the nature of rent has to be made periodically, the estate of the testator shall (as between such estate and the legatee) make good such payments or a proportion of them up to the day of his death.

Exoneration of legatee's immoveable property for which land-revenue or rent payable periodically.

Illustration.

A bequeaths to B a house, in respect of which 365 rupees are payable annually by way of rent. A pays his rent at the usual time, and dies 25 days after. A's estate shall make good 25 rupees in respect of the rent.

157. In the absence of any direction in the will where there is a specific bequest of stock in a joint stock company, if any call or other payment is due from the testator at the time of his death in respect of such stock, such call or payment shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by such estate;

Exoneration of specific legatee's stock in joint stock company.

but if any call or other payment shall, after the testator's death become due in respect of such stock, the same shall, as between the testator's estate and the legatee, be borne by the legatee if he accept the bequest.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeathed to B his shares in a certain railway. At A's death there was due from him the sum of 5*l.* in respect of each share, being the amount of a call which had been duly made, and the sum of 5*s.* in respect of each share, being the amount of interest which had accrued due in respect of the call. These payments must be borne by A's estate.

(b.) A has agreed to take 50 shares in an intended joint stock company, and has contracted to pay up 5*l.* in respect of each share, which sum must be paid before his title to the shares can be completed. A bequeaths these shares to B. The estate of A must make good the payments which were necessary to complete A's title.

(c.) A bequeaths to B his shares in a certain railway. B accepts the legacy. After A's death, a call is made in respect of the shares. B must pay the call.

(d.) A bequeaths to B his shares in a joint stock company. B accepts the bequest. Afterwards the affairs of the company are wound up and each shareholder is called upon for contribution. The amount of the contribution must be borne by the legatee.

(e.) A is the owner of ten shares in a railway company. At a meeting held during his lifetime a call is made of 3*l.* per share payable by three instalments. A bequeaths his shares to B, and dies between the day fixed for the payment of the first and the day fixed for the payment of the second instalment and without having paid the first instalment. A's estate must pay the first instalment, and B, if he accepts the legacy, must pay the remaining instalments.

PART XXIII.

Of Bequests of Things described in general terms.

158. If there be a bequest of something described in general terms, the executor must purchase for the legatee what may reasonably be considered to answer the description.

Bequest of thing described in general terms.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B a pair of carriage-horses, or a diamond-ring. The executor must provide the legatee with such articles, if the state of the assets will allow it.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

(b.) A bequeaths to B "his pair of carriage-horses." A had no carriage-horses at the time of his death. The legacy fails.

PART XXIV.

Of Bequests of the Interest or Produce of a Fund.

Bequest of interest or produce of fund.

159. Where the interest or produce of a fund is bequeathed to any person, and the will affords no indication of an intention that the enjoyment of the bequest should be of limited duration, the principal as well as the interest shall belong to the legatee.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B the interest of his five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India. There is no other clause in the will affecting those securities. B is entitled to A's five per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India.

(b.) A bequeaths the interest of his 5½ per cent. promissory notes of the Government of India to B for his life, and after his death to C. B is entitled to the interest of the notes during his life and C is entitled to the notes upon B's death.

(c.) A bequeaths to B the rents of his lands at X. B is entitled to the lands.

PART XXV.

Of Bequests of Annuities.

Annuity created by will payable for life only, unless contrary intention appears by will.

160. Where an annuity is created by will, the legatee is entitled to receive it for his life only unless a contrary intention appears by the will. And this rule shall not be varied by the circumstance that the annuity is directed to be paid out of the property generally, or that a sum of money is bequeathed to be invested in the purchase of it.

Illustrations.

(a.) A bequeaths to B 500 rupees a year. B is entitled during his life to receive the annual sum of 500 rupees.

(b.) A bequeaths to B the sum of 500 rupees monthly. B is entitled during his life to receive the sum of 500 rupees every month.

(c.) A bequeaths an annuity of 500 rupees to B for life, and of B's death to C. B is entitled to an annuity of 500 rupees during his life. C, if he survives B, is entitled to an annuity of 500 rupees from B's death until his own death.

Period of vesting where will directs that annuity be provided out of proceeds of property, or out of property generally or where money bequeathed to be invested in purchase of annuity.

161. Where the will directs that an annuity shall be provided for any person out of the proceeds of property, or out of property generally, or where money is bequeathed to be invested in the purchase of any annuity for any person, on the testator's death the legacy vests in interest in the legatee, and he is entitled at his option to have an annuity purchased for him or to receive the money appropriated for that purpose by the will.

Illustrations.

(a.) A by his will directs that his executors shall out of his property purchase an annuity of 1,000 rupees for B. B is entitled at his option to have an annuity of 1,000 rupees for his life purchased for him or to receive such a sum as will be sufficient for the purchase of such an annuity.

(b.) A bequeaths a fund to B for his life, and directs that after B's death it shall be laid out in the purchase of an annuity for C. B and C survive the testators. C dies in B's lifetime. On B's death the fund belongs to the representative of C.

Abatement of annuity.

162. Where an annuity is bequeathed, but the assets of the testator are not sufficient to pay all the legacies given by the will, the annuity shall abate in the same proportion as the other pecuniary legacies given by the will.

Where gift of annuity and residuary gift, whole annuity to be first satisfied.

163. Where there is a gift of an annuity and a residuary gift, the whole of the annuity is to be satisfied before any part of the residue is paid to the residuary legatee, and, if necessary, the capital of the testator's estate shall be applied for that purpose.

PART XXVI.

Of Legacies to Creditors and Portioners.

Creditor primâ facie entitled to legacy as well as debt.

164. Where a debtor bequeaths a legacy to his creditor, and it does not appear from the will that the legacy is meant as a satisfaction of the debt, the creditor shall be entitled to the legacy as well as to the amount of the debt.

Child primâ facie entitled to legacy as well as portion.

165. Where a parent, who is under obligation by contract to provide a portion for a child, fails to do so, and afterwards bequeaths a legacy to the child, and does not intimate by his will that the legacy is meant as a satisfaction of the portion, the child shall be entitled to receive the legacy as well as the portion.

A, by articles entered into in contemplation of his marriage with B, covenanted that he would pay to each of the daughters of the intended marriage a portion of 20,000 rupees on her marriage. This covenant having been broken, A bequeaths 20,000 rupees to each of the married daughters of himself and B. The legatees are entitled to the benefit of this bequest in addition to their portions.

No ademption by subsequent provision for legatee.

166. No bequest shall be wholly or partially ademed by a subsequent provision made by settlement or otherwise for the legatee.

(a.) A bequeaths 20,000 rupees to his son B. He afterwards gives to B the sum of 20,000 rupees. The legacy is not thereby ademed.

(b.) A bequeaths 10,000 rupees to B, his orphan-niece, whom he had brought up from her infancy. Afterwards on the occasion of B's marriage, A settles upon her the sum of 30,000 rupees. The legacy is not thereby diminished.

PART XXVII.

Of Election.

Circumstances in which election takes place.

167. Where a man, by his will, professes to dispose of something which he has no right to dispose of, the person to whom the thing belongs shall elect either to confirm such disposition or to dissent from it, and in the latter case he shall give up any benefits which may have been provided for him by the will.

Devolution of interest relinquished by owner.

168. The interest so relinquished shall devolve as if it had not been disposed of by the will in favour of the legatee, subject, nevertheless, to the charge of making good to the disappointed legatee the amount or value of the gift attempted to be given to him by the will.

The Khojá Succession Bill, 1884.

(Schedule.—Portions of the Indian Succession Act (X of 1865) modified for application to Wills made by Khojás.)

169. This rule will apply whether the testator does or does not believe that which he professes to dispose of by his will to be his own.

Testator's belief as to his ownership immaterial.

(b.) A bequeaths an estate to B in case B's elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. A also bequeaths to C a jewel, which belongs to B. B must elect to give up the jewel, or to lose the estate.

(c.) A bequeaths to B 1,000 rupees, and to C an estate which will, under a settlement, belong to B if his elder brother (who is married and has children) shall leave no issue living at his death. B must elect to give up the estate, or to lose the legacy.

(d.) A, a person of the age of 18 domiciled in British India, but owning real property in England, to which C is heir-at-law, bequeaths a legacy to C, and, subject thereto, devises and bequeaths to B "all his property, whatsoever and wheresoever," and dies under 21. The real property in England does not pass by the will. C may claim his legacy without giving up the real property in England.

In that capacity he receives the legacy of 1,000 rupees, and accounts to B for the rents of the lands of Sultánpur which accrued after the death of the testator and before the death of C. In his individual character he retains the lands of Sultánpur in opposition to the will.

C takes out administration to B, and as administrator elects to keep the estate of Sultánpur in opposition to the will, and to relinquish the legacy of 2,000 rupees. C may do this, and yet claim his legacy of 1,000 rupees under the will.

Exception to the six last Rules.—Where a particular gift is expressed in the will to be in lieu of something belonging to the legatee, which is also in terms disposed of by the will, if the legatee claims that thing, he must relinquish the particular gift, but he is not bound to relinquish any other benefit given to him by the will.

173. Acceptance of a benefit given by the will constitutes an election by the legatee to take under the will, if he has knowledge of his right to elect, and of those circumstances which would influence the judgment of a reasonable man in making an election, or if he waives inquiry into the circumstances.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Khojás are members of a sect which was originally Hindu but was converted to Muhammadanism about 400 years ago. They still, however, as has been more than once held by the highest Court in the Bombay Presidency, retain their former law to such an extent in matters connected with property and succession that it is to be presumed to apply to them until the contrary is shown. This state of things has at times given rise to great difficulties in litigation between Khojás.

2. In the case of Hirbai v. Gorbai, 12 Bom. High Court Rep. 294, which appears to have occupied the Lower Court for twenty-four sitting days and the Appellate Court for four days, Sir Michael Westropp, C. J., after describing the state of the law, observed as follows :—

"It is, however, evident that the Khojás are not as firmly bound in matters of succession and inheritance by the Hindu law as Muhammadans proper are by the Muhammadan law and the Hindus by the Hindu law, and hence it is that it would not be reasonable to require such stringent proof of a custom of inheritance amongst them differing from ordinary Hindu law as from a Hindu.

"Now, it is manifest that such a state of the law must greatly encourage litigation, and we cannot help thinking that it would be most desirable that the Government should take steps, as was done in the case of the Pársís, to ascertain the views of the majority of the community on the subject of succession, and should then pass an enactment giving effect to those views. Unanimity, of course, could not be expected, but the rules which were found generally to prevail might be made law; and though the religious differences existing among members of the Khojá caste might create some difficulty, it would not, we think, be insuperable."

3. The Government of Bombay, acting upon this suggestion, appointed about the end of the year 1878 a Commission consisting of four gentlemen taken from the Shia division of the Khojás, which acknowledged His Highness the late Ágha Khán as its spiritual superior, one taken from the Sunni division, and Mr. Spencer, Acting First Judge of the Court of Small Causes, with the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Melvill, of the Bombay High Court, as president.

The Commission took the greatest pains to inform themselves of the customs and views of both divisions of the Khojá sect in the Presidency of Bombay and elsewhere, and after much consideration and discussion agreed upon a draft Bill, subject to a dissent on a few specific points which was signed by His Highness Aghá Alí Sháh, son of His Highness the late Ágha Khán, and Mr. Dhurrumsey Poonjabhoy but not by Mr. Jairajbhoy Peerboy and Mr. Rahimtula Syanee, the two other Shia members of the Commission. That draft, having been submitted to the Government of Bombay by the president on the 23rd of December, 1879, and approved of by that Government, was forwarded to the Government of India, and forms the basis of the present Bill.

4. It will be convenient to refer to the provisions of the present Bill as nearly as possible in their order, noticing in their proper place the few points in regard to which His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh and Mr. Dhurrumsey Poonjabhoy differed from the majority of the Commission, and the points of substantive importance in which the present Bill deviates from the draft framed by the Commission.

5. The first provision calling for notice is section 2, which defines the application of the Act—a matter which was not clearly provided for in the Bill prepared by the Commission. The main enactment of the section is that succession to the property, whether moveable or immoveable, in British India of a Khojá dying on or after the first day of January, 1885, shall be regulated by the rules contained in the Act wherever he may have had his domicile at the time of his death. So far as regards immoveable property, this provision coincides with section 5 of the Indian Succession Act, but, as regards moveable property, it involves an important deviation from that section, inasmuch as it applies the Act to all successions to such property though the deceased person may have been domiciled outside British India at the time of his death.

As the rule, which makes the law of the domicile of a deceased person regulate the succession to his moveable property, is not merely the rule of the Indian Succession Act but has obtained very general acceptance elsewhere, it seems desirable to state the reasons which have led the Government of India to think that it is not suitable to the Khojá community.

6. The choice as regards succession to moveable property appears to lie between the law of the domicile of the deceased and the law of the situs of the assets. The objections urged against the latter in Western countries are chiefly that a man's moveables are apt to be scattered over many jurisdictions each having a readily ascertainable law of its own, and that accordingly, if the law of the situs is made applicable to them, his estate will be broken up into many fragments, all governed by different laws; that a man's moveables may change their place; that the most important class of them, goods employed in commerce, are constantly changing their place; and that accordingly, if the law of the situs is applied, it will be impossible for him to foresee the particular law under which they will fall upon his death; and lastly, that the rule of the law of the situs does not clearly provide for that portion of the assets which consists of debts or other obligations existing in favour of the deceased. To avoid these difficulties it has been generally agreed to adopt the law of the domicile of the deceased for the whole of his moveable estate. Various attempts have been made to rest this rule on some á priori principle; but it would seem to have had its actual origin in mere considerations of convenience.

7. Looking to the arguments by which it is supported, and to the peculiar circumstances of the Khojá community, it is questionable, to say the least, whether such a rule would meet the requirements of their case. The places beyond the limits of British India, as, for example, Kutch, the Persian Gulf and Zanzibar, in which any considerable number of Khojás is to be found have no law such as can properly be called a territorial law of succession. The tribunals in such places, in so far as they make any rational attempt to apply a law at all, would apply the personal law of the parties, and that in the case of Khojás is ex hypothesi altogether unsettled and unascertainable. There is thus in the case of Khojás domiciled out of British India practically speaking no law of the situs of the foreign assets to conflict with the law which would apply to the British Indian assets, and no law of the domicile to which recourse could be had; and, therefore, to give the law of the domicile a preference over the Indian law would be simply to substitute a congeries of indefinite and half-established customs for a law, to the application of which there could be no reasonable objection.

It may be added that, in the absence of a law of the domicile, the case is very analogous to those cases in which it is impossible to fix the domicile of the deceased, and the solution which Lord Alvanley appears to have suggested in a case of this latter class was to fall back, as is proposed in this case, on the law of the situs of the property; in other words, to put moveables on the same footing as immoveables.

8. If this solution is adopted, and the Indian law is applied to all moveables left by a deceased Khojá in British India, without regard to his domicile, and if, moreover, the same rule is applied, as it naturally would be, in cases arising in Consular jurisdictions in the Persian Gulf, Zanzibar and elsewhere, this further advantage will probably in time be gained, that the law in British India will come to be adopted as a personal law applicable to Khojás in all foreign States in this part of the world.

9. The above remarks apply equally to intestate and to testamentary succession. A question might indeed be raised as to whether a testamentary disposition made beyond the limits of British India should as regards its form be made absolutely subject to British Indian law; but, seeing that the effect of taking any other course would certainly be to admit oral dispositions, it seems clear that the risk of failures of justice will be on the whole less by subjecting completely to our law all dispositions, wherever made, of moveable property in British India.

10. In connection with the definitions it is convenient to notice one of the few important questions on which any difference of opinion has arisen, namely, the question as to the status to be assigned to a woman who is not a Khojá but who is legally married to a Khojá according to the rules of the Muhammadan law, and to her children by him.

The Khojás of the Sunni Jamát, though apparently unwilling to go so far as to recognize any other than a Khojá widow as entitled to inherit from her husband, proposed that the sons of a Khojá by a wife who is not a Khojá should have some share in the inheritance. To this the Khojás of the Shia Jamát would not agree, and the Commission ultimately adopted as a compromise the plan of assigning to the offspring of the marriages in question a status nominally intermediate between those of legitimacy and illegitimacy and giving them in the definition-clauses the designation of "alien sons", but allowing them nothing more than illegitimate sons in the later sections of their Bill. It is stated that the Khojás as a rule are very exclusive and rarely take wives from outside their own community, and so long as this state of things continues the mode in which this point is dealt with is not of great practical moment; but there is an important principle involved, against which even the compromise adopted by the Commission appears to the Government of India to offend. The exclusion of the non-Khojá wife from inheritance and the degradation of her sons to a position altogether lower than that of the legitimate son involves a view as to restrictions on marriage which, even though it may have obtained acceptance with a majority of the Khojá sect, and though the Government has no desire to interfere with it, it is manifestly undesirable to have affirmed by the legislature. The present Bill will accordingly be found to contain no reference either in its definition-clauses or elsewhere to the so-called "alien son." It defines "son" to be a legitimate son and leaves "widow" undefined, and then proceeds to declare the rights of sons and widows, trusting to the Courts to decide, as they will on principles lying outside the law of succession, who are legally entitled to the status of sons and widows.

11. Chapter II of the Bill deals with "succession to the undivided property of a male Khojá dying intestate," and in the previous chapter "undivided property" has been defined as meaning "a share in property belonging to an undivided family." The Bill prepared by the Commission purported to define the phrase "undivided family," but the definition proposed has on inquiry been found to be unsafe. The undivided family among the Khojás appears to come into existence chiefly in connection with trade, and would seem to be an institution of a peculiar nature, somewhat resembling the undivided family among the Hindus; but, on the other hand, it is clear, from the rules laid down in certain sections of the Bill prepared by the Commission, and from the papers submitted with that Bill, that it differs in important respects from the Hindu undivided family. What exactly it is, and when property is to be regarded as its undivided property, it is difficult to ascertain from the papers before the Government of India; but, judging from the analogous case in Hindu law, it would seem that these are matters which it would be almost hopeless to attempt to define in an Act of the legislature; nor does it appear to be necessary to define them in a Succession Act. It may well be assumed that a fundamental distinction which goes to the root of the family constitution, and which is not confined in its operation to matters of succession, but applies also inter vivos, is established outside this Bill. For these reasons, it has been thought best to make no attempt to define "undivided family" or "undivided property." in the present Bill.

12. It will be observed, on comparing Chapters II and III, that the only peculiarity connected with the intestate succession to undivided property is (section 6) that, in default of legitimate lineal male descendants of the intestate within the fourth degree, the property is equally divided among all the male members of the undivided family living at his death.

13. Chapter III of the Bill treats of "succession to the separate property of a male Khojá dying intestate," and the order of succession marked out in sections 7 to 20 will be found to be based on that of the Hindu law.

The subjoined statement has been prepared by the Hon'ble Mr. Melvill, the President of the Commission, with a view to showing at a glance the extent to which the two differ—

Order of succession according to Hindu law.	Order of succession for Khojás proposed by the Bill.
1. Sons.	1. Sons.
2. Grandsons.	2. Grandsons.
3. Great-grandsons.	3. Great-grandsons.
4. Widow.	4. Great-great-grandsons.
5. Daughters.	5. Father.
6. Daughters' sons.	6. Mother.
7. Mother.	7. Widow.
8. Father.	8. Daughters.
9. Brothers.	9. Daughters' sons. }
10. Half-brothers.	10. Brothers. }
11. Brothers' sons.	11. Sons' daughters.
12. Half-brothers' sons.	12. Brothers' sons.
13. Grandmother.	13. Half-brothers.
14. Sister (under the Mayukha).	14. Half-brothers' sons.
15. Grandfather.	15. Grandfather.
16. More distant relatives.	16. Grandmother.
	17. Paternal uncle.
	18. Sister.
	19. More distant relatives.

"It will be seen," Mr. Melvill observes, "that the only very noticeable point of difference is that among the Khojás the father and mother are elevated to a rank in the order of succession superior to that of the widow. This precedence of the mother has been judicially settled in the case of Hirbai v. *Gorbai, already referred to; and although the Khojá members of the Commission were not unanimously in favour of the view taken in that case, they all agreed that, having once been judicially determined, the rule should not be disturbed."

* Reported 12 Bom. H. C. Rep., 294.

14. Section 20 of the present Bill differs in one important particular from the corresponding section (29) of the Bill prepared by the Commission.

The latter admitted to the succession only those of the "more distant relatives" of the intestate who were on the father's side, and confined it to such of them as are within the seventh degree of kindred. On failure of this limited class of distant kindred, section 42 gave the property "to the Jamát of that sect of the Khojás to which the intestate belonged at the time of his death, to be held and applied according to the customs of the said Jamát." Even this did not satisfy the two dissenting members of the Commission and some of the other adherents of His Highness the late Aghá Khan, who, as Imám, was the person chiefly interested in the succession of the Jamát. They contended that the Jamát should come in immediately after the nearer relations.

15. Apart from this fundamental objection in point of principle, there appear to be practical objections to the proposal as formulated by the Commission. The Jamát is said to be an assembly in council of all the adult male members of the Khojá community of the place, and it is not unlikely that doubts would arise, in connection with matters of religious belief, residence, attendance at the Jamát, and so forth, as to the particular Jamát (if any) to which the deceased person belonged. Similar doubts might also arise as to who were the other persons actually belonging to the Jamát to which the deceased belonged, so as to take the property. There might further be doubts as to how the property of a deceased intestate Khojá is to be held, and the objects to which it is to be applied. It is true that the section proposed by the Commission says that the property is to be held and applied "according to the customs of the said Jamát." But from a judgment of Sir J. Arnould in the case marginally noted, it would appear that there are no customs to look to. Though a Jamát collects large sums of money through its officers, it only does so on behalf of the Imám; the money collected is passed on to him; and if the Jamát wants any portion of it, even for the expenses of its Jamát-kháná (the council-hall or guildhall of the community), it can procure it only as a grant from the Imám. It appears to be absolutely in the discretion of the Imám to spend the money as he pleases, and as a matter of fact he spends a large portion of it, or at least is said by Sir J. Arnould to have done so at the time the judgment was delivered, on his own private purposes. Indeed, in a set of draft rules of succession for Shia Khojás submitted by His Highness Ágha Alí Sháh the succession of the Jamát is treated as the same thing with the succession of the Imám. The Jamát, therefore, does not seem to have any property or control over property, and it is not clear how there can be any custom governing the application of property by it. It has been argued that no such difficulties as those suggested ordinarily arise at present, but it would be clearly impossible to put the succession of the Jamát on a legislative basis without defining its conditions and incidents, and it would be equally impossible to place the property at the absolute disposal of any individual in whatever degree of veneration he might be held.

Dayd Muhammad and others versus H. H. Ágha Khán and others (page 323 of the Bombay High Court Reports, Vol. XII).

16. For these reasons section 20 of the present Bill extends the succession to relatives of the intestate both on the father's and on the mother's side without limit of degree, and it may be added that section 48 applies the ordinary rule, which makes the Crown the ultimate heir, in the rare case in which an owner of property may die intestate and leave no person entitled to succeed under the previous sections.

17. Section 21 is one of the leading sections of the Bill. It provides in effect that, when a female inherits under any of the foregoing sections, she shall, if certain near male relatives are living and are thus postponed to her, take the property only as "restricted owner"—a position to be presently explained at length. With this section should be read section 49, from which it will be seen that in other cases she takes the same interest in the property and has the same powers in respect of it as if she were a male.

18. Chapter IV treats of succession to the absolute property of a female Khojá dying intestate, that is to say, the succession to such of her property as belongs to her otherwise than as restricted owner. The provisions of this chapter call for no remark. Mr. Melvill states that they differ from the Hindu law but that they are approved by all classes of the Khojás, and are not, he thinks, open to any objection. The particulars in which they deviate from the Hindu law or the reasons for the deviations are not explained. They have been accepted by the Government of India as settled by the Commission, such details only being filled in after consultation with the local authorities as seemed necessary to give effect to what is understood to be the intention of those who framed them.

19. Chapter V, which treats of "property which a female takes as restricted owner and the further succession to the same," calls for more detailed notice.

It applies not only in the ordinary case of property taken by a female as restricted owner under Chapter III (supra, paragraph 17), but also in cases where she may take a similar interest in property under section 23 (2), section 24 (1), section 27 and section 39.

Its provisions are merely a development, with the requisite amplifications and with the addition of the necessary machinery, of the corresponding provisions of the Bill framed by the Commission. It has been settled in consultation with the local authorities and with a view to giving effect to what are understood to be the views of the Commission; but, having regard to the novelty and complication of the subject, it is not unlikely that when subjected to criticism it will be found susceptible of improvement in many particulars.

The limited estate taken by a Khojá female under this Bill resembles the estate taken by a Hindu widow, but there are many important differences between them. Mr. Melvill observes that the Khojá female estate is the more restricted of the two, but on this point he says the Khojás hold very strong views which he is of opinion must be respected.

20. In proceeding to notice the details of the chapter, the first point calling for attention is the phrase "restricted owner." It has been chosen merely on the ground that it is new and connotes nothing, and it is not unlikely that some more appropriate phrase may be suggested. The phrase "life-estate" and its correlative "reversion," used in the Bombay Bill, are not only open to the objection that ordinarily lies against all terms imported from another legal system, but further, as has been constantly observed of them in the case of the Hindu widow's estate, they suggest an altogether false analogy. The position, if it is necessary to illustrate it by reference to English law, is rather like that of a fee-simple estate subject to an executory devise.

21. As regards the attempt made in the Bill to define the estate, it will be observed that section 28 enacts that the female shall be absolutely entitled to the use of, and the income accruing from, the property during her life, and, except as otherwise provided by the Act, shall have all the other rights and powers of an absolute owner.

An objection has been taken to this on the ground that money saved by a widow from the income of the property should not belong to her absolutely but should go to her husband's heirs.

This contention is not based on any alleged actual practice, but is put forward merely as a "necessary consequence of the invariable custom" which limits the widow's interest in the corpus of her husband's property to the time during which she remains unmarried.

Now, not only is it not a necessary consequence of the custom in question, but it is, as admitted by the objectors themselves, in a certain sense illogical; for why should a person who has absolute power to dispose of the income as it comes in, in whatever way she pleases, be restricted from dealing with her savings from it?

Again, the only effect of adopting the proposed suggestion would, as the objectors themselves admit, generally be that the widow would squander the income as it came in; and, in the rare cases in which she allowed some of it to accumulate, the probability is that litigation would result from the difficulty of identifying the fund and separating it from the rest of her property. For these reasons the section has been allowed to stand.

22. Section 30 defines the obligations of the restricted owner as regards—

(a) the preservation of the substance of the property for those who are to come after her; and

As regards "waste," it stands on a footing altogether peculiar in the case of the Hindu widow; and clause (a) of this section has been drawn with a view to placing it on a somewhat similar footing in the case of the restricted owner.

23. As regards the powers of alienation, in the limitations on which the restricted nature of the estate chiefly consists, the only powers of alienation for any time beyond the life of the restricted owner allowed to her by the Bill, besides a limited power of leasing conferred by section 29, are those specified in section 31, which runs as follows:—

Restricted owner's power of transfer.

"31. A female taking property as restricted owner shall have power to transfer the same, so that the transfer may have effect beyond her life, when, the income being insufficient, such transfer is necessary in order to raise money for any of the following purposes, namely:—

"(a) to discharge any of the obligations imposed by section 30;*

* Viz., obligations to preserve the substance of the property and protect the title.

"(b) to discharge the debts of the absolute owner from whom the property descended;

"(c) to provide for the maintenance of any persons entitled under this Act to have their maintenance provided for out of the property, for the payment of any marriage expenses or funeral expenses payable under this Act out of the property, and for the performance of any ordinary family ceremonies; and

"(d) to support herself where she has no other sufficient means of support."

24. It has been urged by the two dissenting members of the Commission and by some other adherents of His Highness the Imám that a mother taking a restricted estate should have larger powers of alienation and that she or a widow taking a like estate should be empowered to alienate for religious objects; that is, as explained in the set of draft rules submitted by His Highness Aghá Alí Sháh, to give the property to the Imám; but, upon considering the arguments adduced and consulting the local authorities, the Government of India have determined to uphold the decision of the majority of the Commission, which is against the concession of any such powers.

25. In order to avoid as far as possible the great difficulties which arise in the case of a Hindu widow exceeding her power of alienation, an alienation in excess of the power has (section 29 of the Bill) been made absolutely void for any period beyond the restricted owner's life, except where the purchaser takes for consideration and without notice of the ownership being restricted. This, no doubt, standing alone, would place too great difficulties in the way of alienation; but sufficient relief will probably be afforded by the power to apply to a Court for sanction, which is given by section 32. It may be objected that it is undesirable to force people to resort to a Court in such matters; but the case is one of a choice of evils, and it is probably better that they should resort to the Court in every case where there is any room for doubt than run the risk of being involved in troublesome and expensive litigation later on.

A Court dealing with an application under section 32 is empowered (section 33) to accord its sanction to the transfer subject to the condition that the money thereby raised shall be paid into Court or to trustees appointed by the Court, and to give such further directions as it may think fit with a view to ensuring that the money shall be applied to the purpose for which it is raised, or that any balance that is not so applied shall be secured for the benefit of those entitled after the restricted owner.

26. It will be observed that no provision is made in the draft for alienation with the consent of the so-called "reversioners." This matter is one which gives rise to great difficulties in the case of the Hindu widow, and it seems impossible, having regard to the system of succession established by the Bill, to provide for it in any satisfactory manner. If provision had only to be made to meet the case of "reversioners" who claim under section 37 (1) and section 38 (3) by descent from the last absolute owner, the matter would be much simpler than in the case of the Hindu widow, inasmuch as these "reversioners" would always be known living persons or persons who would claim through them; but there are, besides these, the "reversioners" mentioned in section 38 (1) and (2), and it is thus impossible to fix upon any person whose consent would be sufficient.

27. Further, even if we were, as has been suggested, to waive this objection, and accept the consent of a merely presumptive "reversioner," there is another difficulty, namely, that the presumptive "reversioner" might (see section 39 of the Bill) be another restricted owner, possibly an old woman on the verge of the grave, whose prospect of succeeding would be extremely small. There might be several such persons intervening between the restricted owner and the first person who would take as absolute owner. We could hardly rest satisfied with anything short of the consent of this last person and all the intervening ones, and thus we should be landed in a considerable complication, leading in many cases to no very satisfactory result, inasmuch as the interest of the first person who would take as absolute owner, and to whose consent we would chiefly look, would often be of a remotely contingent nature. It is, of course, on economical grounds desirable to provide a means of freeing the property from the limited ownership, but the advantage would be dearly purchased if the basis of the purchaser's title were to be complicated in this way.

28. As regards the sale of property in execution of a decree against a restricted owner, it will be seen that the effect of section 31 of the Bill is that a person lending money for any of the purposes mentioned in section 31 can sell in execution nothing more than the so-called "life-interest" of the restricted owner, unless his loan is secured by a mortgage. The position of the restricted owner as regards anything beyond her so-called life-interest is, in fact, in this particular, somewhat similar to that of an English executor with power to charge the real estate. If it were otherwise, there might arise, in cases of execution for unsecured debts, the same difficult questions which the preceding sections are intended to shut out in cases of voluntary alienation.

29. It will be observed that, by sections 37 (2) and 38 (4) of the Bill the Crown is postponed to the general heirs of the restricted owner. This appears to be right, though it is gathered from the case of The Collector of Masulipatam v. Cavaly Vencata Narrainapah (8 Moo. I. A. 529),—this precise point was not there decided,—that it is otherwise in the case of a Hindu woman's estate.

30. Sections 35 and 36 in effect provide that the restricted owner shall represent the property in judicial proceedings and compromises of disputes and for the purposes of laws of limitation and prescription, so as to bind those who take after her.

31. Sections 37 to 39, which regulate the devolution of property after the death of the restricted owner, have been drawn with a view to carry out what is understood to be the intentions of the Commission.

Their main provisions are that—

(b) when the restricted owner has been married, the property shall on her death go to certain of her descendants, and if there are no such descendants shall devolve as just stated.

32. From section 39 it will be seen, as already observed, that property may devolve upon two or more restricted owners in succession. This is to be regretted, but it seems to be an essential part of the scheme.

33. Section 40 regulates the legal relations arising where two or more widows of a deceased Khojá take his property together as restricted owners, and provides that there shall be a right of survivorship between them.

34. Section 41 provides that a widow marrying again after her husband's death shall not be entitled to take as restricted owner his property or any property of any of his lineal descendants which has descended to them from him, and that, if a widow taking any such property as restricted owner subsequently marries again, she shall be deemed for the purposes of certain sections of the chapter to have died. One effect of this latter provision is that the restricted ownership of the widow ceases on her re-marriage.

35. Coming now to Chapter VI, relating to the wills of Khojás, it will be observed that all matters connected with probate and letters of administration are in the case of Khojás, as in the case of other persons not subject to the Indian Succession Act, left to be dealt with under the Probate and Administration Act, 1881. The result of this is that the matters remaining to be provided for under this chapter are in the main the same as those which are provided for by the Hindu Wills Act, 1870, as amended by the Act just mentioned; and, as a matter of fact, the specification of the sections of the Indian Succession Act made applicable to the wills of Khojás by this chapter is based on the specification contained in the Hindu Wills Act as cut down by the Probate and Administration Act, 1881. There are, however, some important differences between the two which call for explanation here.

36. The most important of these differences is connected with the limitation on the powers of testamentary disposition. The specification of the sections of the Indian Succession Act applicable to Hindus, &c., contained in the Hindu Wills Act comprises several sections which either confer, or assume the existence of, a power of disposition in favour of unborn persons, but the Act contains a proviso to the effect that nothing therein contained shall authorize any Hindu, &c., to create in property any interest which he could not previously have created, and the Calcutta High Court have held in the recent case of Alangamonjori Dabee v. Sonamoni Dabee (I. L. R. 8 Cal. 637) that the effect of that proviso is to cut down the power of disposition, which the sections in question confer or assume to exist, to the limits imposed on a testator by the Hindu law, that is to say, as held in the well-known Tagore case, to a mere power of disposition in favour of persons who are either in fact or in contemplation of law in existence at the death of the testator.

37. It will be seen, on reference to the report of Alangamonjori Dabee's case, that, though there was no difference of opinion in the Appellate Court which finally heard it, much difficulty arose from the form in which the Hindu Wills Act had been drafted, and that the learned Judge in the Court below had been led by this to take the opposite view. This being so, it was obvious that the drafting of the Hindu Wills Act could not be followed in this particular. Moreover, it was seen that to adopt this form of drafting would in a considerable number of cases expose the testamentary dispositions of Khojás to be called in question for reasons drawn or supposed to be drawn from the extremely vague and unsettled customary law now prevailing among them, and thus the object of the present measure, which is intended to supply a definite body of law, would be to a great extent defeated. It was accordingly resolved to enact directly either that a Khojá's power of testamentary disposition should be co-extensive with that allowed by the Indian Succession Act, or should be limited somewhat in accordance with the ruling in the Tagore case.

38. It was clear that the question as to which of these courses should be adopted stood on grounds altogether independent of those on which the perpetuity question among Hindus had been discussed. The considerations with reference to which it should, in the opinion of the Government of India, be decided will be best seen from the remarks made on referring it to the local authorities for opinion. It was observed that the point was one in regard to which there was no recognized definite rule among the Khojás, and that if, having regard to the family system of that sect and its requirements in this particular, it was considered that it would be desirable to confer upon Khojás a power of disposition as large as that conferred by the Succession Act, the Governor General in Council would be prepared to confer that power; that the circumstance that, in the absence of any other rule, the Courts presume the Hindu law to be applicable to Khojás, and so might possibly, if the question then arose, hold a Khojá testator limited by the rule in the Tagore case, ought not, in the opinion of the Governor General in Council, to be permitted to stand in the way of such legislation. "The Government of India," it was said, "has ever been reluctant to alter, by legislation, personal laws like those of the Hindus and Muhammadans, which are definitely ascertainable and are established on a religious or quasi-religious basis; but a rule of Hindu law, which is applied not as such, but merely by virtue of the presumption above referred to, in the absence of any other ascertainable rule, to persons who are by religion not Hindus but Mussulmans, stands in its application to such persons on a totally different footing; and, if it appears expedient to set it aside as regards them, there need be no hesitation about doing so. The rule of the Tagore case, assuming that it would at this moment be applied by the Courts to Khojás, is as applied to them no more sacred or immutable than any of the other rules of Hindu law which at this moment may be applicable to Khojás, but which will be modified by the Bill if it becomes law. No difficulty will, therefore, be raised here on this score."

If, on the other hand, it was observed, it should appear that the rule prohibiting dispositions in favour of unborn persons had, as a matter of fact, been recognised and observed among the Khojás, or if, there being no recognized rule or established practice either way, it should be considered that the powers of disposition allowed by the Succession Act were larger than were needed for the requirements of Khojás, it would probably be desirable to limit the power of disposition in some such way as it is limited by the Hindu law as interpreted in the Tagore case. The system of intestate succession established by the Bill was in certain respects a complicated one; and if to this were to be added a power of making complicated dispositions by will, it was to be feared that we should bring about, in regard to the property of this wealthy and important sect, a state of things which it was desirable if possible to avoid.

39. The reply of the local authorities was to the effect that, as far as appeared, there was no recognized definite rule among the Khojás bearing on the point; that it was unlikely that any attempt had hitherto been made among them to create by will an interest in favour of an unborn person; that there was thus a tabula rasa; and that it was quite open to the legislature to legislate on the subject as it thought best without any fear of violating an existing custom or of running counter to any prejudice or desire of the Khojá community.

This being so, the Government of India have come to the conclusion that it is undesirable to confer on Khojás any power of testamentary disposition in favour of persons not in existence at the time of the testator's death; and accordingly all portions of the Indian Succession Act which confer, or assume the existence of, such a power have, as far as practicable, been omitted, a proviso at the same time being inserted to the effect that a bequest by a Khojá in favour of any person who has not come into existence at the death of the testator shall be void.

40. The remaining differences between this Bill and the Hindu Wills Act as regards the provisions of the Indian Succession Act applied by them are of less importance.

It may, however, be stated that the following additional provisions of the Succession Act have been made applicable, namely:—

(a) section 47, giving a father power to appoint a guardian by will—a power the existence of which was assumed by the Commission;

(b) sections 52 and 53, relating to privileged wills;

(c) section 84, which provides that, when property is bequeathed to a person and words are added which describe a class of persons but do not denote them as direct objects of a distinct and independent gift, such person is entitled to the whole of the interest of the testator therein unless a contrary intention appears by the will;

It should be added that section 187 of the Indian Succession Act, which provides that no right as executor or legatee can be established until a grant of probate or letters of administration is obtained, has been omitted for reasons similar to those which led to its being ultimately omitted from the Probate and Administration Act, 1881; and that sections 134 and 135, determining whether property bequeathed to two or more persons in succession should when its value is liable to decrease be retained in its original form, have been omitted, as it seems safer in this country to lay down no hard-and-fast rules on the subject.

41. The only other point calling for notice in connection with this chapter is that section 43, following the proviso to section 10 of the Transfer of Property Act, confers a power of bequeathing property to or for the benefit of a woman, so that she shall not have power to transfer or charge the same or her beneficial interest therein. The existence of such a power appears to have been assumed in the Bill prepared by the Commission.

43. Chapter VII, relating to maintenance and marriage and funeral expenses, calls for little notice. There was some obscurity about the corresponding provisions of the Bill prepared by the Commission, and this chapter has now been settled in accordance with what is understood from the local authorities to have been the original intention. It is believed that the only change of a substantive nature made here is in section 46, where provision has been made for the maintenance, &c., of a daughter while she remains unmarried. The chapter, however, will probably be found open to further amendment when it has been more fully considered.

43. Section 47, which provides for the recovery of sums due under this chapter, has been drawn with a view to precluding, as far as possible, the difficulties which have arisen under the Hindu law in regard to claims for maintenance, and in particular as to how far a person having a right to maintenance is entitled to follow the property of the deceased. As regards this last point, it has been thought best to place the claim for maintenance, &c., on the footing of a debt, postponing it, however, to debts proper. This will not absolutely remove all difficulty, but, by bringing the case within an existing class, it will avoid the creation of a new difficulty.

2. We have at the instance of the Government of Bombay made the Bill applicable by its own force to that Presidency, and repealed sections 4 and 5 of Act XV of 1880, the similar law at present in force there.

3. We have considered the objections taken by the British Indian Association to sections 5 and 6, but they appear to us to be based on a misapprehension as to the effect of those sections. The Association fear that a landlord's interest may be in some way affected by a sale for arrears of advances due by his tenant, but there is nothing in the Bill to warrant anything of the kind.

Section 6 relates merely to contribution between those taking the loan, and section 5, which provides for the recovery of arrears, does not enact that they shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue due in respect of any particular land, but merely as if they were arrears of land-revenue due by the defaulter, and accordingly no charge is created over land even when the loan has been taken by its owner.

4. We have also considered the suggestion of the Government of the Panjáb that the lambardárs of a village should be empowered to engage for a loan on behalf of the whole proprietory body, but we do not think that it would be safe to confer any such power. As regards the inconvenience which it is suggested may arise "when it might be desirable to make a loan to a village-community as such" from requiring "the signature of each member of the community," we would observe that loans of the description contemplated by the Bill would, as a rule, be made not to village-communities as such but to individuals, and that when, with a view to having better security for the recovery of the money, it is proposed that a large number of persons should join and make themselves jointly and severally responsible for the aggregate of the loans to all, it would be comparatively immaterial whether a few more or a few less so joined.

We have, however, in order to facilitate the working of section 6, inserted words to make it clear that the signature required by that section may be affixed by an agent duly authorized.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 23rd JULY 1884.

GENERAL REMARKS.—There was rain in all districts of the Madras Presidency, but, except in Ganjam, Kistna and Malabar, the fall was light. In Mysore slight rain fell during the week and in Coorg there has been a break in the monsoon, which is unfavourable for agricultural operations. In Bombay there was rain throughout the Presidency, but more is still needed in parts of Poona, Sholapur, Nasik, Ahmednagar, Belgaum, Dharwar, and Kaladgi. In the Berar and Hyderabad there has been good rain, and in the Rajputana and Central India States the rainfall has been heavier than that of last week. In the Central Provinces there was heavy rain in Raipur, Jabalpur, and Hoshangabad, but elsewhere the fall was lighter than that hitherto recorded. A further break would, however, be beneficial for young crops and for the kharif sowings. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, there was rain in most districts, but the fall was generally a light one, and more is needed in several places. In the Punjab there has been a decided increase in the rainfall and prospects have improved. The rainfall continues seasonable in British Burma, but in Assam is still somewhat insufficient. In Bengal the fall, except in a few districts, was generally light, and more rain is wanted everywhere, especially in Beerbhoom and Durbhunga.

The report of the Meteorological Department for the 24th instant shows no material change in the Dekkan, or in the Madras Presidency, where the rain is still deficient. Rain, however, has been general in Northern and Central India.

Harvesting continues in some districts in Madras, but the outturn is below the average. Standing crops are in want of rain in several districts. Kharif operations are in general progress in Bombay, the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, Punjab, and the Central Provinces. In places in the North-Western Provinces and Oudh they are, however, retarded by want of rain, while in the Central Provinces a break in the rains would be beneficial for them. In Assam reaping of aus and transplanting of sali crops continue, and the prospects of tea are more favourable. In Bengal transplanting operations have been retarded by want of rain; the prospects of standing crops are still good, and harvesting of aus and cutting of jute have commenced in places. In Central India and Rajputana prospects have been improved by the recent rainfall.

The public health is generally good. In Tanjore the mortality from cholera continues high.

Prices are generally stationary, with local fluctuations.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras—(July 23rd)
Bellary ...	·39 (average)	More rain urgently needed. 25 deaths from cholera.
Kurnool ...	·17 (average)	Rain still insufficient. Small-pox and cattle-disease in parts.
Ganjam ...	2·08 (average)	Fever and small-pox slight; one death from cholera.
Kistna ...	2·69 (average)	River rising 8 feet over anicut. Small-pox, fever and cattle-disease in places; one death from cholera.
Chingleput (Madras) ...	·63 (average)	Standing crops fair, but in want of rain in parts. Harvest paddy, yield half the average. Small-pox prevalent; 103 deaths from cholera.
Coimbatore ...	·01 (average)	Standing crops suffering from want of rain. Harvest dry crops outturn below average. Fever in 2 talukas; two deaths from cholera.
Tanjore ...	·05 (average)	Standing crops generally good, but in want of rain in parts. Freshets in the Cauvery 2 to 7 feet. Harvest paddy and indigo outturn below average. 838 deaths from cholera.
Madura ...	·21 (average)	Standing crops fading from want of rain. Small-pox slight in parts; 16 deaths from cholera.
Malabar ...	4·54 (average)	Cultivation of first crop progressing. Small-pox slight in eight talukas, fever in three; 2 deaths from cholera.
Travancore ...	·78	Standing crops paddy suffering from want of rain. Fever prevalent; small-pox declining.
		General Remarks. General prospects good in Northern Sircars. Rain very deficient in Ceded and Southern districts.
Bombay—(July 23rd)
Karachi ...	1·43; average of 9 other stations, 1·19.	More rain expected. River at Kotri on 21st, 3 feet 6 inches lower than on corresponding date last year. Fever in 3 and cattle-disease in 3 talukas; one case of small-pox in Karachi on 16th, imported from Hyderabad; disease also in 9 villages in the districts, 10 fresh cases, 5 deaths, 7 remaining sick. Prices—wheat, red rice and bajri in Karachi 25, 30, and 32, in Kotri 30 and 34, in Tatta 26, 30 and 32, and in Shahbandar 20, 30 and 34 pounds per rupee, respectively.
Hyderabad ...	Rain in 13 talukas; averaging 0·86.	Kharif good, but lowness of river impedes extension of cultivation. River at Kotri on 21st, 14 feet 1 inches against 17 feet 10 inches on same date last year. Small-pox in 6, fever in 4 talukas and cattle-disease in 1 taluka. Wheat 28, bajri 35, juari 38, red rice 26 and white rice 20 pounds per rupee.
Ahmedabad ...	4·64	Total rainfall 7·88. Sowing operations continue. In Parantij 7 cholera cases of which 1 fatal. Wheat 30 and bajri 32 pounds per rupee.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bombay—contd.
Baroda ...	3·28	Total rainfall 7·14. Cholera abating in city, in Baroda 99 deaths. Sowing operations in progress. Prices—bajri 27 and rice 20 pounds per rupee.
Surat ...	2·88	Total rainfall 14·45. Sowing and transplanting progressing; juari 30 and nagli 40 pounds per rupee.
Nasik ...	Rain throughout	More rain wanted in places. Sowing and transplanting in progress. Public health good. Rare cases of small-pox in Kalvan. Prices cheapening. Wheat 37, bajri 31 and rice 21 pounds per rupee.
Colaba (Bombay) ...	Rain on 4 days; total of week 3·84.	Total rainfall to date 31·42 being 7·72 below average. Abnormal temperature 2° cool to 3° warm.
Poona ...	Rain in all talukas; maximum 5·46 at Khaikala; minimum 0·54 at Indapur.	Sowings begun in all talukas. More rain wanted. Bajri 33 and juari 35, in Poona bajri 28 and juari 30 pounds per rupee.
Ahmednagar ...	1·57 in Akola; 1·11 in Jamkhed; 0·92 in Karjat; 0·77 in Parner; 0·75 in Sangamner; scanty in other talukas, except Shrigonda and Sangamner.	More rain wanted only in a few villages of each taluka. Juari—maximum 60 pounds in Sangamner, minimum 34 in Karjat; bajri—maximum 48 in Sangamner, minimum 36 in Parner.
Sholapur ...	0·89; Barsi, 1·18; Madha 1·25; Karmala, 1·30; Pandharpur, 0·38; Sangola, 0·82 and Malsiras 0·36.	Kharif sowing only commenced here and there in all talukas, except in Sholapur, Sangola and Pandharpur, where no sowings have been made. Rain much needed. Juari 39 pounds 23 tolas and bajri 39 pounds 1 tola per rupee.
Dharwar ...	3·23 in Hangal; 2·39 in Kalghatgi; nearly 2·0 in Hubli and Bankapur; 1·61 in Dharwar and Kod, elsewhere less than 1·0.	Rice sowing completed; and sowing of early juari in progress, except in Navalgund, Gadag and Ron and part of Ranibennur where more rain is required; rice crops benefited by the rainfall. Cholera abating in Karajgi and Gadag talukas, but severe in Dharwar and Hubli talukas. Scarcity of drinking-water still continues to be felt in parts of the district. Rice 32 and jwari 57 pounds per rupee.
Kanara ...	Karwar, 5·76; Kumpta, 7·97; Sirsi, 9·28; Haliyal, 5·75.	Total rainfall 43·97. Transplanting rice plants. Common rice in Karwar 12; district average 15 seers per rupee. Small-pox in Karwar, 4 cases, in Supa 10, in Mugud 1, and in Siddapur 3; in Kumpta 4, in Sirsi 3 and in Haliyal 2 deaths.
Rajkot ...	1·56	Total rainfall 15·16. General health good. Weather cool and showery. Bajri 32 and juari 40 pounds per rupee.
		General Remarks.—Rain throughout the presidency. Kharif sowing in progress in all districts. More rain still needed in parts of Poona, Sholapur, Nasik, Ahmednagar, Belgaum, Dharwar, and Kaladgi. River continues to fall in Sind. Scarcity of drinking-water still continues in parts of Dharwar. Cholera in parts of nine districts. Fever, cattle-disease and small-pox in a few districts.
Bengal—(July 23rd)
Chittagong ...	3·73	Weather seasonable. Prospects of crops fair. Prices steady. Cholera and cattle-disease continues.
Dacca ...	2·0	Cutting of jute continues; roachia and shail paddy being sown. Prospects of crops good.
24-Pergunnahs (Calcutta)	3·50	Transplanting of aman paddy going on. More rain wanted in Baraset, Dum-Dum and Bussirhat sub-divisions. Prospects of standing crops favourable and price of common rice varies from 12½ to 16 seers per rupee. Fever as usual in this season prevails in Barrackpore. Public health, otherwise good. Cattle-disease abating. Rivers rising.
Moorshedabad ...	0·34	Weather hot and dry. Standing crops though folding out are making little progress and the season will be a backward one.
Rajshahye ...	1·05	More rain wanted for aus and aman crops. Prospects favourable. Public health fair.
Burdwan ...	0·61	Rain still insufficient for transplanting purposes. Seedlings healthy.
Rungpore ...	0·31	Weather cloudy. Prospects of standing crops good. Prices of rice from 3 to 4 rupees per maund. Malarious fever prevails.

The Hon'ble T. C. Hope, C.S.I., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble Sir A. Colvin, K.C.M.G., C.I.E.

The Hon'ble J. W. Quinton.

The Hon'ble D. G. Barkley.

AGRICULTURISTS' LOANS BILL.

The Hon'ble SIR STEUART BAYLEY moved that the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and provide for the extension of the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879, be taken into consideration. He said:—

"When I obtained permission in January last to introduce this Bill, I explained that the objects which we had in view were, first, to remedy an omission in the original Act under which the process for recovering an original loan did not extend to the recovery of costs and interest; secondly, to enable the Bill to be extended to other provinces at the option of Local Governments; and, thirdly, to provide for loans being made to village-communities or associated agriculturists, and to facilitate their settling among themselves the shares in which such loans should be recovered. The Report of the Select Committee shows what alterations have been made in the first draft of the Bill in addition to securing these three objects, and the alterations are all very small ones.

"We have made the Bill of its own vigour applicable to Bombay, and have at the same time repealed two sections of the local Act, XV of 1880, which cover very much the same ground as our own Bill. This we have done at the request of the Bombay Government and its legal advisers. We have also endeavoured to meet a suggestion of one of the Hon'ble Judges of the Madras High Court that costs incurred in the process of recovery should be recovered in a single procedure, together with the interest and cost of the loan. We have also made a minor alteration in section 6 of the Bill providing that joint applicants should be at liberty to sign or mark the distribution-paper either themselves or by an authorised agent.

"These are the alterations which have been made in the Bill; but we have received some other suggestions and criticisms which I think call for a brief notice to explain why we have not been able to adopt them. First came from British Burma a suggestion that the Bill should be extended so as to include loans to fishermen, and from the Panjáb the suggestion that the Bill should be made to cover loans to distressed artisans and others. We have not seen our way to accepting either of these suggestions, and for the same reason, namely, that the scope of the Bill is different in regard to its objects. The object of the law is to enable Government to lend money on easy terms, and to recover, by a summary process, loans made for specific purposes—either for the relief of distress or for the purchase of seed and cattle—to specific people, namely, the owners and occupiers of arable land. The general policy of encouraging frequent resort to such loans has not been uncontested on economical grounds and as tending to pauperization, and it may be admitted that they should be made somewhat sparingly and in exceptional cases; but the real justification of the policy itself seems to me to be the position of Government as the great landlord of the country, and the direct bearing which the welfare of the cultivator has on its revenues. This argument would not apply with the same force to other industries, and there is no justification for Government, as part of its ordinary revenue-procedure, making loans to fishermen which would not equally apply to weavers, spinners, miners or silversmiths, who none of them stand in the same direct relations to Government as do the great bulk of the agricultural population of the country. We have therefore, after full consideration, rejected this proposal as beyond the scope of the Bill and outside the special circumstances which justify it. Nor have we been able to accept a suggestion put forward by the Ajmer authorities that Government might authorise loans being made for the purposes of this Bill by private persons, and recover them as arrears of revenue. A similar proposal, when it was introduced into the Bill relating to loans for agricultural improvements, was not accepted by the Secretary of State; and while the principle which is really at issue in connection with the scheme for agricultural banks is still under the consideration of the Secretary of State, I think it would be premature to introduce it into a measure of the kind now under consideration.

"There was a further suggestion from the Government of the Panjáb—that the distribution-paper—that is, the paper which shows the shares in which the joint loans are to be recovered from the borrowers—should be signed by the lambardár, or headman, for the whole village instead of requiring the signature of each recipient. This was proposed as a matter of administrative convenience, and it had something to be said for it; but the majority of the Committee thought that it would be dangerous to accept a paper so signed as evidence as to the responsibility of each individual, especially as the distribution-paper is to be conclusive evidence in Court. If it is not made conclusive evidence, the paper will be of very little value; and it seemed to us that all we could do was to provide that the borrower should be at liberty to affix his mark to the distribution-paper by an agent instead of personally. Nor on consideration, is the necessity for the lambardár's interference very apparent; the Bill does not deal with large loans for improvements in which a whole village may very probably be interested, but with small loans for seed and cattle, which are for the most part matters of individual concern. Doubtless, on some occasions, as in the case of famine, it might be desirable to administer loans for the relief of distress through the village-organization collectively, but we think that what we have proposed will go far to meet the difficulties of the case; and, even if it does not, it is better to accept the inconvenience involved than to adopt a dangerous precedent which is contrary to the usual practice and theory of legal documents in India. I may mention here that this section has been introduced specially with a view to the coparcenary villages of the Panjáb, and it is not anticipated that, save to meet exceptional cases, it will be found applicable elsewhere than in Northern India.

"We have also received some criticisms from the British Indian Association. They object to the Bill being made applicable to Bengal, and say that if the Bill is made so applicable the rayyats will not use it and that no one will apply for loans. We do not apply the Bill proprio vigore to Bengal; we merely say that the Local Government may extend it by notification to Bengal if it please, and the Local Government say that in cases of severe distress it will be necessary to have some such law. The British Indian Association are evidently under a misapprehension on this subject, for, in reference to the famine of 1874, they assume that the loans have been recovered with ease and without recourse to much litigation; but, as a matter of fact, the Bengal legislature were obliged, in 1875, to pass a special law, pro hac vice, for the recovery of advances made in the previous year; and the procedure adopted was in fact the same as this—to make them recoverable under the Certificate Act, VII (B. C.) of 1868. Of course this procedure might be repeated on each occasion and a fresh law passed, but it seems to me to be a much simpler process to have the law laid down once for all. Of course, if no one applies for a loan, no harm is done. But, although they take that objection, they go on to take another not quite consistent with it. The British Indian Association seem to be under great dread that in some way the grant of loans to tenants may prejudice the landlords, and they ask if it is intended that the lands of the owners should be liable to sale for the debts of the rayyats. I do not quite understand how such a misapprehension can possibly have arisen,—probably from omission to examine closely the meaning of the words 'recovered as arrears of land-revenue,'—but clearly nothing but the tenant's own property or his surety's can be proceeded against. What will actually happen will be this. The law for the recovery of arrears of land-revenue in Bengal is contained in Act VII (B. C.) of 1880—called the Public Demands Act. Under that Act, the Collector, when the arrear is due, and after enquiry, issues a certificate which may within a year be contested in the Civil Court. That certificate has the force of a decree of the Civil Court and will be executed against either the moveable or immoveable property of the debtor, and, as such, it will prejudice the landlord's claims neither more nor less than any other decree of Court.

"This I think disposes of the more important objections in the letter from the Hon'ble Kristodás Pál, the Secretary of the Association; and I may perhaps be allowed to take this opportunity of expressing the regret with which we have heard of our colleague's severe illness, and how glad we are to learn that he is now out of danger. For myself I agree with him in thinking that the Bill is less applicable to Bengal than to any other province in India, and under ordinary circumstances I should not like to see it frequently applied to Bengal; but cases may occur in which the Government may have to take upon itself the duty of relieving distress by making loans for the recovery of which it is necessary to have some procedure, and I think we may safely leave it to the discretion of the Local Government to extend the Act or not as it thinks necessary."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble SIR STEUART BAYLEY also moved that the Bill, as amended, be passed.

The Motion was put and agreed to.

SETTLEMENT-OFFICERS' (PANJÁB) DECISIONS VALIDATION.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT presented the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill for the validation of decisions passed on appeal by certain Settlement-officers in the Panjáb.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat; the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January, 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow:—

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

A premium of Five Thousand Rupees will be given to the design most approved by the Commissioner with the assistance of a Committee of the Corporation. Three thousand rupees for the second and two thousand rupees for the third. But the Municipal Commissioner will not bind himself to pay any or either of the premia until he has satisfied himself that the estimates are at least approximately accurate, and no prize will be awarded for a design unless it fairly fulfils the conditions laid down and is of recognized artistic merit.

The total cost of the building is not to exceed five lakhs (₹5,00,000) distributed approximately as follows: four lakhs for the Offices and one lakh for the Municipal Hall.

The designs to include general drawings, plans, elevations and sections accompanied by a Specification and an estimate based upon the Schedule of Rates.

Designs to be sent to the Commissioner under a nom de plume or motto, accompanied by a sealed letter, disclosing the name of the competitor.

Full information will be furnished on payment of ₹10 or £1 on application at the office of the Municipal Commissioner, Bombay, or at Messrs. G. W. & R. Oliver, 1, Cobbet Court, Grace Church Street, London.

The Municipal Commissioner does not bind himself to employ the architect whose design is adopted to supply working and detailed drawn or to superintend the carrying out of the work, but in the event of his so doing the usual fees sanctioned by the Institute of British Architects will be paid.

E. C. K. OLLIVANT,
Municipal Commissioner.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 24th July, 1884, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XII OF 1884.

An Act to amend and provide for the extension of the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879.

X of 1879.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879, and provide for its extension to any part of British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Short title. Commencement.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884; and

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of August, 1884.

Local extent.

2. (1) This section and section 3 extend to the whole of British India.

(2) The rest of this Act extends in the first instance only to the territories respectively administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Ajmer.

(3) But any other Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the rest of this Act to the whole or any part of the territories under its administration.

Repeal of Act X of 1879, and sections 4 and 5 of Act XV of 1880.

X of 1879. XV of 1880.

3. (1) On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879, and sections 4 and 5 of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act, 1880, shall, except as regards the recovery of advances made before this Act comes into force and of the interest thereon, be repealed.

(2) All rules made under those Acts shall be deemed to be made under this Act.

Power for Local Government to make rules.

4. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules as to loans to be made to owners and occupiers of arable land, for the relief of distress, the purchase of seed or cattle, or any other purpose not specified in the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, but connected with agricultural objects. XIX of 1883.

(2) All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette.

Recovery of loans.

5. Every loan made in accordance with such rules, all interest (if any) chargeable thereon, and costs (if any) incurred in making or recovering the same, shall, when they become due, be recoverable from the person to whom the loan was made, or from any person who has become surety for the repayment thereof, as if they were arrears of land-revenue or costs incurred in recovering the same due by the person to whom the loan was made or by his surety.

Liability of joint borrowers as among themselves.

6. When a loan is made under this Act to the members of a village-community or to any other persons on such terms that all of them are jointly and severally bound to the Government for the payment of the whole amount payable in respect thereof, and a statement showing the portion of that amount which as among themselves each is bound to contribute is entered upon the order granting the loan and is signed, marked or sealed by each of them or his agent duly authorized in this behalf and by the officer making the order, that statement shall be conclusive evidence of the portion of that amount which as among themselves each of those persons is bound to contribute.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 22.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Second publication.]

The following Report of the Select Committee on the Bill to amend and provide for the extension of the Northern India Takkáví Act, 1879, was presented to the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 9th July, 1884:—

WE, the undersigned Members of the Select Committee to which the Bill to amend and provide for the extension of the Northern India Takkáví Act, 1879, was referred, have considered the Bill and the papers noted in the margin, and have now the honour to submit this our Report.

From Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Coorg, No. 1661-I. 204, dated 5th February, 1884 [Printed Paper No. 1].
From Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 1429, dated 14th February, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No. 2].
From Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 1558, dated 19th February, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No. 3].
From Officiating Assistant Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Central Provinces, No. 811-20, dated 19th February, 1884, and enclosure [Printed Papers No. 4].
From Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 1699, dated 23rd February, 1884, and enclosure [Printed Papers No. 5].
From Secretary to Government, Bombay, No. 1670, dated 23rd February, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No 6].
From Secretary to Chief Commissioner, British Burma, No. 441-42A., dated 21st February, 1884 [Printed Paper No 7].
From Secretary to Government, North-Western Provinces and Oudh, No. 413, dated 29th February, 1884 [Printed Paper No. 8].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 630, dated 8th March, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No 9].
From Officiating Junior Secretary to Government, Panjáb, No. 110, dated 25th March, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No. 10].
From Chief Commissioner, Ajmer-Merwára, No. 231, dated 2nd April, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No. 11].
From Secretary for Birár to Resident, Haidarábád, No. 1106., dated 4th April, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No. 12].
From Officiating Secretary to Chief Commissioner, Assam, No. 443, dated 10th April, 1884 [Printed Paper No. 13].
From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 1010, dated 24th April, 1884, and enclosure [Printed Papers No. 14].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 282T.R., dated 6th May, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No. 15].

2. We have at the instance of the Government of Bombay made the Bill applicable by its own force to that Presidency, and repealed sections 4 and 5 of Act XV of 1880, the similar law at present in force there.

3. We have considered the objections taken by the British Indian Association to sections 5 and 6, but they appear to us to be based on a misapprehension as to the effect of those sections. The Association fear that a landlord's interest may be in some way affected by a sale for arrears of advances due by his tenant, but there is nothing in the Bill to warrant anything of the kind.

Section 6 relates merely to contribution between those taking the loan, and section 5, which provides for the recovery of arrears, does not enact that they shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue due in respect of any particular land, but merely as if they were arrears of land-revenue due by the defaulter, and accordingly no charge is created over land even when the loan has been taken by its owner.

4. We have also considered the suggestion of the Government of the Panjáb that the lambardárs of a village should be empowered to engage for a loan on behalf of the whole proprietory body, but we do not think that it would be safe to confer any such power.

As regards the inconvenience which it is suggested may arise "when it might be desirable to make a loan to a village-community as such" from requiring "the signature of each member of the community," we would observe that loans of the description contemplated by the Bill would, as a rule, be made not to village-communities as such but to individuals, and that when, with a view to having better security for the recovery of the money, it is proposed that a large number of persons should join and make themselves jointly and severally responsible for the aggregate of the loans to all, it would be comparatively immaterial whether a few more or a few less so joined.

We have, however, in order to facilitate the working of section 6, inserted words to make it clear that the signature required by that section may be affixed by an agent duly authorized.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 30th JULY 1884.

GENERAL REMARKS.—There has been slight rain throughout the Madras Presidency, but more is still wanted in the Ceded and Southern Districts. In Mysore the fall has again been light, and the deficiency is beginning to cause some anxiety in the province. The rains have set in again in Coorg and there was a good fall during the week under report. In the Bombay Presidency rain was general, but more is still urgently wanted in parts of the Dekkhan, especially in Dharwar. Rain has fallen in varying quantities throughout the Berars, Hyderabad, and the Central India and Rajputana States. Heavy rain continues to fall in the Central Provinces, and a break is needed. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh most districts have had rain, but more would be beneficial, especially for the early rice. Good rain continues to fall in the Punjab. In British Burma the rainfall is still behind that of last year. In Assam and Bengal the fall has been heavier than that recorded last week, but more would be beneficial for transplanting operations in both provinces.

Harvesting continues in two districts of the Madras Presidency, and standing crops are generally in want of rain. Kharif sowings continue in Bombay and the Punjab; in the former they have been retarded in places either by too much rain or by a deficiency of rain. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh and in the Central Provinces kharif sowings have been mostly completed, and in the latter province weeding operations are in hand, but they are retarded by the heavy rain. In the Central India and Rajputana States prospects have much improved by the recent rain. In Assam the transplanting of sali crops and the reaping and gathering of the aus crop are in hand. Harvesting of early paddy and jute has commenced in some places in Bengal.

Cholera is prevalent in most provinces. The mortality in Tanjore was again heavy, and in Dharwar there were also many deaths.

Prices show a slight tendency to rise in some places in Bengal; otherwise they are generally stationary.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras—(July 30th)
Bellary ...	·28 (average)	More rain urgently needed. 45 deaths from cholera.
Kurnool ...	·42 (average)	Insufficient rain in places. Small-pox and cattle-disease in parts.
Ganjam ...	·78 (average)	Small-pox slight in 2 talukas; 2 deaths from cholera.
Kistna ...	1·14 (average)	River 7·75 feet over anicut. Small-pox, fever, and cattle-disease in places; 13 deaths from cholera.
Chingleput (Madras) ...	·11 (average)	Standing crops fair, but in want of rain in parts. Harvest paddy, yield half the average. Small-pox prevalent; 99 deaths from cholera.
Coimbatore ...	·03 (average)	Standing crops suffering from want of rain; harvest dry crops, out-turn about average. Fever in two talukas.
Tanjore ...	·44 (average)	Standing crops generally good, but in want of rain in parts. Freshets in the Cauvery one to six feet. 998 deaths from cholera.
Madura ...	·10 (average)	Standing crops fading from want of rain. Small-pox slight in parts.
Malabar ...	3·03 (average)	Insufficient rain in parts. Cultivation of first crop progressing. Small-pox slight in eight and fever in two talukas; 7 deaths from cholera.
Travancore ...	·14	Standing crops paddy in ear suffering from want of rain. Fever prevalent; small-pox in parts. General Remarks.—General prospects good in Northern Sircars. Rainfall still deficient in Ceded and Southern districts.

HIGH COURT—Original Side.

NOTIFICATIONS.

Calcutta, the 28th July 1884.

The Honorable the Chief Justice has, with the approval of His Excellency the Governor General of India in Council, appointed Mr. J. G. Apcar, Barrister-at-Law, temporarily, until further order, to be Clerk of the Crown, with effect from the 9th instant, for the purpose of performing the duties connected with the criminal sessions, with liberty to him to practise as an advocate, except during the criminal sessions or in cases connected therewith, or for or against persons charged with offences for which they are liable to be committed to the High Court for trial.

The Honorable the Chief Justice of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal has appointed Charles Hall Adams, Esq., of No. 5, Court Street, Boston, Solicitor, a Commissioner within all parts of Boston for the purpose of taking under the law in force in British India the acknowledgments of married women of deeds to be executed by them in respect of property in British India.

By Order,
R. BELCHAMBERS,
Registrar.

The 31st July 1884.

The following rules passed by the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal under Chapter 4 of the Transfer of Property Act, 1882, are applicable to the Original Side:—

1. Every application under Section 83 shall be made by a verified petition, stating the facts.

Application under Section 83.

2. Unless otherwise ordered, there shall be paid into Court, in addition to the sum deposited under Section 83, or any subsequent section, a sum sufficient to provide for the fees and charges of the Accountant General and the Bank of Bengal, and for the mortgagees' costs of obtaining payment Payment into Court of costs and expenses under Section 83 or any subsequent section.

out of Court; and also when such payment is made under Section 83, a further sum to provide for the mortgagees' costs of transferring the property, and causing such transfer to be registered; such costs to be estimated and certified by the Taxing Officer.

Costs to be estimated and certified.

3. Every order for payment of money into Court, under Section 83, shall specify the sums to be paid and the purpose for which each sum is intended.

Order for payment of money into Court under Section 83.

4. Unless otherwise ordered, the applicant, or his Attorney, shall serve, or cause to be served, the notice to be given under Section 83.

Service of Notice under Section 83.

5. When money is paid into Court under Section 86, or under any subsequent section, the person making such payment shall forthwith give written notice thereof to the person or persons on whose account such payment is made.

Of notice of payment under any subsequent section.

6. Every application by a mortgagee to obtain payment of money out of Court shall be by a verified petition.

Application for payment of money out of Court.

And, when made under Section 83, it shall be shown whether the property has been transferred, and (where the applicant was in possession) possession delivered up, free from incumbrance, and whether the transfer has been registered. The documents of title, which were held by the applicant, shall also be accounted for.

Under Section 57 (c.)

Or, when made under Section 86, or Section 92, it shall be shown that the provisions of such section have been complied with.

Or under Section 86 or Section 92.

Or, when made under Sections 88 and 89, or Section 93, the documents of title, which were held by the appplicant, shall be accounted for.

Or under Sections 88 and 89 or Section 93.

7. Every application under the last preceding rule shall be on notice to the person by whom, or on whose behalf, the money was paid, or to his Attorney, unless the Court shall think fit to dispense with such notice.

To be on notice.

8. Unless otherwise ordered, whenever any notice, or order, is served under the Act, or under these rules, an affidavit, or affirmation, in proof of such service, shall be filed as soon as possible thereafter.

Affidavit of service of notice or order

9. Where it shall appear that previous to any payment into Court under Section 83, or any subsequent section, a sufficient tender was made to, and refused by, the mortgagee, he shall not be allowed to obtain payment of the amount deposited in Court to meet his claim, without deduction of the fees and charges of the Accountant General and the Bank, nor shall he be allowed his costs of obtaining such payment. Except as aforesaid, or when otherwise ordered, the mortgagee shall be allowed all costs properly incurred by him.

Costs of mortgagee.

Disallowances where tender refused.

10. If through default on the part of the plaintiff it becomes necessary to obtain an enlargement of time under Section 87, no interest shall be allowed for the enlarged time.

When interest disallowed.

11. On an application for payment of money out of Court, under Section 83, or any subsequent section, by a mortgagee, who has complied with the orders of the Court and the provisions of the Act, and of these rules, so far as they relate to him, or apply to his case, and has, when required so to do, transferred the property and possession, free from incumbrance, and caused such transfer to be registered, and accounted for the documents of title which were held by him, the Court shall make such order or orders as to it shall seem fit for the disposal of the capital sum and interest thereon and of the fund for costs and expenses.

Order for payment of money out of Court, under Section 83, or any subsequent section.

12. Every decree for sale under the Act shall direct that, if the proceeds of sale shall not be sufficient to satisfy the decree, the defendant (if the original mortgagor) shall personally (or if the representative in estate of the original mortgagor, shall out of his estate) pay the amount of the deficiency.

Decree for sale to provide for payment of amount of deficiency.

13. Every final order for foreclosure under Section 87, or Section 93, shall direct that possession of the property be given to the mortgagee, except where he is already in possession. It shall also at the option of the mortgagee be drawn up with a recital of the decree and the proceedings had thereunder, and with a full description of the property, or without any such recital or description.

Final foreclosure order, Section 87 or Section 93.

14. Where immoveable property is sold under Section 88, or any subsequent section, the purchaser may, on application to a Judge in Chambers, obtain a certificate of sale as evidence of the title to the property sold to him, and may also, at his own costs, obtain a conveyance from the mortgagor.

Conveyance of property sold under Section 88 or any subsequent section.

15. Every enforceable order made under Section 83 may be enforced under the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, and shall for that purpose be deemed to have been made in a suit instituted under that Code.

Order under Section 83 how enforced.

16. Rules 45 and 46 of the rules of the 1st of August 1877 [Rules 431 and 432, Belchambers R. and O., pages 200, 201] relating to sales by the Registrar are hereby repealed.

Rules repealed.

Rules amended.

From rule 50 of the same rules shall be omitted the words "unless otherwise ordered the costs of such application in the case of a person under disability shall be part of the costs of the sale, and in other cases shall be borne and paid by the defaulting party."

At the end of rule 58 of the same rules shall be added the words "or the grant to him of a certificate of sale."

17. Rules 337 to 449 [Belchambers R. and O., pages 189 to 205] relating to sales by the Registrar as modified by the last preceding rule, and so far as they are applicable, shall apply to all sales by the Court under Sections 88 and 89 or 92 and 93.

Rules relating to sales by Registrar to apply to sales under the Act.

18. The money rules 597*a* to 641 [Belchambers R. and O., pages 240 to 253] shall also, so far as they are applicable, apply to the payment of money into Court, and out of Court, under these rules.

Money rules to apply to payments under these rules.

19. The form set forth in the annexed schedule shall be followed with such variations as the circumstances of each case may require.

Form.

Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat; the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January, 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow:—

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

Judge Advocate Generals, Bengal, Madras and Bombay.

Superintendent, Horse Breeding Operations.

Director, Army Remount Operations.

II.—The tenure of the following appointments is subject to the same conditions as those in Clause I, and to the further condition that they must be vacated on promotion to the rank of general officer :—

Deputy Judge Advocate General of Bengal.

Deputy Commissaries General, Bengal, Madras and Bombay.

Military Secretary to the Government of the Punjab.

Superintendents of Remount Depôts, Bengal and Madras.

Superintendent of Family Payments and Pensions, Madras.

Superintendents and Agents, Army Clothing, Bengal, Madras and Bombay.

*Superintendent and Assistant Superintendent of British Army Schools.

Superintendent of Hissar Farm.

III.—The tenure of the following appointments is also limited to five years; the incumbents will be borne (seconded) on the strength of regiments, or, in the case of officers belonging to a department in which the tenure is not limited, on the list of that department :—

Assistant Secretary to the Government of India in the Military Department.

Deputy Accountant General, Military Department.

Assistant Superintendent of Remount Depôts.

Remount Agent, Calcutta.

Officers of the Transport Department, Bengal, Madras and Bombay.

Superintendent, Native Army Schools.

IV.—Officers of the Commissariat, Military Accounts, and Judge Advocate General's Departments, excepting those whose tenure of appointment is governed by Clauses I and II, will vacate their appointments under any one of the following conditions :—

(i) Succession to colonel's allowances.

(ii) Promotion to major-general.

(iii) Attaining to 52 years of age.†

† [This clause will not take effect until the 1st January, 1887.]

V.—Officers who may revert or who have already reverted to duty from a general or departmental staff appointment will not be eligible for re-appointment to the army or departmental staff (special appointments in the field excepted) until they shall have performed two years' regimental or approved military duty not on the staff.

VI.—Officers appointed to the Commissariat, Military Accounts, and Judge Advocate General's Departments will be seconded in their regiments for two years, and will retain for that time the option of reverting to regimental duty. At the end of the second year they will be struck off the strength of their regiments, and thenceforward will not be eligible to revert to regimental duty, unless an appointment is available to which they can be transferred. The period of probation in these departments will, however, remain as at present.

VII.—Officers now holding appointments of hitherto unlimited tenure, to which they were appointed before the 1st January, 1881, will be allowed a tenure of 7 years from date of appointment, or such further extension as will enable them to complete 32 years' service for pension, but not exceeding 9 years' tenure in all.

Provided, however, that no officer will be required to vacate an appointment the tenure of which has heretofore been unlimited (except on promotion to general officer, or on succession to the colonel's allowances) before the 1st January, 1886.

VIII.—Officers vacating appointments under Clauses IV (iii) and VII will be eligible for the advantages of G. G. O. No. 192 of 1883.

PART IV.

Acts of the Governor General's Council assented to by the Governor General.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

[Third publication.]

The following Act of the Governor General of India in Council received the assent of His Excellency the Governor General on the 24th July, 1884, and is hereby promulgated for general information:—

ACT No. XII OF 1884.

An Act to amend and provide for the extension of the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879.

WHEREAS it is expedient to amend the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879, and provide for its extension to any part of British India; It is hereby enacted as follows:— X of 1879.

1. (1) This Act may be called the Agriculturists' Loans Act, 1884; and Short title.

Commencement.

(2) It shall come into force on the first day of August, 1884.

2. (1) This section and section 3 extend to the whole of British India.

Local extent.

(2) The rest of this Act extends in the first instance only to the territories respectively administered by the Governor of Bombay in Council, the Lieutenant-Governors of the North-Western Provinces and the Panjáb, and the Chief Commissioners of Oudh, the Central Provinces, Assam and Ajmer.

(3) But any other Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, extend the rest of this Act to the whole or any part of the territories under its administration.

3. (1) On and from the day on which this Act comes into force, the Northern India Takkávi Act, 1879, and sections 4 and 5 of the Bombay Revenue Jurisdiction Act, 1880, shall, except as regards the recovery of advances made before this Act comes into force and of the interest thereon, be repealed.

Repeal of Act X of 1879, and sections 4 and 5 of Act XV of 1880.

X of 1879.

XV of 1880.

(2) All rules made under those Acts shall be deemed to be made under this Act.

4. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, make rules as to loans to be made to owners and occupiers of arable land, for the relief of distress, the purchase of seed or cattle, or any other purpose not specified in the Land Improvement Loans Act, 1883, but connected with agricultural objects.

Power for Local Government to make rules.

XIX of 1883.

(2) All such rules shall be published in the local official Gazette.

5. Every loan made in accordance with such rules, all interest (if any) chargeable thereon, and costs (if any) incurred in making or recovering the same, shall, when they become due, be recoverable from the person to whom the loan was made, or from any person who has become surety for the repayment thereof, as if they were arrears of land-revenue or costs incurred in recovering the same due by the person to whom the loan was made or by his surety.

Recovery of loans.

6. When a loan is made under this Act to the members of a village-community or to any other persons on such terms that all of them are jointly and severally bound to the Government for the payment of the whole amount payable in respect thereof, and a statement showing the portion of that amount which as among themselves each is bound to contribute is entered upon the order granting the loan and is signed, marked or sealed by each of them or his agent duly authorized in this behalf and by the officer making the order, that statement shall be conclusive evidence of the portion of that amount which as among themselves each of those persons is bound to contribute.

Liability of joint borrowers as among themselves.

From Chief Secretary to Government, Madras, No. 1010, dated 24th April, 1884, and enclosure [Printed Papers No. 14].
From Officiating Secretary to Government, Bengal, No. 282T.R., dated 6th May, 1884, and enclosures [Printed Papers No. 15].

2. We have at the instance of the Government of Bombay made the Bill applicable by its own force to that Presidency, and repealed sections 4 and 5 of Act XV of 1880, the similar law at present in force there.

3. We have considered the objections taken by the British Indian Association to sections 5 and 6, but they appear to us to be based on a misapprehension as to the effect of those sections. The Association fear that a landlord's interest may be in some way affected by a sale for arrears of advances due by his tenant, but there is nothing in the Bill to warrant anything of the kind.

Section 6 relates merely to contribution between those taking the loan, and section 5, which provides for the recovery of arrears, does not enact that they shall be recoverable as if they were arrears of land-revenue due in respect of any particular land, but merely as if they were arrears of land-revenue due by the defaulter, and accordingly no charge is created over land even when the loan has been taken by its owner.

4. We have also considered the suggestion of the Government of the Panjáb that the lambardárs of a village should be empowered to engage for a loan on behalf of the whole proprietory body, but we do not think that it would be safe to confer any such power.

As regards the inconvenience which it is suggested may arise "when it might be desirable to make a loan to a village-community as such" from requiring "the signature of each member of the community," we would observe that loans of the description contemplated by the Bill would, as a rule, be made not to village-communities as such but to individuals, and that when, with a view to having better security for the recovery of the money, it is proposed that a large number of persons should join and make themselves jointly and severally responsible for the aggregate of the loans to all, it would be comparatively immaterial whether a few more or a few less so joined.

We have, however, in order to facilitate the working of section 6, inserted words to make it clear that the signature required by that section may be affixed by an agent duly authorized.

REPORTS ON THE STATE OF THE SEASON AND PROSPECTS OF THE CROPS FOR THE WEEK ENDING THE 6th AUGUST 1884.

GENERAL REMARKS.—There has been rain in all districts of the Madras Presidency, but the fall has again been slight, and more is wanted everywhere. In Mysore slight rain fell throughout the Province, and prospects, though still uncertain, have somewhat improved. Heavy rain fell in Coorg during the week. In the Bombay Presidency there was good rain in most districts, and prospects have generally improved. More rain is however wanted in Sholapur, Dharwar and Kaladgi. Rain has been general in the Berars and Hyderabad and throughout the Central India and Rajputana States. From the Central Provinces heavy rain continues to be reported, especially in Jubbulpore, Hoshangabad, and Saugor; a break in the weather is greatly needed. Rain again fell in all districts of the North-Western Provinces and Oudh, but it was insufficient in Benares, Gorakhpore, Lucknow, and parts of Sitapur, where more is much wanted. In the Punjab there was a fair amount of rain in most districts. Seasonable weather continues in British Burma. In Assam the rainfall has been below that of previous weeks, while an insufficiency is also reported from Bengal.

The last report, dated the 7th instant, of the Meteorological Department reports heavy rain at Mussoorie and other hill stations and slight showers in the Eastern Punjab. Elsewhere the country north-westward of a line from Surat to Lucknow is rainless at present.

Harvesting continues in some districts of the Madras Presidency, with outturns below the average. The standing crops are in want of rain in most places. Kharif sowings continue in the Bombay Presidency and in the Punjab, and in the former transplanting and weeding are also in hand. In the North-Western Provinces and Oudh the condition of the kharif crops is generally satisfactory. In the Central Provinces the heavy rain, if it continues, is likely to be injurious to the standing crops; weeding, which was in progress in places, is still retarded by the excessive moisture. In the Central India and Rajputana States the prospects of the standing crops are good. Early rice is being reaped in Assam and Bengal, and transplanting of late rice is going on. In parts of Bengal transplanting operations are retarded by insufficient rain, which has also affected standing crops to some extent in many districts.

The public health is generally good. In Tanjore there has been a decrease in the mortality from cholera.

Prices are generally stationary, with local fluctuations.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Madras—(Aug. 6th)
Bellary ...	·35 (average)	More rain urgently needed. 28 deaths from cholera.
Kurnool ...	·16 (average)	More rain wanted. Small-pox and cattle-disease in parts.
Ganjam ...	·96 (average)	Small-pox slight in two taluks; 5 deaths from cholera.
Kistna ...	1·37 (average)	River rising 12·25 feet over anicut. Standing crops generally good. Small-pox, fever, and cattle-disease in places; 13 deaths from cholera.
Chingleput (Madras) ...	1·10 (average)	Standing crops fair, but in want of rain in parts; harvest paddy, yield half the average. Small-pox prevalent; 48 deaths from cholera.
Coimbatore ...	·23 (average)	Standing crops everywhere suffering from want of rain; harvest dry crops, outturn below average. Fever and small-pox in parts.
Tanjore ...	·06 (average)	More rain much wanted in parts. Standing crops generally good. Rivers 1 to 5 feet. Harvest paddy in parts, outturn below average. 653 deaths from cholera, which is decreasing.
Madura ...	·01 (average)	Standing crops fading from want of rain; harvest cholum in one taluk, yield below average. Small-pox slight in parts; 3 deaths from cholera.
Malabar ...	6·34	Insufficient rain in parts. Standing crops, first crop paddy growing. Small-pox slight in 8 taluks, fever in 2; 8 deaths from cholera.
Travancore ...	1·32	Standing crops paddy in ear suffering from want of rain. Fever prevalent; small-pox in parts. General Remarks.—General prospects good in Northern Sircars. Rain deficient and prospects doubtful in Ceded and Southern Districts.
Bombay—(Aug. 6th)
Karachi ...	No rain; average of 14 other stations, 1·64.	River rising on 4th, 17 feet 5 inches against 15 feet 5 inches on same date last year. Fever in 3 talukas; cattle-disease in 5 talukas, some deaths in Shahbandar and Ghorabari. Worms in crops in Tatta, Mirpur Botoro, and Sujawal. Small-pox in 6 villages, in the districts there have been 19 fresh cases, with 1 death, 7 remaining sick. Prices of wheat, red rice, and bajri in Karachi 24, 30 and 32, in Schwan 32, 24 and 40, in Ghorabari 22 and 32, and in Sujawal 30 and 36 pounds per rupee, respectively.
Hyderabad ...	Rain general; averaging 2·83.	River at Kotri on 4th, 17 feet 5 inches against 15 feet 5 inches last year. Small-pox in 4 talukas. Prices somewhat higher. Sowings of bajri and til continue; crops flourishing.
Ahmedabad ...	7·50	Total rainfall 22·68. Crops healthy; transplantation of rice continues. 8 cases of cholera have appeared in the city, of which 5 have proved fatal; in Parantij also there has been a fatal case. Wheat 29 and bajri 30 pounds per rupee.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bombay—contd.
Baroda ...	11·92	Total rainfall 25·25. Cholera continues in a mild form in the city, in Baroda there has been 13 deaths. Sowing operations continue. Locusts have disappeared from Songad in Khandesh. Prices—bajri 27 and rice 21 pounds per rupee.
Surat ...	·48; maximum fall in Pardi, 6·19; minimum in Olpad, 1·85.	Total rainfall 20·5. Seeds first sown have been damaged in certain places by excessive moisture; resowing commenced; transplantation nearly completed. Juari 30 and nagli 41 pounds per rupee.
Nasik ...	Good rain throughout, succeeded by break.	Crops in good condition; sowing and transplanting vigorously progressing. Public health good. Wheat 27, bajri 31, and rice 21 pounds per rupee, respectively.
Colaba (Bombay) ...	·93	Total rainfall to date 39·57, being 8·60 below average. Light showers daily. Abnormal temperature 1° cool to 2° warm; abnormal wind southerly till 1st, afterwards northerly.
Poona ...	Abundant rain has fallen in the west; and at Poona, maximum in district, 10·79 in Khadkala; minimum ·81 in Indapur.	More rain is wanted eastwards. Kharif sowings not begun in 22 villages of Indapur, elsewhere either finished or in progress. Rice crops flourishing. Bajri 34 and juari 35 pounds per rupee. In Poona—bajri 28 and juari 30 pounds per rupee.
Ahmednagar ...	In Akola, 5·63; Sangamner, 2·48; Parner, 1·23; Kopargaon, 1·8; Rahuri, 1·4; Jamkhed, ·91; slight rain has fallen in other talukas.	More rain is urgently wanted. Sowing of kharif in progress in places where there has been a sufficient rainfall. The want of fodder for cattle is being felt. Juari—maximum 60 pounds in Sangamner, minimum 35 in Karjat; bajri—maximum 48 in Sangamner, minimum 30 in Kopargaon.
Sholapur ...	·93; Barsi, ·61; Madha, 1·9; Karmala, ·73; Pandharpur, ·38; Sangola, ·35, and Malsiras, ·73.	Juari 38 pounds 18 tolas and bajri 38 pounds per rupee. Rain still urgently wanted. Season for kharif sowings now past; hardly any sowings have been made; a little grass is available for cattle since recent rain.
Dharwar ...	Maximum at Mugud, 7·0; at Dharwar and Haugal nearly 5·0; at Kalghatgi, 3·59; Bankapur and Kod above 3·0; Hubli, Karajgi, and Ranibennur above 1·0; at Navalgund, Nargund, Gadag, and Mundargi less than ·65; at Ron, nil.	Rain is very badly wanted in the last-mentioned talukas as sowing operations are retarded, and scarcity of drinking-water is increasing. Rice crops have much benefited by the heavy fall in other talukas, and the scarcity of water also has been partly removed. Juari sowing and planting of chillies are in progress, where there has been enough rain. Cholera slight; small-pox, fever, and measles prevail. Prices are stationary.
Kanara ...	Karwar, 6·82; Kumpta, 7·81; Sirsi, 12·76 and Haliyal, 7·12.	Total rainfall 53·13. Common rice in Karwar 12 seers; district average 15 seers per rupee. Weeding continues in rice fields. Small-pox in Karwar, Kumpta, Honawar and Sirsi, but not much in Siddapur, Mugud and Haliyal; 2 deaths in Haliyal from small-pox, 4 deaths from cholera in Mugud near Dharwar frontier.
Rajkot ...	·07	Total rainfall 24·29. General health good: prevailing diseases—fever and diarrhœa. Bajri 32 and juari 42 pounds per rupee.
		General Remarks.—River rising and prospects generally improved in Sind owing to sufficient rain. Heavy rain stopped and sowing operations resumed in Gujarat; abundant rain in parts of Deccan and Southern Mahratta country, but much wanted in some talukas of Sholapur, Dharwar, and Kaladgi. Cholera in parts of 11 districts; fever and small-pox in a few places.
Bengal—(August 6th)
Chittagong ...	5·8	Weather warm, with occasional showers. Prospects of crops fair; harvesting of aus nearly completed with 12-anna outturn. Prices stationary. Cholera and cattle-disease continue.
Dacca ...	1·73	Harvesting of early paddy and jute continues. Prospects of crops and public health good.
24-Pergunnahs (Calcutta)	.....	Transplanting of amun going on rapidly everywhere. Prospects of crops good; common rice 12¼ to 16 seers per rupee. Public health generally good, but stray cases of fever and cattle-disease reported. Rivers rising.
Moorshedabad ...	2·71	Weather hot and sultry. Recent rain saved seedlings for the present and allowed transplanting to be proceeded with, but more rain wanted. A good deal of aus being cut and the ear rubs out better than was expected. Public health good.
Rajshahye ...	·55	Prospects of aus and amun generally good. More rain wanted for amun. Public health good.
Burdwan ...	2·77	Insufficient rain prevents transplanting of amun crops; insufficient but speedy rain will materially improve them.
Rungpore ...	·16	Weather hot and cloudy; rain very much wanted. Rice 3 rupees 6 annas to 4 rupees 8 annas per maund. Malarious fever prevailing.
Bhagalpur ...	1·58	Transplanting of paddy stopped for want of rain in greater parts of district; prospects of crops good. Prices of rice stationary.
Purneah ...	·39	More rain required for crops. Transplanting much checked. Common rice 14 seers per rupee. Public health fair. Rivers half full.
Patna ...	·47	Bhadoi crops and paddy seedlings suffering from want of rain. Cholera still reported from interior.
Durbhunga ...	·14	Rain very badly wanted for transplanting paddy and bhadoi crops. Prices stationary. Public health good.

Presidency or Province and District.	Rainfall for week under report.	State of agricultural prospects.
Bengal—contd.
Hazaribagh ...	3·87	Weather variable. Prospects of crops seem good, except in Hazaribagh, Huntingunge, and Semaria thanas for want of rain. Prices of food-grains continue high. Small-pox and cholera reported from certain places, otherwise public health good.
Cuttack ...	2·87	Weather seasonable. Beali being weeded, sarad being replough-ed and growing well. More rain wanted. Price of rice almost stationary. Public health good. Scattered cases of cholera and cattle-disease reported from interior.
		General Remarks.—The rainfall during the week was again insufficient and has retarded transplanting and affected standing crops to some extent in many districts. Though prospects are still good, more rain very urgently wanted almost in every district. Harvesting of early paddy and jute continues in some places, and moderate outturn expected. Prices of rice rising slightly in some districts. Public health good.
N. W. Provinces and Oudh—
Benares (Aug. 4th)	1·0 (average)	More rain required. Prospects of sugarcane and kharif crops good; late rice sown. Slight cholera and fever. Prices fluctuating.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

ABSTRACT OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE COUNCIL OF THE GOVERNOR GENERAL OF INDIA, ASSEMBLED FOR THE PURPOSE OF MAKING LAWS AND REGULATIONS UNDER THE PROVISIONS OF THE ACT OF PARLIAMENT 24 & 25 VIC., CAP. 67.

The Council met at Government House, Simla, on Wednesday, the 6th August, 1884.

PRESENT:

His Excellency the Viceroy and Governor General of India, K.G., G.M.S.I., G.M.I.E., presiding.
His Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, G.C.B., C.I.E.
The Hon'ble J. Gibbs, C.S.I., C.I.E.
Lieutenant-General the Hon'ble T. F. Wilson, C.B., C.I.E.
The Hon'ble C. P. Ilbert, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Sir S. C. Bayley, K.C.S.I., C.I.E.
The Hon'ble T. C. Hope, C.S.I., C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Sir A. Colvin, K.C.M.G., C.I.E.
The Hon'ble J. W. Quinton.
The Hon'ble D. G. Barkley.

THE HON'BLE KRISTODÁS PÁL, RAI BAHADUR.

On the Members of Council taking their seats, His Excellency THE PRESIDENT made the following remarks:—"Before we proceed to consider the business upon the List before us, I am sure that my hon'ble colleagues will allow me to express my deep regret at the lamented death of Rai Bahádur Kristodás Pál, which has taken place since the last meeting of the Legislative Council. By this melancholy event we have lost from amongst us a colleague of distinguished ability, from whom we had on all occasions received assistance, of which I readily acknowledge the value. He has been taken from us in the prime of life, when his powers were at their best, and when we might have hoped that he would still for many years to come have been permitted to devote himself to the service of his country with the same energy and patriotism as had hitherto marked his career. Mr. Kristodás Pál owed the honourable position to which he had attained to his own exertions. His intellectual endowments were of a high order; his rhetorical gifts were acknowledged by all who heard him, and were enhanced when addressing this Council by his thorough mastery over the English language. He will long live in the remembrance of his countrymen; and it is with feelings of sincere sorrow that I pay this last tribute to the memory of one who was so well entitled to be regarded as a worthy representative of the intellect and eloquence of the race to which he belonged."

SETTLEMENT-OFFICERS' (PANJÁB) DECISIONS VALIDATION BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT moved that the Bill for the validation of decisions passed by certain Settlement-officers in the Panjáb be referred back to the Select Committee. He said:—"The object of this Motion is merely to give the Select Committee an opportunity of considering some formal alterations which have been suggested to me since the date of their Report, which would, I think, effect an improvement in the form of the Bill, and which could not be very conveniently made by amendments moved in Council."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

INDIAN TELEGRAPH ACT, 1876, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. HOPE moved for leave to introduce a Bill to facilitate the construction of Telegraphs, and to amend the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876. He said:—

"The main object of this Bill is to empower the Governor General in Council, or any company or person licensed by him under the Indian Telegraph Act of 1876, to place and maintain lines of telegraph under, over, along, across, in or upon property belonging either to private persons or public bodies. The determination to bring forward this Bill has arisen out of the fact that it has recently come to the attention of Government that, as the law at present stands, the Governor General in Council and his licensees have no power to place and maintain lines of telegraph upon the land of municipal or other similar bodies or of private persons. In England the requisite powers have been conferred on the Post Master General, who works and maintains the telegraphs in that country, and it appears to us to be necessary that similar powers should be enjoyed here. The power given in the Bill will operate to prevent, on the one hand, any Government officer from violating private rights when erecting the telegraphs, and, on the other hand, any private person from offering unnecessary and unreasonable obstruction to those who are carrying out operations intended for the public convenience.

"The present opportunity has also been taken to make two amendments in the Indian Telegraph Act, which were found from experience to be necessary.

"The first of these amendments has for its object the regulation of telegraph lines constructed by the Government, but leased to companies or individuals by whom they are worked. We have a very large and increasing class of such lines along our railways, the system being that the Government owns the whole of the plant of the telegraphs, and that it leases them to the Railway-administrations for the actual working. The position of these lines under the present Telegraph Act is far from clear, and the object of the amendment proposed in section 8 of the Bill is to put them on much the same footing as licensed lines.

"The object of the second amendment, made by section 9 of the Bill, is to prescribe penalties for the breach by licensees or lessees of the rules made under section 8 for the conduct of their telegraph. In such cases, as the Act now stands, the only remedy is to revoke the license or lease; but this course would in most cases cause such great public inconvenience that it is impracticable."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

FUNCTIONS (LIEUT.-GOVERNOR, N. W. P.) VALIDATION BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT moved for leave to introduce a Bill to legalise the discharge by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces of certain functions assigned to the Governor General in Council. He said:—

"The object of this Bill is merely to legalise the existing practice in accordance with which certain functions which under some unrepealed Regulations and Acts ought strictly to be discharged by the Governor General in Council are in fact discharged, and much more conveniently discharged, by the Lieutenant-Governor of the North-Western Provinces. The functions in question are not of a very important character, one of them, for instance, being the power to sanction the allowances and establishment of the dároghas of certain stone-quarries, and to fix the rate of duty payable in respect of stone taken from the quarries. That is a power which, I think, might be very conveniently delegated to the Local Government."

The Motion was put and agreed to.

TRANSFER OF PROPERTY ACT, 1882, AMENDMENT BILL.

The Hon'ble MR. ILBERT moved for leave to introduce a Bill to amend the Transfer of Property Act, 1882. He said:—

"The chief object of the Bill which I am asking leave to introduce is to remove a doubt which has been entertained as to the effect of the exemption clause in the Transfer of Property Act. When this important measure was before the Select Committee, it was apprehended that there were certain classes of the community to which some of its provisions might be unsuitable, and accordingly a power was given to Local Governments, with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council, to make exemptions from the operation of particular sections of the Act.

"The sections to which the power of exemption applies are those which relate to transfer by an ostensible owner (section 41); to the mode of effecting a transfer of property by sale (section 54, paragraphs 2 and 3), mortgage (section 59), lease (section 107), and gift (section 123); and to the effect of a power of sale in a mortgage (section 69). And the form of exemption adopted was copied, with some modifications, from the Indian Succession Act, which enables (section 332) the Government to exempt from the operation of the whole or any part of the Act, either prospectively or retrospectively, the members of any race, sect or tribe in British India to whom the provisions of the Act might be considered inapplicable.

"Now, this was an excellent precedent to follow; but I cannot help thinking that the Select Committee, when adopting it, did not sufficiently advert to the difference between the rules of the Succession Act and those of the rules of the Transfer of Property Act to which the power of exemption was to apply. It is easy enough to make a personal exemption from the rules of succession, and to say that some of those rules shall not apply in the case of succession to a particular person or class of persons. But it is not so easy to make a personal exemption from rules which require the observance of certain formalities in the case of a sale, mortgage, lease or gift of land. According to the generally recognised principles of what is called private international law, formalities of this kind are regulated by the law of the place where the property is situate, and are not affected by the personal law of any party to the transaction. What, for instance, would be the effect of saying that a rule which requires the sale of land to be made only by a registered instrument shall not apply to Bhíls? Would it apply where the vendor is a Bhíl, or where the purchaser is a Bhíl, or where any party to the transaction is a Bhíl, or only when all parties to the transaction are Bhils? So, again, is it only intended to apply where litigation ensues; and in that case is the intention to exempt the person who wishes to enforce the contract, or the person against whom the contract is to be enforced, or both? Plausible reasons may be suggested, and indeed have been suggested in the papers which have come before me, for adopting any one of these views; but I do not think any lawyer could say with complete confidence which of them would be the correct view.

"The difficulty of construing this section was raised very shortly after the Act came into operation by Mr. Elliott, the Chief Commissioner of Assam, who was anxious to exempt from some of the provisions of the Act certain classes of the population under his government, and more especially the wild tribes on the eastern frontier of Assam, but who was not at all sure what would be the effect of his exercising the power of exemption given to him by section 1 of the Act.

"When the question came before me my own opinion was that the best way out of the difficulty would be to make the power of exemption local and not personal, so far at least as it applies to the sections which prescribe the formalities of transfer. Mr. Elliott, however, would have preferred a power to exempt from the operation of those sections not persons or places, but transactions to which members of any race, sect, tribe or class whom it might be desirable to exempt were parties; and as to sections 41 and 69 (which relate to sales by ostensible vendors, and to powers of sale in mortgages), he did not see why the power of exemption was needed in their case at all.

"I felt bound to admit that a local exemption would not give precise effect to the intentions of the Select Committee, and I shared Mr. Elliott's doubts as to the reasons for including sections 41 and 69 in the exemption clause. And under these circumstances, considering that the Act had so recently come into operation, and that I had not had the advantage of taking part in any of the deliberations which preceded its passing, I thought it was only due to the eminent persons by whom it was framed, and to the Select Committee who had bestowed so much pains on bringing it into its present shape, to take the opinion of Local Governments before proposing any specific amendment in the law.

"The result of the reference to Local Governments has been to elicit a great difference of opinion as to the form which the exemption clause should assume, whether it should be purely local or purely personal, or partly local and partly personal; and further, if it is made personal, whether it should apply where any of the parties to the transaction is a member of the exempted class, or only where all of them belong to that class. But the general effect of this conflict of opinions on my mind is to confirm the view which I had previously entertained, that the best and simplest way out of the difficulty is to make the exemption from the provisions as to formalities of transfer local, and that any other form of exemption would not only give rise to difficult legal questions, but would facilitate forms of fraud which it is the object of the Act to make impossible, or at least difficult.

"In the view that there should be some kind of local exemption, I think I may claim the support of Sir Charles Turner, whose opinion, as that of one of the three Law Commissioners to whom the Transfer of Property Bill was referred, is entitled to great weight, and I am certainly supported by Mr. Justice Muthusami Aiyar, who has written an interesting Minute on the subject, and by Mr. Robert Crosthwaite, who was acting as Secretary in the Legislative Department when the Bill was before the Select Committee, and who may therefore be presumed to be acquainted with the reasons which induced them to insert the exemption clause now in the Act.

"As to the extent of the local exemption, one point appears to be clear, namely, that the sections prescribing the formalities of transfer should not extend to tracts of country in which the Registration Act is not in force. The sections in question presuppose the existence of a Registration Law, and are scarcely intelligible without it; and it can, I think, only have been through an oversight that they were extended to areas where that Act is not in operation.

"Should we go further, and exempt from the operation of those sections any part of the country where the Registration Act is in force? Sir Charles Turner appears to doubt whether we should, and suggests, as an alternative, that the kind of protection now afforded to certain classes of agriculturists under the Dekkhan Relief Acts should be extended to other classes of persons, by making them incompetent to convey any interest in land by a written instrument unless the instrument is executed in the presence of an officer of Government, who should be required to explain its effect. In other words, instead of relaxing formalities in the case of these classes, he would require the observance of additional formalities. With all deference to his high authority, I think the balance of argument is against the adoption of this suggestion. In the first place, any attempt to superadd a personal to a local exemption is open to the objections which have been urged against granting purely personal exemptions. In the next place, although I do not deny that members of uncivilized and ignorant classes are exposed to risk of fraud when they engage in transactions with persons of superior intelligence, though perhaps not of superior morality, yet there does not appear to be anything which shows that this particular risk was in the view of the Select Committee when they framed the exemption clause now under consideration. There may be, in my opinion there are, cases in which a contract should not be legally binding, unless it is executed under sufficient safeguards against fraud. The English Legislature has recognised this principle in its legislation on the subject of bills of sale (to select one out of many instances), and English Courts of Equity constantly act on it where such relations exist between the parties as afford ground for the presumption of undue influence having been exercised. But such cases, as the illustrations which I have referred to clearly show, are not confined to transactions relating to land, or to transactions to which one of the parties is a member of an uncivilized race; and on the whole I think it is best to deal with them, not in the manner suggested, but by special legislation, where the need for such legislation is shown to exist.

"On the other hand, I think that it would be convenient to have a power of exempting from the operation of some of the provisions of the Act certain tracts to which the Registration Law extends. For instance, Sir Henry Ramsay has strongly pressed upon me the expediency of exempting Kumaun, where I believe the Registration Act is in force. I am quite aware that the Transfer of Property Act is not the only Act of the Legislature which Sir Henry Ramsay has desired to exclude from Kumaun, and I fully understand the jealousy with which legislation of the kind is regarded by a man whose long and eminently successful administration affords one of the most conspicuous instances of what may be done in a backward district by a strong, conscientious and capable ruler when left very much to his own devices and untrammelled by laws and regulations. But without committing myself to Sir Henry Ramsay's views on legislation generally, it does seem to me probable that there are tracts of country where the mass of the population are not ripe for those provisions of the Transfer of Property Act which require all transfers of property above a certain value to be in writing and registered, and which in the case of petty transactions make writing obligatory unless the transfer is accompanied by delivery; and this appears to be the opinion of the Government of the North-Western Provinces, who desire to have the power of exempting certain tracts of country within the area under their administration, including, I believe, not only Kumaun, but certain other hill tracts. The amending Bill proceeds on the view that such a power is advisable, and proposes to give a power to grant local exemptions from those sections which prescribe the formalities of transfer.

"The power will doubtless be cautiously exercised, and I should point out that it may be so exercised as to exclude certain portions from the exempted area. For instance, provisions which may be considered unsuitable to Kumaun generally, may be suitable enough to Naini Tal.

"This is all that I need say at present about sections 54, 59, 107 and 123, the sections which prescribe the formalities to be observed in cases of sale, mortgage, lease and gift.

"To sections 41 and 69 different considerations apply. Section 41 enacts that a transfer of property by its ostensible owner shall not be void by reason only that the transferor was not authorized to make it, provided that the transferee after taking reasonable care to ascertain that the transferor had due powers has acted in good faith.

"This section is based on the principle that where one of two innocent persons must suffer from the fraud of a third party, the loss should fall on him who has created or could have prevented the opportunity for the fraud, and that in such cases hardship is caused by the strict enforcement of the general rule that no one can confer a higher right on property than he himself possesses. This principle is generally recognized in the jurisprudence of all civilized nations, and lies at the bottom of such legislation as the English Factors Act; but I am inclined to agree with Sir Charles Turner in thinking that it involves a refinement of equity which is perhaps hardly required for, or suitable to, the very simple transactions between members of uncivilized races, and which they might fail to appreciate. Accordingly I propose to give power to exempt from the operation of this section any property within a particular area in which a member of any specified race, sect, class or tribe is interested. As the section deals not with the formalities of transfer, but with the capacity to transfer, the objections to a form of exemption which is to some extent personal do not apply.

"As to section 69, there does not seem to be any reason why it should be included in the general exemption clause; but, on the other hand, it does seem to require amendment in itself.

"The object of the section was to set at rest what had been previously a moot question, namely, whether, under the law of British India, a mortgagee could sell under an express power of sale without the intervention of the Courts. The section says that such a power of sale shall be valid in certain cases, namely,—

(a) where the mortgage is an English mortgage (i.e., in the ordinary English form), and neither the mortgagor nor the mortgagee is a Hindu, Muhammadan or Buddhist;

(b) where the mortgagee is the Secretary of State in Council;

(c) where the mortgaged property or any part of it is situate within the town of Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, Karáchí or Rangoon:

but it does not go on to say that the power shall not be valid in other cases.

"I propose to make clear what seems on the whole to have been the intentions of the framers of the section by declaring the cases in which the power of sale is not to be valid. And as Mr. Justice Muthusami Aiyar has pointed out that there are other classes which it is even more necessary to exclude from the operation of the exceptional provision than Hindus, Muhammadans and Buddhists, I propose to add words giving a power to exclude such classes.

"These are the principal amendments which I propose to make in the Act. There is however one further amendment, which, though of minor importance in itself, opens up questions that are of considerable importance.

"There is a section in the Act which declares that nothing in the Act is to be deemed to affect the provisions of any enactment not thereby expressly repealed. And Mr. Elliott asked how this declaration was to be reconciled with certain sections which appeared to him to affect the provisions of the Registration Act. Under the Registration Act certain instruments relating to property of less than Rs. 100 in value may be registered, and, if registered, have priority over unregistered instruments. Under section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act all instruments of sale must be registered to have any effect at all. Where the value of the property is less than Rs. 100, you may sell by mere delivery; but if you wish to rely on a written instrument, you must register it; and the question is whether the latter of these provisions does not affect the former. The answer depends on the meaning which you attach to the term 'affect.' As used in legislative language, it usually means affect in malam partem, derogate from, wholly or in part. In this sense the Transfer of Property Act does not affect the Registration Act. What it really does is to supplement it by rendering certain instruments compulsorily registrable which were only optionally registrable before. And I propose to insert in the amending Bill words which will make this clear.

"Now this is, as I have said, a minor matter, but it raises the question as to the relations to each other of these two important Acts, and as to the extent to which the passing of the Transfer of Property Act has superseded the necessity for making some of the amendments which have from time to time been suggested in the Registration Act.

"The Registration Act is an Act which has been frequently tinkered, and which from the nature of the case it is almost impossible to make thoroughly satisfactory, and therefore I am not particularly anxious to undertake the task of further amending it. But I fear that it will be necessary before long to take action on the suggestions for its amendment which have for some time been pressed on the Legislative Department, and the close connection of some of those suggestions with the parts of the Transfer of Property Act which I am proposing to amend will, I think, afford a sufficient justification for my referring to them briefly now.

"One of the proposals which has been laid before us is pretty radical in its character, for it goes to the root of the matter, and suggests that our whole system of registration is wrong, and that what we ought to aim at is a registration, not of instruments or documents, but of titles. Now this question of registration of instruments or assurances versus registration of titles has been the subject of controversy in England among those learned in the conveyancing craft during the last half century or so. On the one hand, a system of registering assurances has been in force in two counties in England—Middlesex and Yorkshire—ever since the reign of Queen Anne, and has also been in force for a long while in Ireland and Scotland, and has worked with more or less success. In Middlesex I can undertake to say that it has worked very badly. On the other hand, Sir Robert Torrens has introduced into the Australian colonies a system of registering titles which appears to have been a conspicuous success, and which has therefore naturally suggested the expediency of its introduction elsewhere. Both Lord Westbury and Lord Cairns have passed Acts providing for registration of titles somewhat on the Torrens' system; but both these Acts, though framed with great ability, have, I am sorry to say, remained almost dead-letters. It has been suggested that in India a system of registering of titles might be conveniently engrafted on the system of revenue registration, which looks rather to the man in possession than to the way in which he got into possession, and that we should thus avoid a double system of registration under the Revenue Acts and under the Registration Acts.* My own opinion, however, for what it is worth, is that, though registration of titles is preferable in theory to registration of assurances, it is not compatible with a complicated system of titles. It is mainly for this reason that I believe it has failed in England, where titles are complicated by settlements, and I fear that it would fail in India, where there are even greater complications arising out of Hindu family law.

"Our present system of registering instruments has obtained firm possession of the field, has on the whole worked fairly well, and is recognized as the basis of such important pieces of legislation as the Transfer of Property Act; and under these circumstances it would be a strong measure to upset it altogether. Whether an economy may not be effected by combining the functions of the staff employed under the Revenue Acts and of that employed under the Registration Acts is an administrative question into which I need not enter.

"Assuming then that instruments and not titles are to be registered, there is a feature of the existing Registration Act to which strong exception has been frequently taken by high authorities, and that is what is known as optional registration, the system, namely, under which instruments of a certain class are allowed, but not required to be registered, are given a legal effect without registration, but, if left unregistered, are liable to be overridden by a registered instrument of later date. Sir Richard Garth has repeatedly inveighed against the system as inducing and facilitating fraud, and a high authority on the other side of the peninsula has recently used equally strong expressions about it. 'The present law,' says Mr. Maxwell Melvill in a note which I read the other day, and which I hope he will excuse me for quoting in this connexion, though it was written with reference to a different subject 'which makes the registration of certain instruments optional, but invalidates them when they come into competition with registered instruments of a later date, is a trap for the unwary, and has unfairly deprived thousands of innocent mortgagees and private owners of their property.'

"Among the numerous difficult questions to which the system of optional registration has given rise, one of the most difficult is as to the effect of notice of an unregistered transaction on the rights of a person who claims under a registered instrument. There is a section of the Registration Act (section 50) which says that when a deed of which the registration is optional is registered, it shall have priority over any unregistered deed relating to the same property. This is in fact the inducement to register such deeds. But supposing that a man who claims under a deed so registered had, at the time of entering into the transaction on which the deed is based, notice of the existence of another unregistered deed, earlier in date, and inconsistent with his claims, what then? Is he still to have priority, notwithstanding the notice? On this question there is a vast number of decisions, which are collected in the various editions of the Registration Act (the edition which I happen to have consulted is a handy little book brought out this year by Mr. Cuddalore Ramachandra Aiyar, a Subordinate Judge in North Malabar), but the upshot of them is that the Madras High Court would allow the claimant under the later registered deed to assert his priority, notwithstanding notice, whilst the other High Courts, and I believe the Chief Court of the Panjáb, hold the opposite view. I have had some correspondence on this subject with Sir Charles Turner, and he has been kind enough to send me a note, in which he has reviewed the history of the successive Registration Acts, and has defended with much force the view taken by the Madras High Court as to the operation of the present Act. I quite agree with him that if the doctrine of notice is carried to the extravagant lengths to which it was formerly carried by English Courts of Equity, and under which what was called constructive notice was made to include, not only what a man actually knows, but what he and various other persons connected with him could, should, or might have known,—I quite agree that if the doctrine is carried to this length, it is fatal to any system of registration. But a much more reasonable view of what amounts to notice has been taken of late years by the English Courts, and notably by Lord Cairns in a well known case in the House of Lords (Agra Bank v. Barry). It is certainly desirable, as Sir C. Turner admits, that the law administered in the several provinces should be made uniform by legislation, and that it should be expressly declared whether the doctrine of notice is to be applied by the Courts, and if so, to what extent. It may be found possible so to define the term for the purpose of the Registration Act as to get rid of what is called constructive notice, and to confine the doctrine to cases where there is such a knowledge of a previous transaction as shows that the person claiming under a subsequent registered deed is obviously trying to take advantage of his own fraud; but the work of framing a definition which would draw the line precisely at the right point would be a matter of considerable difficulty.

"In the meantime it should be borne in mind that we have already in our Statute Book a definition of notice and a declaration of its legal effects. The definition section of the Indian Trusts Act (section 3) explains that a person is said to have 'notice' of a fact when he actually knows that fact, or when, but for wilful abstention from inquiry or gross negligence, he would have known it, or when information of the fact is given to, or obtained by, his agent, under the circumstances mentioned in the Indian Contract Act, 1872, section 229. And the Act goes on to enact (section 91) that—

'Where a person acquires property with notice that another person has entered into an existing contract affecting that property, of which specific performance could be enforced, the former must hold the property for the benefit of the latter to the extent necessary to give effect to the contract.'

"I am not aware whether the effect of this section on the Registration Act has been fully considered; but it certainly cannot be left out of account in any legislation which may be necessary—and I fear legislation will be necessary—to reconcile the conflicting decisions of the High Courts.

"Of course if you could get rid of optional registration altogether, many of the difficulties to which I have referred would vanish. And I understand Sir Richard Garth* to be of opinion that, so far as transfers by sale are concerned, the evils arising out of optional registration have been removed for the future in those parts of India to which the Transfer of Property Act already extends, and are capable of being removed by a simple extension of that Act to other provinces, such as Bombay, to which the Act may be extended by the Local Government. For, under section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act, there is no such thing now as a transfer by writing of immoveable property unless that writing is registered. There may be an oral transfer by way of sale of a possessory interest under Rs. 100 in value, but any sale in writing, whether under or over Rs. 100, must be registered. However, leases and mortgages stand on a different footing, and as to them the law of optional registration still prevails.

"The remedy which is usually suggested is to extend the range of compulsory registration to instruments relating to property of less than Rs. 100 in value. The chief objection to this proposal appears to be that the obligation to register petty transactions would impose great expense and hardship in cases where a registry office is not available within a reasonable distance. There may be—I dare say there are—parts of the country to which this objection would not apply, and the suggestion which I should be disposed to make is that the Registration Act should be amended in such a way as would empower Local Governments to make registration of small transactions relating to land compulsory in those areas in which, in their opinion, the people are prepared for general registration and there is machinery available for registering such transactions without unnecessary expense and inconvenience to those concerned. In this way the range of compulsory registration might be carried out in a gradual and experimental manner. Of course the registration fees charged on petty transactions would have to be very light.

"And it is worth considering whether, in the class of cases to which compulsory registration is considered inapplicable, we should allow an unregistered instrument to have any legal effect whatever, whether in fact we should not extend and generalize the principle which I understand to be embodied in section 54 of the Transfer of Property Act.

"These points will have to be fully worked out when the Registration Act comes up for amendment; but I suggest them for consideration now, because of their close and obvious connexion with the enactment which I am asking the leave of the Council to amend."

Meteorological Reporter to the Government of India.

THE INDIAN LAW REPORTS.

PUBLISHED UNDER AUTHORITY.

The "Indian Law Reports," published under the authority of the Governor General in Council, appear in monthly parts, published as soon as possible after the first of each month, at Calcutta, Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad, and comprise four series,—one for the Calcutta High Court, a second for the Madras High Court, a third for the Bombay High Court, and a fourth for the Allahabad High Court. The cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from each High Court are reported in the series for that High Court. Cases heard by the Privy Council on appeal from Provinces in India not subject to any High Court are reported in the Calcutta Series.

The Calcutta Series is distributed by the Bengal Secretariat; the copies for subscribers registered by Messrs. Thacker, Spink & Co., are distributed by that firm; and the Madras, Bombay and Allahabad Series are distributed direct from Madras, Bombay, and Allahabad respectively.

On and from the 1st January, 1884, the terms of subscription and sale will be reduced as follow:—

Terms of subscription, payable annually in advance.

	Without postage.	With postage.

The Creditors of the abovenamed Company are required on or before the 20th day of November 1884 to send their names and addresses and the particulars of their debts or claims and the names and addresses of their Solicitors, if any, to Thomas Abercrombie Welton, the Official Liquidator of the abovenamed Corporation at the Oriental Bank Corporation, situate at 40, Threadneedle Street, in the City of London, England, and if so required by notice in writing from the said Official Liquidator are by their Solicitors to come in and prove their said debts or claims at the Chambers of Mr. Justice Chitty, at the Royal Courts of Justice, London, England, at such time as shall be specified in such notice or in default thereof they will be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before such debts are proved. Monday, the 8th day of December 1884, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon at the said Chambers, is appointed for hearing and adjudicating upon the debts and claims.

N.B.—No Creditor need attend at the Chambers of Mr. Justice Chitty on the 8th day of December 1884, unless notice has been given to him or her to attend on such appointment. When the claims sent in have been allowed by the Judge, due notice will be given to the Creditors thereof.

Dated this 7th day of July 1884.

ROBERT MARSHALL,
Chief Clerk.

FRESHFIELDS & WILLIAMS,
5, Bank Buildings, London,
Solicitors for Official Liquidator.

NOTICE

Is hereby given that immediate steps will be taken to recover the amount secured to Khesi Das Agarwallah and Luchman Das, of Dibrugarh, Assam, by Mr. Henry Shaw Wyllie, of Dibrugarh, in a mortgage bond, dated the 23rd day of August 1880, registered before the Sub-Registrar of Dibrugarh on the 24th day of August 1880,—the whereabouts of the said Mr. Henry Shaw Wyllie could not be traced since the beginning of 1883. The interest of Luchman Das in the abovementioned bond has been lawfully transferred to Khesi Das aforesaid.

NANDALAL BANERJEE,
Pleader for Khesi Das Agarwallah.

DIBRUGARH,
The 30th July 1884.

* Passed down to supplement the Agra Canal supply.

Executive Engineer, Northern Division, Ganges Canal, reports—Demand heavy throughout the month. A fall of rain between the 19th and 23rd relieved sugar and indigo. Rice crops however drew largely on water. The bunds gave on the 17th June. River high. Supply well under control.

Executive Engineer, Meerut Division, Ganges Canal, reports—Full demand during the first half of the month, reduced demand after rainfall in the third week, and demand increasing during the last few days of the month.

Executive Engineer, Bulandshahr Division, Ganges Canal, reports—Rain fell on 22nd and 23rd, after which demand ceased until the end of the month.

Executive Engineer, Aligarh Division, Ganges Canal, reports—The demand was slack after the 23rd June, when the monsoon broke; the rainfall on that date varied from a faint drizzle at some stations to 4·6 inches at Gangagarh.

Executive Engineer, Narora Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—Increase of 50 per cent. under indigo as compared with same month of previous year. This crop is ousting all others from cultivation. Supply ample during month.

Executive Engineer, Mainpuri Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—Strong demand for water up to the 19th, when there was a fairly general fall of rain over the division: from the 19th to the end of the month the demand was slack; slight decrease in area irrigated up to date, due to short supply available at commencement of fasl.

Executive Engineer, Cawnpore Division, Lower Ganges Canal—shows a decrease of 110 acres as compared with last year.

Executive Engineer, Etawah Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—Very strong demand for water up to 19th, when slight rain fell and the monsoon may be said to have burst, but the rain up to end of month was very slight and partial. The slight decrease in area to end of June was due to low supply at beginning of fasl.

Executive Engineer, Bhognipur Division, Lower Ganges Canal, reports—Good supply in canal, but weather cloudy during last half of month, so much new irrigation was not secured.

Executive Engineer, Eastern Jumna Canal, reports—The excess over last year is the result of a small rise in everything excepting sugarcane. Rain on 11th, 19th, 20th, and 21st nearly stopped all demands, except for rice paleo.

Executive Engineer, Agra Canal, reports—Irrigation ceased for the time on 23rd. Excess irrigation over last year's has been explained before.

Executive Engineer, Rohilkhand Canals, reports—From ½" to 1½" of rain fell on 10th and 11th, which eased the demand, did much good to the sugar and allowed kharif ploughings to commence. Rain set in very mildly on 18th and stopped all demand for sugar. There was fair rain on 23rd, 24th, since which date a long break. Water in great demand now for rice. Supply in rivers somewhat improved, but failing again.

Executive Engineer, Dún Canal, reports—Demand heavy at beginning of month for rice (2nd class) paleo, when weather was hot, though cloudy. Rain set in on 17th, when demand for all other crops but 1st class rice ceased. Break in the rains at end of month allowed ploughing operations to be actively carried on, but was the cause of a decrease in the much wanted water-supply on all canals. A slight increase in total area irrigated over corresponding month of last year.

Collector of Hamírpur states that the estimate of irrigation effected in June is blank.

No. 195.—The Governor General in Council is pleased to prescribe, under Section 8 of Telegraph Act No. I of 1876, the following rules, which will come into force on 1st September 1884.

TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

Telegram Subscription Rules.

Whereas a Telephone Exchange may, with the permission of the Director-General of Telegraphs in India, be connected by means of one or more Telephone wires with the Central Government Telegraph office within the limits within which it has been established, to the intent that the subscribers may be enabled to communicate directly with that Telegraph Office; in exercise of the powers conferred by sections 7 and 8 of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the regulations, conditions and restrictions according to which all messages and signals communicated to a Government Telegraph Office by the subscribers to a Telephone Exchange connected with a Government Telegraph Office or received for transmission to such subscribers, shall be transmitted.

1. These rules may be called the Telegram Subscription Rules, 1884.

2. Any subscriber to a Telephone Exchange connected as aforesaid with a Government Telegraph office shall be entitled to communicate direct with the Telegraph Office by means of the Telephone Exchange and the connecting Telephone wires on payment to the Director-General of Telegraphs in India (herein referred to as the Director-General) of a yearly sum of sixty rupees, which shall be paid in advance on the first day of January in each year:

Provided that, if a subscriber desires to institute his direct communication with the Telegraph Office on any other date than the first day of January, he shall in respect of the then current year be required to pay in advance a proportionate part only of the said sum of sixty rupees.*

3. When a telegram addressed to such a subscriber as aforesaid (herein referred to as a Telegram Subscriber) is received at the Telegraph Office, it shall at the discretion of the Director-General or his officers either be delivered in the manner provided in the "Rules and Tariff relating to the transmission of telegraph messages in India," made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force, or be transmitted to the Telegram Subscriber by means of the Telephone Exchange if it can be so transmitted with reasonable speed, and in that case the Telegram Subscriber shall accept such transmission in place of the delivery of the telegram in the manner provided by the aforesaid Rules and Tariff.

4. Telegrams received from a Telegram Subscriber of the central Telegraph office by means of the Telephone Exchange shall, at the option of the Telegram Subscriber, be forwarded to their destination by the Government Telegraph, or be forwarded by post as ordinary letters, or, if the address of delivery is within a reasonable distance from the Telegraph Office, by special messenger:

Provided that a Telegram Subscriber shall not be entitled to transmit more than one telegram at a time to the Telegraph Office by means of the Telephone Exchange, nor shall the Telephone exchange be used for the transmission of press messages.

5. A Telegram Subscriber shall pay to the Director-General in respect of every such telegram forwarded from the Telegraph Office by telegraph the same sum for transmission, Prepaid Replies, Postage, Registration and Express Charges (if any) as would be payable by the sender if the telegram had been handed in at the Central Telegraph Office as an ordinary telegram.

6. A Telegram Subscriber shall pay to the Director-General in respect of every such telegram forwarded from the Telegraph Office by post as a letter the ordinary postage payable on the letter.

7. A Telegram subscriber shall pay to the Director-General in respect of every such Telegram delivered from the Telegraph office by special messenger a sum of two annas if the address of delivery is within the limits of the free ordinary delivery of telegrams from the Telegraph Office, and in all cases the same sum as would be payable for "Express Charges" in respect of an ordinary Telegram delivered from the Telegraph office at the same address.

8. All sums payable by a Telegram Subscriber in respect of telegrams forwarded as aforesaid from the Telegraph Office shall be paid in advance by means of a deposit with the Telegraph Officer in charge of the Telegraph Office, who shall not be required to forward any such telegram unless the sum for the time being in his hands on account of the deposit is sufficient for the payment of the amount payable in respect of the telegram.

9. All accounts in respect of Telegrams forwarded or delivered as aforesaid on behalf of a Telegram Subscriber from the Telegraph Office shall be settled monthly up to the first day of each calendar month.

10. A Telegram Subscriber may pay the sum payable by him to the Director-General in accordance with Rule 2 to the Licensees of the Telephone Exchange to which he is a subscriber, as the Agents and on behalf of the Director-General, and the receipt of the Licensees shall be a good discharge for any sum so paid.

The said Licensees shall act as Agents of the Director-General for the purpose aforesaid, and shall receive all sums which may in accordance with the said rule be tendered to them by the subscribers as such Agents, and shall pay the same to the Director-General immediately on the receipt thereof or at such other times as may be agreed upon between the Director-General and the Licensees.

11. The Secretary of State in Council or the Director-General shall not be subject to any liability by reason or on account of any failure, delay or mistake in or about the transmission, receipt or delivery of any telegram under these rules, whether arising from the default of the Licensees or of any Officer of the Government Telegraph, or otherwise.

12. If any sum payable under Rule 2 or any other money which is for the time being due from a Telegram Subscriber under these rules is in arrear or unpaid for twenty-one days after it ought to be paid, the Director-General may by notice in writing debar the subscriber from participating in the advantages of these rules from the date of the service of the notice:

Provided that the fact of a subscriber being debarred from participating in the advantages of these rules shall not affect the right of the

* The annual payment of sixty rupees to the Director-General is to be in consideration of the services of the Telegraphist attending to the Telephone exchange connecting in the Central Telegraph Office and of the other services to be rendered and expenses to be incurred by the Director-General.

Director-General to recover from the subscriber any money which may be in arrear and unpaid.

13. Any notice to be given by the Director-General under these rules may be signed by the Chief Officer of the Division of Telegraphs within which the Telephone Exchange with which the subscriber's office is connected is situated, and may be served by sending it by post in a registered letter to the subscriber at his office.

TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

Agency Subscription Rules.

WHEREAS a Telephone Exchange may, with the permission of the Director-General of Telegraphs in India, be utilized as an agency through which Subscribers' Telegrams intended for transmission or transmitted over the wires of the Government Telegraph Department may be received and delivered by the Officers of that Department. In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 7 and 8 of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the regulations, conditions and restrictions according to which all messages and signals received or deliverable through the agency of any such Telephone Exchange shall be transmitted :—

1. These rules may be called the Agency Subscription Rules, 1884.

2. If a subscriber to a Telephone Exchange desires to employ the Licensees of the Telephone Exchange as his Agents through whom his telegrams intended for transmission or transmitted over the wires of the Government Telegraph Department may be received or delivered by the Officers of that Department, he shall address the following form of request to the Director-General of Telegraphs in India (herein referred to as the Director-General) :—

"I hereby request the Director-General of Telegraphs in India, until further notice, to deliver to the Telephone Exchange Company, Limited, at their central Telephone Exchange situated in the town of for transmission to me by means of the Telephone Exchange of that Company, all telegrams addressed to me at that may be received by means of the Central Government Telegraph Office in that town, and to transmit all telegrams received from the said Company at such Government Telegraph Office as the Director-General may by order in writing appoint for transmission on my account; and I hereby agree to pay to the Director-General the sum of twelve rupees per annum in advance on the day of in each year for the registration of special instructions to the effect above mentioned."

Signed - -

3. During the continuance of the period for which such a subscriber as aforesaid (herein referred to as an Agency Subscriber) is registered at the Telegraph Office as desirous of having his telegrams delivered to, and received for transmission from, the Licensees of the Telephone Exchange to which he is a subscriber, the Licensees—

(a) may receive messages transmitted to a Telephone attached to the Exchange from the Office of the Subscriber and intended to be further transmitted on behalf of the Subscriber by means of the Government Telegraphs, and

(b) may as the Agents of the Subscriber commit the messages to writing on appropriate message forms to be provided by the Director-General, and

(c) may deliver the forms by messenger at such Government Telegraph Office as the Director-General may by order in writing appoint for that purpose, to the intent that the forms may be transmitted from the office as telegrams.

4. All charges which under the "Rules and Tariff relating to the transmission of telegraph messages in India" made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force, should be paid by the sender of a Telegram, shall be paid by Telegraph stamps attached to the message form on which any such message as aforesaid is written before the delivery of the message form at the Telegraph Office.

5. (a) On the delivery by the Director-General at the Office of the Licensees of a Telegram addressed to any Agency Subscriber, the Licensees may transmit the telegram to the Subscriber's Office by means of their Telephone Exchange.

(b) The time at which the transmission takes place shall be entered on the message form on which the telegram was delivered at the Office of the Licensees.

(c) All message forms delivered by the Director-General at the Office of the Licensees on any day shall at the end of the same day be returned by the Licensees to the Central Telegraph Office in the town in the order in which they were delivered at the Office of the Licensees.

6. The Licensees shall not retain a copy of any telegram transmitted by or to any of their Subscribers under the operation of these Rules.

7. In case of any breach, non-performance or non-observance by or on the part of the Licensees of any of the stipulations and conditions hereinbefore contained or contained in the aforesaid Rules and Tariff relating to the transmission of telegraph messages in India, the Director-General may by notice in writing revoke and determine the permission granted under these Rules as from the date of the service of the notice.

8. Any notice to be given by the Director-General under these Rules may be signed by the Chief Officer of the Division of the Telegraphs within which the Telephone Exchange of the Licensees is situated, and may be served by sending the same by post in a registered letter to the Licensees at their Office.

3. The Licensees may establish and maintain for that term Telephone wires connecting—

(a) the Central Exchange of the Licensees with the District Exchanges of the Licensees;

(b) the Offices of Subscribers within the said limits with a Telephone Exchange of the Licensees;

(c) the open Telephone Offices of the Licensees with a Telephone Exchange of the Licensees;

(d) with the permission in writing of the Governor General in Council, a Telephone Exchange of the Licensees with the Office of a Subscriber situated beyond the said limits;

(e) with the permission in writing of the Director General of Telegraphs in India, a Telephone Exchange of the Licensees with a Government Telegraph Office within the said limits.

4. When the Licensees have in accordance with the provisions of this license established a Telephone Exchange within the said limits, they may establish, maintain and let on lease for the said term or any part thereof private Telephone wires connecting the office of any person situated within the said limits with another office of the same person or with the office of any other person situated within those limits or, with the permission in writing of the Governor General in Council, with another office of the same person or with the office of any other person situated beyond those limits.

5. The Licensees may use and work the said Telephones, Telephone Exchanges, open Telephone Offices, Telephone wires and private Telephone wires and suffer the same to be used and worked for the following purposes, namely,—

(a) for the purpose of enabling Telephone messages to be transmitted direct as follows, namely,—

(1) from or to any Subscriber at an Office occupied by him, either to or from any other Subscriber at an Office occupied by him, or to or from any person at an open Telephone office,

(2) in pursuance of the Telegram Subscription Rules made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force, from or to any Telegram Subscriber at an office occupied by him to or from a Government Telegraph Office,

(3) in pursuance of the Agency Subscription Rules made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force, from or to any Agency Subscriber at an office occupied by him to or from a Telephone Exchange,

(4) in the case of private Telephone wires, from or to any lessee of the same at one of the offices with which the private Telephone wire is connected to or from the other of those offices:

Provided that such messages relate only to the business or private affairs of such subscribers or lessees, or one of them; and

(b) for the purpose of transmitting in either direction between a Telephone Exchange and any other Telephone Exchange or the Office of any Subscriber or any open Telephone Office, or a Government Telegraph Office or between the offices with which a private Telephone wire is connected, service messages relating to the establishment from time to time of Telephonic connections by means of the said Telephone Exchanges or the said private Telephone wire, or to the working or repair of the said Telephones, Telephone Exchanges, open Telephone Offices, Telephone wires or private Telephone wires.

6. The Licensees shall, within a period of 180 days next following the date on which this license is granted, establish in working order at least one Telephone Exchange within the said limits, and, if they fail so to do, this license shall become revocable by the Governor General in Council.

7. This license shall not confer on the Licensees any right to lay or place any supports, wires or other Telephone apparatus or appliances in or over, upon or under, any land, ground, street, road, harbour, foreshore, river or place within the said limits, but any permission for that purpose required by the Licensees shall be obtained by them at their own expense from the person or persons, body or bodies corporate, legally entitled to grant the same.

8. This license cannot be assigned, transferred or otherwise disposed of, and in the event of any attempt being made on the part of the Licensees to assign, transfer or dispose of the same, or of any order being made by any Court for winding up the Company of the Licensees, or of any resolution being passed by the Company of the Licensees requiring it to be wound up voluntarily, or of the dissolution of the Company of the Licensees by any means whatsoever, this license shall ipso facto cease and determine.

9. (a) The Governor General in Council may at any time, by twelve months' previous notice in writing, terminating on the day of	189

	day of	189
or the	day of	189

signify to the Licensees his intention to purchase the undertaking in respect of which this license is granted.

(b) If any such notice is given, the Licensees shall sell and convey to the Government the said undertaking, including all immovable property and all rights in, over or in respect of the same, and all plant, material, apparatus and appliances, suitable to and used by them for the purposes of the said undertaking.

(c) The price to be paid by the Governor General in Council for such purchase shall be the then value of the property rights, plant, material, apparatus and appliances mentioned in clause (b), exclusive of any allowance for past or future profits of the undertaking or good-will, or any compensation for compulsory sale or withdrawal of the present concession or other consideration whatsoever, and shall be determined by two arbitrators—one to be appointed by the Governor General in Council and one by the Licensees, and in a case of a difference of opinion by an umpire, to be appointed by the arbitrators before they enter on the business of the reference.

(d) In the event of any such purchase, the Governor General in Council may revoke the license hereby granted.

10. This license is granted subject to the conditions set forth in the first schedule hereto annexed, and shall be revocable by the Governor General in Council on the breach of any of those conditions.

11. It shall be in the absolute discretion of the Governor General in Council to grant or refuse to the Licensees the privilege of connecting their Telephonic circle with any other circle; but in the event of such privilege being granted the trunk line will in all cases be erected, maintained and owned by the Government and let to the Licensees at such rent and on such conditions as the Governor General in Council may, from time to time, determine.

12. Nothing in this license shall confer upon the Licensees any exclusive right or privilege or prevent the Governor General in Council from doing through his own servants, or granting a license to any other person or body corporate to do, anything which the Licensees are authorized to do by or under this license.

13. All words and phrases used in this license and in the first schedule hereto annexed shall, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context, be construed in accordance with the definitions and rules contained in the second schedule hereto annexed.

Secretary to the Government of India,

Public Works Department.

FIRST SCHEDULE.

Conditions of the License.

1. The Licensees shall not establish or maintain any Telephones, Telephone exchanges, open Telephone offices, Telephone wires, or private Telephone wires, except as permitted by their license.

2. The Licensees shall not use or work any Telephone, Telephone exchange, open Telephone office, Telephone wire or private Telephone wire established or maintained by them, or suffer the same to be used or worked, except for the purposes specified in their license.

3. (1) The Licensees shall pay to the Director-General of Telegraphs in India, herein referred to as the Director-General, on account of the Government of India, the percentages specified in the 3rd clause of this condition (and hereinafter called royalties) of all sums of money paid or by virtue of any contract payable to them by any subscriber, lessee or other person—

(a) in respect of the hire, maintenance, working or use of any Telephone, Telephone exchange, open Telephone office, Telephone wire or private Telephone wire, or any part or parts thereof;

(b) in respect of the right or permission to transmit Telephonic messages by means of any Telephone, Telephone exchange, open Telephone office, Telephone wire or private Telephone wire; or,

(c) in respect of any services rendered to a subscriber under the Agency Subscription Rules made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force; or,

(d) otherwise in respect of Telephonic messages transmitted by means of any Telephone, Telephone exchange, open Telephone office, Telephone wire or private Telephone wire, or otherwise howsoever in relation to any Telephone, Telephone exchange, open Telephone office, Telephone wire or private Telephone wire, or any part or parts thereof, established under their license.

(2) The royalties shall be payable whether the sum of money is a gross sum or is payable periodically, or is paid in the shape of a fee for the temporary use of any Telephone exchange or Telephone by means of an open Telephone office, or is paid in the shape of rent, for the lease of any private Telephone wire.

(3) The royalties shall be 5 per cent. of the gross amount of every sum of money paid or payable to the Licensees as aforesaid, except when that sum is payable wholly or partly in respect of a Telephone wire or private Telephone wire situate partly beyond the limits specified in the license, in which case the royalty shall be 6 per cent.

4. Every royalty payable under the last foregoing condition shall become due so soon as the sum of money in respect of which it is payable, or by the amount of which it is regulated, is paid or is by virtue of any contract payable to the Licensees.

5. (1) The Licensees shall, at all times, keep at their principal office within the limit specified in their license a book or books in which they shall, so far as may be practicable enter—

(a) the names, addresses and occupations of all subscribers and lessees for the time being;

(b) the sums of money from time to time paid, and agreed to be paid, respectively, by those subscribers and lessees or by any other persons in respect of any of the matters specified in condition 3;

(c) the date at which every such sum of money was paid or became payable;

(d) the nature of the consideration for the payment thereof; and

(e) all such other particulars as the Director-General may, from time to time reasonably require.

(2) The Licensees shall preserve at their principal office, as aforesaid, all contracts between the Licensees and subscribers or lessees.

(3) The Licensees shall permit the Director-General and his officers, from time to time, and at all reasonable times, to inspect the said book or books and contracts, and to make copies thereof and extracts therefrom.

6. The Licensees shall, within seven days after the expiration of every calendar month, render to the Director-General a statement in writing showing—

(a) the amounts of all sums of money which, during the month, have been paid, or become payable, by subscribers or lessees or other persons;

(b) the names, so far as may be practicable, of the subscribers or lessees or other persons in each case;

(c) the date on which every such sum of money was paid, or became payable;

(d) the nature of the consideration for the payment thereof; and

(e) such further particulars as the Director-General may, from time to time, reasonably require.

7. (1) All accounts between the Director-General and the Licensees relating to the royalties payable hereunder shall be settled quarterly up to the 31st day of March, the 30th day of June, the 30th day of September and the 31st day of December in every year.

(2) The accounts for each quarter of a year shall be rendered by the Licensees to the Director-General within fourteen days after the expiration of the quarter.

(3) The balance due to the Director-General in respect of any quarter of a year shall be paid by the Company to the Director-General within twenty-eight days after the expiration of that quarter.

8. If a Telephone exchange of the Licensees is, with the permission of the Director-General, connected with a Government Telegraph office, for the purposes of the Telegram Subscription Rules made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876,—

(a) the wires and apparatus by means of which the Telephone exchange is connected with the Telegraph office, including the instruments placed in the Telegraph office, and all wires and apparatus either in substitution therefor or in addition thereto by which connection is, for the time being, made, shall be maintained by the Licensees at their own cost; and

(b) the wires and apparatus shall be appropriated for the exclusive use of the Director-General, but shall remain the property of the Licensees, and shall at all times be maintained in efficient working order by the Licensees:

Provided that, if in the opinion of the Director-General or any of his officers the wires and apparatus are or become insufficient for the due and expeditious transmission of the communications sent to or from the subscribers, the Licensees shall, after receiving a notice in writing from the Director-General so to do, forthwith erect and appropriate in the manner aforesaid such additional wires and apparatus between the Telegraph office and the Telephone exchange as the Director-General or his officers may deem necessary, and as may be specified in such notice, and such wires and apparatus shall be erected in such a manner as the Director-General or his officers direct and approve of.

9. The Licensees shall, in the event of any of their Telephone exchanges being connected with a Government Telegraph office for the purposes of the Telegram Subscription Rules made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, comply with all the said rules for the time being in force, and duly account for all money received under the same on account of the Government.

10. The Licensees shall, in the event of any of their Telephone exchanges being utilized as an agency for the receipt and delivery of subscribers' telegrams intended for transmission or transmitted over the wires of the Government Telegraph Department under the Agency Subscription Rules made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, comply with all the said rules for the time being in force.

11. Except messages intended for transmission, or that have been transmitted over the Government Telegraph wires, under the Agency Subscription Rules made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force, no written message or messages other than oral shall be collected or delivered at any Telephone exchange or office of the Licensees, or at the office of any subscriber or lessee.

12. No money or other valuable consideration shall, in respect of the receipt, transmission or delivery of any Telephonic message by means of any Telephone exchange or private Telephone wire established hereunder, be, or be promised to be, paid or given to any subscriber or lessee by any person whomsoever, whether a subscriber, lessee or not.

13. The Licensees shall, in every agreement with a subscriber or lessee, make due provision for the observance of the two last foregoing conditions, and reserve to themselves the fullest discretion to rescind the agreement on any infringement by the subscriber or lessee of either of those conditions.

14. (1) The Licensees shall, seven days at least before connecting the office of any subscriber or intending subscriber with any Telephone exchange, or an office of any lessee or intending lessee with another office of that lessee or with the office of any other person within the limits specified in their license, deliver a notice in writing of their intention so to do at the office of the Director-General, or to such officer as the Director-General may appoint to receive the notice.

(2) The notice shall contain—

(a) the name, address and occupation of the subscriber or lessee, or intending subscriber or lessee, to whom the notice relates;

(b) a copy of the engagement and condition entered into and agreed to by the subscriber or lessee under the last foregoing condition; and

(c) full particulars of the situation of the office or intended office to which the notice relates, and of the line or route in which it is intended to lay the Telephone wire or wires for establishing the connection, and of the manner in which, and the houses and buildings (if any) on or by means of which, it is intended that such wire or wires shall be supported.

(3) Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing portion of this condition, the Director-General may at his discretion grant permission for the connection to be established within a less period than seven days.

15. The posts and other Telephonic apparatus and appliances of the Licensees shall be so erected and placed as not to interfere with the convenient erection, maintenance or use of, or to expose to risk of damage, any posts, wires or other Telegraphic or Telephonic apparatus or appliances under the charge of the Director-General which may, from time to time, exist, or any posts, wires or other Telegraphic or Telephonic apparatus or appliances which it is probable that he may have occasion to erect; and accordingly no posts, wires or other Telephonic apparatus or appliances shall be erected, fixed or placed by the Licensees, in pursuance of any such notice as aforesaid or otherwise, without the approval or consent in writing of the Director-General or an officer authorised by him in that behalf.

16. In the event of any posts, wires or other Telephonic apparatus or appliances of the Licensees which may already have been erected or placed with the consent of the Director-General interfering with the erection or placing of any posts, wires or other Telegraphic or Telephonic apparatus or appliances which the Director-General may, during the continuance of the said license, have occasion to erect, the Licensees shall, within thirty days after written notice has been given at their principal office situated within the limits specified in their license, remove such posts, wires or other Telephonic apparatus or appliances to another situation approved by the Director-General; and the reasonable expenses incurred by the Licensees in the removal shall be reimbursed by the Director-General.

17. In case any Telephone wire or wires of the Licensees shall, by reason of the neglect of the Licensees to maintain the same properly fixed and in good repair, or from any other cause whatever, interfere with the working of, or damage, any Telegraph or Telephone wire or wires under the charge of the Director-General, any officer generally or specially empowered by the Director-General in this behalf may, if the Licensees do not forthwith remove their said Telephone wire or wires, or sufficiently repair and refix such wire or wires to his satisfaction, so as to prevent any further interference with, or damage to, the wires under the charge of the Director-General, or if for any other reason he thinks it necessary for the public service, remove or repair and refix such wire or wires of the Licensees as aforesaid; and the Licensees shall on demand pay to the Director-General the cost of refixing and repairing the Telegraph or Telephone wire or wires under the charge of the Director-General which shall have been interfered with, or damaged, as aforesaid, and the cost of any removal or repair and refixing by such officer of their said wire or wires.

18. The Director-General and his officers and agents may, from time to time, and at all reasonable times, enter on any office of the Licensees and, so far as the Licensees can give permission, on any subscriber's or lessee's office, for the purpose of inspecting the Telephones and other Telephonic instruments and appliances fixed in those places.

19. The Licensees shall not move their Telephone exchanges without the previous consent in writing of the Director-General.

SECOND SCHEDULE.

Interpretation.

(1) "Subscribers" means those companies, firms and persons from whom the Licensees receive subscriptions, and with whom they enter into contracts in relation to connecting their offices by means of Telephone wires with a Telephone exchange.

(2) "Lessees" means those companies, firms and persons, whether subscribers or not, to whom the Licensees lease any private Telephone wire established by them.

(3) "Office" whether used with reference to the licensees, a subscriber, a lessee or any other person, includes any house, warehouse, factory, building, vessel or place occupied by the licensees, subscriber, lessee or other person.

(4) "Telephone" includes any apparatus by means of which any articulate sounds can be conveyed to a distance by the agency of electricity, galvanism or magnetism.

(5) "Telephone wire" includes any metallic connection between two Telephones or between one Telephone and a Telephone exchange.

(6) "Telephone exchange" means any contrivance, instrument, apparatus or appliance to which two or more "Telephone wires" may be attached, and which is used for the purpose of temporarily establishing from time to time, as occasion may require, a direct connection between any two of such Telephone wires, and includes a "central Telephone exchange" and a "district Telephone exchange."

(7) "Central Telephone exchange" means either the only Telephone exchange belonging to the Licensees within the limits specified in their license, or, if more than one Telephone exchange is established by the Licensees within those limits, the central or principal apparatus with which one or more district Telephone exchanges may be connected.

(8) "District Telephone exchange" means a Telephone exchange other than a central Telephone exchange with which two or more subscribers' offices are connected by means of Telephone wires, and which itself is connected by means of one or more Telephone wires with a central exchange or with another district exchange.

(9) "Open Telephone office" means any building or place in or to which may be contained or attached a Telephone which is connected by means of one or more Telephone wires with a Telephone exchange and which may be used by persons other than those hereinbefore described as "subscribers," for communication with subscribers, and may also be used by subscribers for communication with other subscribers.

(10) "Private Telephone wire" means a "Telephone wire" connecting the office of one person with the office of another person, or one office of a person with another office belonging to the same person, without being itself connected with a "Telephone exchange;" and

(11) A Telephone exchange shall not be deemed to have been "established" until not less than ten companies, firms or persons have severally paid to the Licensees a sum of money in respect of the use of the Licensees' exchange for a period of not less than twelve calendar months.

TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

Telegram Subscription Rules.

Whereas a Telephone Exchange may, with the permission of the Director-General of Telegraphs in India, be connected by means of one or more Telephone wires with the central Government Telegraph office within the limits within which it has been established, to the intent that the subscribers may be enabled to communicate directly with that Telegraph office; in exercise of the powers conferred by sections 7 and 8 of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the regulations, conditions and restrictions according to which all messages and signals communicated to a Government Telegraph office by the subscribers to a Telephone exchange connected with a Government Telegraph office, or received for transmission to such subscribers, shall be transmitted.

1. These rules may be called the Telegram Subscription Rules, 1884.

2. Any subscriber to a Telephone exchange connected as aforesaid with a Government Telegraph office shall be entitled to communicate direct with the Telegraph office by means of the Telephone exchange and the connecting Telephone wires on payment to the Director-General of Telegraphs in India (herein referred to as the Director-General) of a yearly sum of sixty rupees, which shall be paid in advance on the first day of January in each year:

Provided that, if a subscriber desires to institute his direct communication with the Telegraph office on any other date than the first day of January, he shall in respect of the then current year be required to pay in advance a proportionate part only of the said sum of sixty rupees.*

3. When a Telegram addressed to such a subscriber as aforesaid (herein referred to as a Telegram subscriber) is received at the Telegraph office, it shall at the discretion of the Director-General or his officers either be delivered in the manner provided in the "Rules and Tariff relating to the transmission of Telegraph Messages in India," made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force, or be transmitted to the Telegram subscriber by means of the Telephone exchange if it can be so transmitted with reasonable speed, and in that case the Telegram subscriber shall accept such transmission in place of the delivery of the Telegram in the manner provided by the aforesaid Rules and Tariff.

4. Telegrams received from a Telegram subscriber at the central Telegraph office by means of the Telephone exchange shall, at the option of the Telegram subscriber, be forwarded to their destination by the Government Telegraph, or be forwarded by post as ordinary letters, or, if the address of delivery is within a reasonable distance from the Telegraph office, by special messenger:

Provided that a Telegram subscriber shall not be entitled to transmit more than one Telegram at a time to the Telegraph office by means of the Telephone exchange, nor shall the Telephone exchange be used for the transmission of press messages.

5. A Telegram subscriber shall pay to the Director-General in respect of every such Telegram forwarded from the Telegraph office by Telegraph the same sum for transmission, Prepaid Replies, Postage, Registration and Express Charges (if any) as would be payable by the sender if the Telegram had been handed in at the central Telegraph office as an ordinary Telegram.

6. A Telegram subscriber shall pay to the Director-General in respect of every such Telegram forwarded from the Telegraph office by post as a letter the ordinary postage payable on the letter.

7. A Telegram subscriber shall pay to the Director-General in respect of every such Telegram delivered from the Telegraph office by special messenger a sum of two annas if the address of delivery is within the limits of the free ordinary delivery of Telegrams from the Telegraph office, and in all cases the same sum as would be payable for "Express Charges" in respect of an ordinary Telegram delivered from the Telegraph office at the same address.

8. All sums payable by a Telegram subscriber in respect of Telegrams forwarded as aforesaid from the Telegraph office shall be paid in advance by means of a deposit with the

---

*The annual payment of sixty rupees to the Director-General is to be in consideration of the services of the Telegraphist attending to the Telephone exchange connection in the central Telegraph office and of the other services to be rendered and expenses to be incurred by the Director-General.

Telegraph officer in charge of the Telegraph office, who shall not be required to forward any such Telegram unless the sum for the time being in his hands on account of the deposit is sufficient for the payment of the amount payable in respect of the Telegram.

9. All accounts in respect of Telegrams forwarded or delivered as aforesaid on behalf of a Telegram subscriber from the Telegraph office shall be settled monthly up to the first day of each calendar month.

10. A Telegram subscriber may pay the sum payable by him to the Director-General in accordance with Rule 2 to the Licensees of the Telephone exchange to which he is a subscriber, as the agents and on behalf of the Director-General, and the receipt of the Licensees shall be a good discharge for any sum so paid.

The said Licensees shall act as agents of the Director-General for the purpose aforesaid, and shall receive all sums which may in accordance with the said rule be tendered to them by the subscribers as such agents, and shall pay the same to the Director-General immediately on the receipt thereof or at such other times as may be agreed upon between the Director-General and the Licensees.

11. The Secretary of State in Council or the Director-General shall not be subject to any liability by reason or on account of any failure, delay or mistake in or about the transmission, receipt or delivery of any Telegram under these rules, whether arising from the default of the Licensees or of any officer of the Government Telegraph, or otherwise.

12. If any sum payable under Rule 2 or any other money which is for the time being due from a Telegram subscriber under these rules is in arrear or unpaid for twenty-one days after it ought to be paid, the Director-General may by notice in writing debar the subscriber from participating in the advantages of these rules from the date of the service of the notice:

Provided that the fact of a subscriber being debarred from participating in the advantages of these rules shall not affect the right of the Director-General to recover from the subscriber any money which may be in arrear and unpaid.

13. Any notice to be given by the Director-General under these rules may be signed by the Chief Officer of the Division of Telegraphs within which the Telephone exchange with which the subscriber's office is connected is situated, and may be served by sending it by post in a registered letter to the subscriber at his office.

TELEPHONE EXCHANGE.

Agency Subscription Rules.

WHEREAS a Telephone exchange may, with the permission of the Director-General of Telegraphs in India, be utilized as an agency through which subscribers' Telegrams intended for transmission or transmitted over the wires of the Government Telegraph Department may be received and delivered by the officers of that Department. In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 7 and 8 of the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, the Governor General in Council is pleased to make the following rules prescribing the regulations, conditions and restrictions according to which all messages and signals received or deliverable through the agency of any such Telephone exchange shall be transmitted:—

1. These rules may be called the Agency Subscription Rules, 1884.

2. If a subscriber to a Telephone exchange desires to employ the Licensees of the Telephone exchange as his agents through whom his Telegrams intended for transmission or transmitted over the wires of the Government Telegraph Department may be received or delivered by the officers of that Department, he shall address the following form of request to the Director-General of Telegraphs in India (herein referred to as the Director-General):—

"I hereby request the Director-General of Telegraphs in India, until further notice, to deliver to the Telephone Exchange Company, Limited, at their central Telephone exchange situated in the town of for transmission to me by means of the Telephone exchange of that Company, all Telegrams address to me at that may be received by means of the central Government Telegraph office in that town, and to transmit all Telegrams received from the said Company at such Government Telegraph office as the Director-General may by order in writing appoint for transmission on my account; and I hereby agree to pay to the Director-General the sum of twelve rupees per annum in advance on the day of in each year for the registration of special instructions to the effect above-mentioned."

Signed—————

3. During the continuance of the period for which such a subscriber as aforesaid (herein referred to as an Agency subscriber) is registered at the Telegraph office as desirous of having his Telegrams delivered to, and received for transmission from, the Licensees of the Telephone exchange to which he is a subscriber, the Licensees—

(a) may receive messages transmitted to a Telephone attached to the exchange from the office of the subscriber and intended to be further transmitted on behalf of the subscriber by means of the Government Telegraphs, and

(b) may as the agents of the subscriber commit the messages to writing on appropriate messages forms to be provided by the Director-General, and

(c) may deliver the forms by messenger at such Government Telegraph office as the Director-General may by order in writing appoint for that purpose, to the intent that the forms may be transmitted from the office as Telegrams.

4. All charges which under the "Rules and Tariff relating to the transmission of Telegraph messages in India" made under the Indian Telegraph Act, 1876, and for the time being in force, should be paid by the sender of a Telegram shall be paid by Telegraph stamps attached to the message form on which any such message as aforesaid is written before the delivery of the message form at the Telegraph office.

5. (a) On the delivery by the Director-General at the office of the Licensees of a Telegram addressed to any Agency subscriber, the Licensees may transmit the Telegram to the subscriber's office by means of their Telephone exchange.

(b) The time at which the transmission takes place shall be entered on the message form on which the Telegram was delivered at the office of the Licensees.

(c) All message forms delivered by the Director-General at the office of the Licensees on any day shall at the end of the same day be returned by the Licensees to the central Telegraph office in the town in the order in which they were delivered at the office of the Licensees.

6. The Licensees shall not retain a copy of any telegram transmitted by or to any of their subscribers under the operation of these Rules.

7. In case of any breach, non-performance or non-observance by or on the part of the Licensees of any of the stipulations and conditions hereinbefore contained or contained in the aforesaid Rules and Tariff relating to the transmission of Telegraph messages in India, the Director-General may by notice in writing revoke and determine the permission granted under these Rules as from the date of the service of the notice.

8. Any notice to be given by the Director-General under these Rules may be signed by the Chief Officer of the Division of the Telegraphs within which the Telephone exchange of the Licensees is situated, and may be served by sending the same by post in a registered letter to the Licensees at their office.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

REVENUE AND AGRICULTURAL DEPARTMENT.

Circular No. 94 Ex.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Government of India in the Revenue and Agricultural Department (Museums and Exhibitions), under date Simla, the 6th August 1884.

RESOLUTION.

Read the following:—

No. 201, dated Calcutta, the 16th July 1884.

From—The Acting Consul for Austria and Hungary,

To—The Secretary to the Government of India, Foreign Department.

ADVERTING to my official intimation anent the General National Exhibition to be held at Budapest (Hungary) in 1885, namely, No. 68, dated 6th March and No. 102, dated 26th March, I have to-day the honor to transmit under cover a translation of a further communication received from the Imperial and Royal Austro-Hungarian Minister for Foreign Affairs, No. $\frac{2908}{0}$, dated Vienna, 1st June, relative to concessions granted to intending foreign exhibitors in the charges for railway fare and sea transport, the latter on the part of the Austro-Hungarian Lloyds Steam Navigation Company and Hungarian Steam-ship Company "Adria."

TRANSLATION.

IN continuation of the circular issued from this side, dated 5th February, as per No. $\frac{568}{0}$, concerning the Hungarian National Exhibition to be held next year at Budapest, the Imperial and Royal Ministry for Foreign Affairs have the honor to acquaint the Imperial and Royal Mission, for intimation to the Imperial Indian Government, that the concessions in freight granted on the part of the railway and steam-ship companies, on behalf of this undertaking, consist in the following:—

A.—RAILWAYS.

1. The Austrian and Hungarian lines for small parcels for transport inward as well as return transport, francs 16*xr.* Austrian Vaente for each 100 kilograms and per kilomètre is charged as uniform rate, and to this is still to be added on each line a manipulation tax of francs 2*xr.* per 100 kilograms and 3 per cent. for transport duty.

With wagon loads for transport inward as well as return transport francs 13*xr.* as uniform rate per kilomètre is charged for each 100 kilograms according to actual weight per wagon, however, at least for 8,000 kilograms.

As with such wagon loads no manipulation tax has to be paid, the loading and unloading of goods has to be effected at the expense of the sender, respectively exhibitor.

The minimum amount of freight for each wagon-load is fixed as francs 3 a. v., which minimum amount is even to be paid if, according to the freight rates granted for smaller quantities, a lower amount of freight should result.

Those goods of large dimensions entered as return goods are despatched per 100 kilograms and kilomètres at the uniform rate of freight of francs 32*xr.* with goods of larger dimensions entered in wagon-loads, and if the rate is paid for per at least 8,000 kilograms, only francs 13*xr.* as uniform rate will be charged per 100 kilograms and kilomètres.

For the return-transport those exhibition objects partake of this advantage only in case of their being unsold during the exhibition and destined to be returned to the original station of despatch.

These freight advantages count only up to the railway stations at Budapest.

For the transport of the exhibition objects from these railway stations to the exhibition grounds on the eventually to be laid rails a moderate special rate will be charged according to local circumstances.

2. For the transport of the exhibition goods to Budapest the full rate of freight is charged according to tariff, where against the return-transport of goods which remained unsold at the exhibition will be granted freight-free on the same route on the part of the following lines :—

In Germany.

The Prussian State Lines.
„ Nadhabaut-German Railway.
„ Werra Line.
„ Hessen-Ludwig Line.
„ Main-Neckar Railway.
„ Netherland-Rhinish Railway.

In Holland.

The Dutch Railway Company.

In Russia.

The Line Merko-Brest.
„ „ Orel Witelsk.
„ „ Dimoborg.

In France.

The Compagnie du Chemin de Fer du Nord.

B.—Donau Steam-ship Transport.

The Imperial and Royal first privileged Donau Steam-ship Company have granted for all exhibition goods, the transport of which is effected by the ships of the Company, a reduction in freight of 50 per cent.

C.—Relative to Sea transport.

The Hungarian Steam-ship Company "Adria" having granted to those exhibitors who ship their goods on board the vessels of the Company from the seaports :—

Bordeaux, Rouen,
Hans,
Dublin,
Glasgow,
Leith, and Middlesborough,

a reduction of 25 per cent. on the existing ruling rates of freight.

D.—Provisional Exemption from Duty.

The Royal Hungarian Ministry for Finance have, vide Rescrifr, dated 18th February 1884, No. 1569, granted provisional exemption from duty for all foreign goods arriving for the Budapest National Exhibition of 1885 up to their being transported back at the latter end of March 1886, and entrusted the Royal Hungarian Chief Custom House in Budapest with the pending manipulation of duty, according to Government procedure.

The Hungarian Ministry of Finance have further ruled that all Custom Houses of the Austro-Hungarian Custom territory are to direct all such goods on arrival for Custom House treatment untouched and unopened to the Royal Chief Custom House at Budapest.

By way of facilitating this procedure, it is at the same time permitted that the goods arriving from abroad are to be treated by the official deputed by the Chief Custom House in such a manner that this official may fill up the Goods and Contents Sheets arriving with the goods with the descriptions according to tariff and revision of the goods, and thus complete the duty manipulation on the basis of these thus completed goods sheets.

Furthermore, it has still been permitted by the Hungarian Ministry for Finance that with these exhibition goods, instead of the prescribed security in cash, the solvability of the National Exhibition Committee will be accepted as basis of the Government procedure.

E.—The Return of Goods free of Duty.

Of all goods sent for exhibition to Budapest, but having remained unsold are to be transported back to their place of despatch, has thus far been granted by the German, Dutch, English, Italian, Belgian, French, and North American Governments.

Summary of the Weather Reports for July 1884.

The weather of July has been, on the whole, of the normal monsoon type.

In the Punjab (excepting the Indus Valley), in the North-Western Provinces (except at Jhansi, Allahabad, and Benares), and in Rajputana, barometric readings have been generally above the average, while in all other parts of India, with a few local exceptions, they have been below it. During the earlier portion of the month, a shoulder of high pressure, extending northward from Guzerat, occupied the greater part of Rajputana, the Punjab and North-Western Provinces, and was probably connected with the deficiency of the rainfall in that region, presently to be noticed. Two cyclonic storms of the usual monsoon type traversed the country during the month. The first was developed on the 8th and 9th over the head of the Bay of Bengal, and travelled thence to the west or west-north-west. Its centre lay near False Point on the 10th, near Cuttack on the 11th, near Jubbulpore on the 12th, near Deesa on the 13th, and near Hyderabad (Sind) on the 14th. The second storm was also developed over the head of the Bay, the first notice of its appearance being given on the 15th. It then lay to the eastward of False Point, whence it travelled to Gopalpore on the 16th, to Raipur on the 17th, and to Seoni on the 18th, after which date it disappeared.

The rainfall reports show that, in the earlier portions of the month, the area within which the rains were fully established was somewhat restricted. Over the greater part of the plains of the Punjab, as well as in Rajputana, Sind and Guzerat, rain of any consequence was almost entirely wanting during the first fortnight; as was also the case in some parts of the Carnatic, in Madura, Mysore, the Ceded districts of the Madras Presidency, and the Deccan. By the 16th, however, a change set in. Rain-bearing winds spread suddenly over Guzerat, and subsequently extended to Rajputana and the Punjab. From the 20th to the end of the month, the rains were general and abundant, with the exception of the Madras Presidency, at the more southern and central stations of which the weather was fine and the rainfall slight or altogether absent. The heaviest falls of rain were—7 inches at Naini Tal and Raipur on the 1st; 7 inches at Moulmein on the 10th; 8 inches at Bombay on the 14th; 6 inches at Mount Abu on the 21st; 7 inches at Jubbulpore on the 23rd; 8 inches at Pachmarhi and 7 inches at Akyab on the 24th; 6 inches at Rajkot on the 27th; 6 inches (according to some reports 14 inches) at Umballa on 30th; and 10 inches at Mount Abu on the 31st. Notwithstanding these large local falls, the general rainfall of the country has been below the average for July. Such is the case in the north of the Punjab and at Simla and Delhi; in the North-Western Provinces, with the single exception of the hill station of Naini Tal; in Assam everywhere; and in Bengal the only stations showing an excess are Darjeeling, Purneah, and Saugor Island. In Central India and Rajputana, at the west coast stations (excepting Bombay and Goa), and over the whole of Madras, also, the rain has been below the average, and only in Burma, the Central Provinces, the Berars, Guzerat, and the Central Punjab has it been above it. At Raipur more than 25, and at Jubbulpore more than 18, inches above the average has fallen.

Owing to the fine weather during the first half of the month, the temperature was rather high in the Punjab, Rajputana, and Sind. At Peshawar 114° was registered on the 2nd, and at Jacobabad 113° on the 3rd. A rapid fall occurred with the setting in of the rains, but the high temperatures of the first fortnight were not entirely compensated by the subsequent low readings, and the monthly mean in the north and west of the Punjab was somewhat above the average, though in most other parts of the country it was a little below it.

The variations in the amount of humidity in the atmosphere agree approximately with the distribution of rainfall, the principal regions of excessive humidity being the Central Provinces and Guzerat, where also the rainfall was above the average.

The following table summarises the rainfall returns under the divisions adopted in the previous summaries:—

Districts.	Average rainfall in July.	Difference of the rainfall in July 1884 from average July fall.
	Inches.	Inches.
North and West Punjab	5·05	—0·33
South Punjab, North-Western Provinces, and Behar	13·13	—3·27
